CANADIAN BATTLEFIELDS MEMORIALS COMMISSION

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

ARISING FROM
Conditions of Competition for Design for Eight Memorial Monuments to be Erected in France and Belgium
OTTAWA, January 24, 1921
H. Q. 462-1-17

GENERAL

1. Sixteen intending competitors have asked questions to the number of 25 in all.
2. As several of the questions submitted take the form of letters, their publications verbatim would not add materially to an appreciation of the answers. The great majority of the questions, directly and indirectly, touch on the interpretation of clauses numbers 2, 7, 13, 15, 16, 21, 25, 27. It is therefore deemed advisable to further explain the intention of these clauses without repeating correspondence. Where questions are asked on certain matters not covered in the conditions, questions are repeated, with the answers given.

QUESTIONS UNRELATED TO CLAUSES

1. Question.
Will successful competitors in the final competition be paid a quarter of their full commissions in the event of the postponement or abandonment of the work?
Answer.
This contingency will be given consideration in drafting the conditions for the final competition.

2. Question.
Is Canadian stone to be employed?
Answer.
In the preliminary competition any suggestion as to materials is in order. It is unlikely that any decision as to materials will be made until after the award in the final competition.

3. Question.
Will any preference be shown to competitors who are returned soldiers?
Answer.
No. This is a "competition, open to architects, sculptors and other artists in Canada."
Question.
Will the successful competitor be entrusted with the erection of the said monuments?
Answer.
It is the intention to entrust the design of the monuments to the successful competitors. This competition is not concerned with the question of erection. The method of letting contracts will be considered after the award in the final competition of design.

INTERPRETATION OF CERTAIN CLAUSES

A. The note on eligibility, regarding which five questions are asked, reads as follows:—"Candidates of competition open to all Canadian architects, sculptors, and other artists, etc."
Clause 3 gives further interpretation, reading:—"Open to all architects, sculptors and artists in Canada."
Clause 16 provides for a statement:—"That the design is prepared by and under the direction of the author or joint authors signing the statement."

1. Principals in a firm may submit separate designs individually, provided they do not also submit a design in the name of their firm.
2. Competitors cannot compete as individuals with respect to one design, and also as joint authors with respect to another design.
3. It is open to any competitor to act as the subordinate assistant of another competitor. Assistance received must be compatible with the statement required by the assisted competitor in Clause 16.

4. Parties in trade desiring to submit designs may do so provided the artist responsible for the design is named as joint author. A second design by either would be inadmissible. It is intended to preclude "ghosting" in any form.
5. Exception as to the implied residence and practice of competitors in Canada will be allowed only in the case of Canadians who are bona fide students of the arts in other countries. Such students will arrange to have their work sent in from a Canadian address, and will add to the statement required in Clause 16 the name of the institution at which they are studying.

B. Clause 7, on which five questions are asked, reads as follows:—"No competitor shall submit more than one (1) scheme and no alternative arrangement should be shown."
On turning to Clause 21, it will be observed that the second paragraph of this clause reads:—"For the purpose of this preliminary competition, these sites may be regarded as similar in character, and the design submitted in this competition should be applicable to any one of them."
The intention is that no competitor may submit more than one design. The application of designs to sites is a matter that may be dealt with more fully in the final competition, on the advice of the assessors.

A competitor would disqualify himself by submitting from two to eight designs in the preliminary competition—one only is required.
C. Clause 13, on which three questions are asked, reads as follows:—"For the working drawings and specifications, each successful competitor will receive remuneration in accordance with the usages of the Architectural profession."
Provincial schedules of remuneration will not be taken account of. In the conditions for the final competition, a specific rate will be named corresponding with the character of the work. This can only be defined as a result of the preliminary competition.

D. Clause 15, on which six questions are asked, reads as follows:—"Drawings shall be on white paper, the sheets being of uniform size, twenty inches (20") square, and delivered that in a plain cardboard portfolio."
No separate memoranda of any kind will accompany the drawings, but notes may be printed on the drawings themselves.
The principal dimensions should be figured on the drawings.
The character of the drawings is left to the taste of the individual competitors.

To facilitate the participation of competitors other than architects, hard and fast rules as to what is to be shown on drawings are purposely omitted.
While the assessors will naturally prefer few sheets to handle, a competitor may use as many as necessary to illustrate his one design. Drawings need not be scale, plans are not essential, perspectives are admissible, and any method of rendering may be employed. Three sheets of the size prescribed should be adequate in most cases.
E. Clauses 26 and 27, on which eight questions are asked, reads as follows:—"26. Monuments might with advantage rise to a height of one hundred feet (100 ft.) and the surrounding precincts might occupy ten thousand square feet (10,000 sq. ft.). Precincts might contain such elements as a small chapel, a caretaker's office or a public shelter for visitors."
27. The anticipated expenditure on each of the eight monuments is one hundred and twenty thousand dollars ($120,000)."

Assuming 40 per cent void, the cubic contents above ground should not exceed twelve thousand cubic feet (12,000 cu. ft.). This allows $10 per cubic foot above ground to cover the cost of the work, assuming the void to be as little as 40 per cent of the whole. A design involving 80 per cent void might therefore have proportionately more cubic contents above ground.
Competitors are free to concentrate upon mass and height or on the development of the precincts, bearing in mind the sum available in relation to the character of the cubic contents.
The designs submitted must include the precincts as an integral part of the monument, in so far as construction enters into this development.
The whole of paragraph 26 is intended to be merely suggestive.
Suggestions for landscape gardening in connection with the precincts are quite in order. The cost of such landscape work is not included in the $120,000 but might be otherwise provided.

THE WOMAN HE MARRIED
BY JANE PHELPS

Chapter 76

The agent had sold our lot, and we had lost nothing. Dick was so grateful to be able to pay up a few small bills, that had it not been said it would have been almost ludicrous. We advertised our furniture for sale, but most of it was bought by people in the house. We realized fairly good prices, because it was new, or practically so, I suppose. We kept only enough to take us West. Then quietly one night we took the train.

There was no one to bid us good bye, no one to care, in all the great city what became of us. Only Mrs. Gray knew we were going, and she had refrained from coming to see us off when I begged it. But I held a large box filled with delicious sandwiches and cakes she had prepared for us. So we left New York, sad unhappy poor our ideals smashed, two very different people from the two who had entered it years before with hope running high, and all youth's brilliant dreams of the future.

A new home, a new life was to be ours henceforth. I determined that, as far as I was able, it should be a better home, a better life. The picture of Dick ready to take his life because I had failed him was ever before my mind, urging me to do right for his sake. Not that for one instant Dick had allowed me to take the blame for our troubles without a protest, but I knew it was true—hat but for me, Dick would have been an honored young man.

A NEW HOME—A NEW LIFE

Mother received us joyfully. Dick was to remain with us over Sunday, then go to Lansing and take the position at the bank. It was Friday when we arrived at Holden, my mother's home. So we had all day Saturday and Sunday to talk things over with her.

Our spirits had risen every mile that brought us nearer her, and when that night we gathered around the dinner table we were almost gay. I spoke of it. Mother said:

"The past, what has been done, is over with. You can undo nothing. But the future is yours to make what you will. Your debts must be paid as quickly as possible. Then you can forget all that has been done."

WOMAN TO WEAR BRIGHTEST HUES

Brightest colors will adorn the woman of style this summer. A harlequin style with half of the dress of one color and the other half another, with cubist designs in huge circles and triangles will be prominent, according to the first announcement of Summer styles. And, oh yes—the announcement states that "hats are to be of the merry widow size."

so unpleasant in the past in a happy future.

"Please God!" Dick murmured. "Yes, dear son, please God!" Junior was delighted with everything. Here he could go out and play whenever he wished. In Holden everyone, even the very poor, had yards. Mother's was nicely fenced in so that he was in no danger from passing motor cars. He shouted with glee when he found he was to be allowed so much freedom. He said to Mother: "I loves you, and I loves your out doors."

"Isn't my out doors like New York?" she asked, to see what he would say.

"Oh, no! Why Grandma, New York out of doors is all stone, thinking of the sidewalks and streets of the city."

"It's only natural that he should like to run about by himself or with other children," Mother said. He had already an in-between-the-fence-picket acquainted with the little boy next door.

Mother insisted we get well rested, for she knew we needed to badly.

"You both look very tired—Dick even more than you, Nan," she said.

Things will look brighter when you are thoroughly rested in body. Our minds are always affected by our physical condition."

On Sunday we went to church and sat in the old pew where as a child I had sat with Father and Mother. Junior never had been in a church before, but Mother insisted he was old enough to attend services. He was as good as gold, although I had been afraid he would talk up loud or do something else to shock the staid village people.

Monday morning Dick left us. Except when his father died he never had been separated since we had been married. I felt rather teary, but wouldn't let him see me cry. He was getting very small pay compared to what he had been getting in New York. He was to have the same that B'ke and Ogden had paid him when we were first married. It might be years before he could command anywhere near what he had been getting the last year with them.

But strangely, we neither of us seemed to think of this, anyway did not mention it. To have come through at all was more than I had any right to expect. To have another chance to make good, seemed to fill Dick's mind.

Then after he left I had a long talk with mother in which I unfolded a plan which had come to me while talking with Mrs. Gray.

CANADIAN IRON PRODUCTS IN DEMAND IN WEST INDIES.
The products of Canadian iron works are in demand in Caribbean colonies, according to information reaching the Department of Trade and Commerce. The demand for iron products is a notable feature of the growing trade between Canada and the British West Indies. Iron pipes for water and gas supplies and hoops and puncheons, which were formerly imported from Great Britain, are now being purchased from Canada. Factories in Canada are supplying stills for the manufacture of rum. Canadian cement also figures largely among the articles imported.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It kills right from the start and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugist, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly Pinex relieves every kind of cough, soothes the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.
