LETTER FROM NORWAY—Mrs. A. S. MacKay, Summerside, has received a letter from Mrs. Karl Brock, Bergen, Norway, in response to one written earlier. Included within the envelope was a photo of Mrs. Brock's son, Sigmund, in his pilot's uniform, who had been the victim of a crash while training at the Summerside airport and who is buried in the People's Cemetery. In part, the letter reads as follows: "Many thanks for the letter I received. You can hardly imagine how pleased I was upon hearing that you know my dear son's grave, which is looked after and well kept. It has almost doubled my sorrow that his grave is so far away. I have searched for consolation by going to see the graves of the British and American pilots, who are buried in this town. These graves, too, are in very good condition. Now I feel as if my sorrow is not so heavy to bear as before. It is my hope that my husband and I may go to see the grave of our dear Sigmund."

"I see where there was a game in Toronto last night. I knew it wouldn't be long before he reached the sport page. I'll simply ignore him; there's no point in arguing with him anyway."

Since last Saturday the Saints played two basketball games and won both of them. On Saturday night they defeated the Navy 44-33, and on Wednesday night they scored a 31-25 triumph over P.W.C. The two wins place the Saints in undisputed possession of second spot in the City League; Ray's Millionaires are in first.

The Saints start out in defence of their Maritime hockey crown Monday when they play U.N.B. of Fredericton. The U.N.B. team is listed as one of the best in the Maritime circuit this year; they do not have much difficulty in defeating Mt. Allison and St. Thomas, although they did lose the last game to the latter 5-4. The Saints are confident, however, that they can take the U.N.B. team in the home-and-home series.

The Nova Scotia champions are yet to be decided; still in the running are Dalhousie, Acadia, and St. P.X.

"The Leafs never could beat the Canadiens anyway; the only way they could win the cup was by putting Lach in the hospital. I don't see how they ever got to be in second place."

There he goes again; but he'll have to wait until I'm through here, if he's looking for an argument.

Not only in the N.H.L. is there an O'Connor leading the scoring parade; in the intramural hockey league here at S.D.U. there is also an O'Connor leading the pack. He plays with the Freshmen, who are also in first position. Right now it looks like a toss-up for final honours in the playoffs. One thing, however, is certain; the Seniors will not be in the playoff show; to date they have succeeded in collecting one point out of eight games.

"So you admit that Toronto can't beat the Canadiens; they haven't done it this year."

Just another second, Jen; then I'll accommodate you.

ROARING "JUNGLE FLIGHT" DELIVERS CARGO OF THRILLS—Producers Pine and Thomas, whose trade mark is action with a capital "A," threw their latest vehicle for Paramount, "Jungle Flight," into high gear at the opening scene, and raced it through over an hour of high-speed thrills. The film opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre with Robert Lowery and Ann Savage co-starred.

"Jungle Flight" is as rugged and exciting a story as the background in which it is set, and Peter Stewart's expert direction insures maintenance of interest from start to pulse-pounding finish. The action only slows down to provide the laughs with which the film is liberally sprinkled.

The picture deals with a couple of ex-Army pilots who are flying for a mining company located in the jungles of a Latin American country. They're out to make a stake with which to set themselves up in the flying business back in the States. Sacrificing safety in his hurry to get home to his wife and child, one of the fliers is killed in his overloaded plane.

The other carries on to provide funds for his pal's family. He meets up with a beautiful blonde who, unknown to him, is running away from her divorced, convict husband. She talks him into taking her back to the mining camp, where she becomes the cook.
