SPORTS DIRECTOR — Miss Katherine Cumming, duaghter of Dr. and Mrs. Melville Cumming, has the position this summer of Sports Director at two Girl Guide Camps. Just now she is at Pine Hurst Camp, Digby Co., and later will go to the camp at Marshfield, P. E. I. —New Glasgow Chronicle.

GRIMMER—HAYTER — A wedding of interest to friends and relatives in the Maritimes and elsewhere was solemnized in the Hazelbrook Baptist Church, Hazelbrook, P. E. Island, on Friday, July 8th, when Ruth Evangeline Hayter eldest daughter of Rev. J. W. and Mrs. Hayter was united in marriage to John Herbert Grimmer, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Davidson Grimmer, Forest Lodge, Chamcook, N. B. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, the bridal party entering the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Mrs. Holden MacLure, cousin of the bride. The bride looked charming in a gown of white satin and lace with short bolero jacket of lace, and carried an arm boquet of Briarcliffe roses and maiden hair fern. Her hiplenght veil of net was caught by a halo of lace and orange blossoms. Miss Lois Hayter was her sister's bridesmaid, and wore a gown of perriwinkle blue silk georgette over taffeta with shell pink accessories She carried a Colonial boquet of pink and white snapdragon. Little Miss Louise McLennan was flower girl and looked very dainty in pink silk with poke bonnet of matching material, and carried a basket of early summer flowers. Rev. Donald Gardner, of Lords Cove, N. B., was groomsman. The ushers were Henry Jones and Ernest MacCabe, brother-in-law of the bride. During the singing of the register, Mrs. Harold Carver sang very sweetly, "At Dawning." The church was beautifully decorated with fox glove, peonies and fern, tastily arranged by Mrs. Parkman Jenkins, assisted by girl friends of the bride. Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Parsonage, the home of the bride's parents. Those serving were Mrs. Ernest MacCabe, Mrs. George McLennan, and the Misses Pearl Jones and Isobel McKinnon. For travelling the bride wore a pink knitted suit with navy accessories and carried a blue box coat. After a motor trip to places of interest in the Maritimes, the happy couple will reside in Chamcook.

MacNEVIN—MacMILLAN WEDDING—A very pretty wedding took place in St. Columba Presbyterian Church, Marshfield, on July 13th at 7 o'clock when Emma Olivia, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex MacNevin, East Royalty, and Ernest Clifford, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon MacMillan, Brackley, were united in the holy bonds of matrimoney. Rev. John C. MacNeil, pastof officated in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Miss Dorothy MacFarlane, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. She wore a long white Sandomin silk crepe dress, made on princess style with bolero jacket, a large white picture hat and white accessories, and carried an arm bouquet of white carnations and maiden hair fern. She was attended by her sister Jean who wore a dress of pink Shantung silk with matching poke bonnet, white accessories and carried a boquet of pink roses. Mr. Walter MacMillan brother of the groom acted as bestman. The bridal party stood at the altar which was beautifully decorated, by friends of the bride, with roses, lilies, ferns and potted plants. During the signing of the register Miss Mary Ferguson sang very sweetly, "I Love You Truly." After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where a dainty buffet luncheon was served. Presiding at the tea table, which was centered with white roses and yellow candles, was Mrs. H. J. Blanchard, Brookline, Mass., aunt of the bride. Assisting in serving were, Misses Emma and Gertrude Holmes, Margaret and Erna Coles, Hazel Bryenton, Mary Love, Sybil MacMillan and Dorothy Blanchard. Following the reception a large crowd of serenaders gathered to wish the bride and groom many years of happy married life. Previous to her marriage the bride was tendered a miscellaneous shower at the home of her parents by the community. To the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Fred W. Andrew, the bride-to-be was escorted to the chair of honor by Mrs. W. Holmes. Misses Nora Clay and Velma Andrew carried in a beautiful decorated basket laden with many useful and costly gifts. Mrs. W. Holmes and Miss Louise Andrew opened the presents while Miss Mary Love read the accompaning verses. Miss MacNevin thanked one and all for the lovely gifts and invited them all to visit her. After singing "For She's A Jolly Good Fellow," lunch was served by the ladies and the remainder of the evening pleasantly spent in dancing and social intercourse.

3 Strange Men

"Then," said Sophie quickly, "I may consider myself at liberty when I please?"

Rumely looked at her, and his look dwelt strangely. He did not reply. Then in a moment he turned his back, passed swiftly into his room, and noisily closed and locked the door behind him. Thus suddenly the incident seemed closed.

"That's strange," said the manager softly.

"Very strange," agreed Sophie, breathing freely again.

"He's a man from Leicester. You don't know him, of course, Miss Cordery?"

"I never spoke to him before in my life."

"Well —there is nothing more I can do. Sorry you have nad such an unpleasant experience.'

Five minutes later, haying accompanied the manager below, Sophie passed quietly out of the hotel Not a minute had she left the portals when, from the door of his private room, the manager observed Rumely go out also, and fell to wondering. At any rate, it was a relief that the police were not to be called in.

Sophie walked as swiftly as she could towards Leadenhall-street. As she went she glanced round now and then, for she remembered Rumely's last look with an apprehension she could not ignore. Sure enough, she saw at last that he was on her track.

The streets were crowded, yet the fear of mischief was on her, and she knew that he was gaining on her at every stride. She dreaded even what he might want to say.

Suddenly she saw a figure she recognised sauntering a little way ahead. She almost ran to it. It was Headley Barling.

"Please," she said, touching his arm, "take me into the post office here, Mr. Barling, will you? Quickly —please."

He obeyed in undisguised astonishment. She led him through a sprinkling of busy people to the far end of the office, and placed some folded papers in his hand.

"Now will you," she said, "post these for me to the Tottenham Agency, 99a, Tottenham Court Road? I will stand here while you get a stamped envelope and post it in the box."

Barling with no words but of acquiescence, did as she asked.

"And now," she said gratefully, with a sigh of relief "will you take me as far as my office, Mr. Barling? I am so much obliged to you."

"Don't mention it," was all he said.

She had a glimpse of Rumely loitering on the other side of the street, and that was all she saw of him before Barling, acknowledging a delightful smile of thanks, left her in safety on the threshold of the Trust buildings.

In Memoriam

MR. WILLIAM BURGOYNE

On Wednesday, May 11th, the community of North Granville, were shocked when it was learned that Mr. William Burgoyne had passed away at the age of 79 years. He had been enjoying his usual good health up until twenty-four hours before his death, when he became suddenly stricken and passed away on the above mentioned date. He was a son of the late Susan and Edward Burgoyne and had spent almost his entire life in the community in which he died.

The funeral was held on Friday, May 13, 1938, and was very largely attended, a short service being held at his late home followed by a service in North Granville United Church of which he was a life member the services being conducted by the Rev. Mr. Wallis. He leaves to mourn his sorrowing wife four sons, namely Wm. N., Edward P. and John H. of North Granville, and Gerald D. of Charlottetown, also two brothers James and Henry of North Granville.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Edward and Bruce Graham, W. D. Cailey, Cecil Mallett, Gavin Burgoyne and Burney Hynes.
