British Film— "Scarlet Pimpernel" At Prince Edward

A young British actor making a sensational film debut in "The Return of the Scarlet Pimpernel," a new London Film production which is showing this week at the Prince Edward Theatre.

He is Barry K. Barnes, who has the unenviable task of portraying Sir Percy Blakeney, a role brilliantly created on the screen by Leslie Howard.

Despite this handicap Barnes puts up a magnificent performance and there is no doubt that he is a discovery of first class importance. Only 26 years of age, Barnes has the technique of a man twice as old.

The film, as the title implies, is a further chapter in the adventures of the man who struck terror into the hearts of men of terror—"that demned elusive Pimpernel." And this sequel is even more thrilling than the excellent Howard version.

Familiar Character

Nearly everyone is familiar with the Baroness Orczy character, the English dandy who devoted his life to the rescue of innocent victims of the French Revolution.

"The Return of the Scarlet Pimpernel" takes up the story at the point where the identity of the Pimpernel is known to the tyrant Robespierre and his chief of police, Chauvelin. But even this knowledge does not prevent the audacious Sir Percy from rescuing victims from under the very shadow of the guillotine.

In an effort to trap the Pimpernel, Chauvelin kidnaps the beautiful Lady Blakeney, imprisoning her in Paris. Sir Percy follows, and, greatly daring, effects her rescue, but is then himself foiled by foxy Chalvelin.

Thrilling Climax

With Lady Blakeney recaptured and facing execution within a few days, Blakeney engineers a coup which, in a thrilling climax, results in the downfall of the regime of tyranny, the capture of Chauvelin, and above all, the rescue of his adored wife.

The colourful exciting story, the romantic charm of Barry K. Barnes, the soft beauty of Sophie Stewart, and the exce.lence of the supporting players, Margaretta Scott, James Mason, Francis Lister and Anthony Bushell, make "The Return of the Scarlet Pimpernel" a memorable evening's entertainment.

Buck Jones At The Capitol

Hollywood's No 1 cowboy star, two-fisted Buck Jones, takes over the screen of the Capitol Theatre this week end with the initial showing of Columbia's new action drama, "Headin' East".

The picture, a slight departure from the type of story Buck usually makes, is both timely and highly entertaining, dealing as it does with racketeering and the so-called "protective associations" which yearly blik merchants and farmers of millions.

In "Headin' East", Buck Jones portrays a hell-bent-for - leather cowboy whose father has forsaken roundups and rodeos for the more lucrative business of lettuce growing. Lucrative,that is, until racketeers at the New York wholesale markets begin destroying his shipments.

Buck undertakes to solve his father's problems with a first hand visit to the Eastern metropolis. He encounters the gangsters, and, with a neat bit of undercover work, discovers they are working for a prominent attorney, enacted by Don Douglas. Both Buck and Don fall in love with Ruth Coleman, lovely titian-haired beauty, cast as the daughter of a respected business man. The latter's business, linked with that of Buck's dad, is speedily being ruined.

Douglas, aflame with jealousy and angered over Buck's interference, turns Ruth and her father against the cowboy. All of which plunges the story into one of the most exciting climaxes ever filmed.

Featured in the supporting cast of Buck's new picture, in addition to Miss Coleman and Douglas, are Shemp Howard, Earl Hodgins, Elaine Arden, Frank Faylen, Al Herman, Harry Lash and a score of others.

Temperature was 53 degrees. For a short period before noon the sun shone brightly as the wind shifted to the west. It began to snow at noon while the temperature dropped to 18 above zero. Last night a blustery wind from the north piled the light snowfall in drifts.

HEAVY ICE DELAYS FERRY—First heavy ice conditions in Northumberland Strait this winter delayed the S. S, Charlottetown three hours on the evening crossing from the mainland to this Province yesterday. The boat docked at Borden at 7.12 last night. She was due at 4 o'clock. High wind from the west was held responsible for closely packing drift ice making it difficult for even the powerful icebreaking ferry to smash a path through. The mainland train arrived here at 9.30 three hours and ten minutes late.

The gifts were opened by Mrs. Allison MacLeod while the accompanying verses were read by Miss Ruby Campbell. The gifts were presented to the bride and groom by Miss Hazel Carr and were nicely arranged by Miss Ruth Paynter. Mr. MacLeod on behalf of himself and his bride thanked their many friends for their kindness, after which all joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." A dainty lunch was served by the ladies and the remainder of the evening was spent in social intercourse.

Dr. Croteau dealt with the cooperative movement and stressed particularly the necessity for adult-education through Study Clubs meeting once a week in small groups and monthly meetings of leaders and others in which all the smaller clubs would be represented. All this Study Club work is encouraged and helped by the Adult Education League of which Dr. Croteau is President. Mr. Chandler stressed the need for cooperative effort to lift agricultural communities out of the present depression and make for better citizenship. The Carnegie Library is ever ready to help by lending books on any subject in which Study Clubs are interested.

Local Pythians Observe Natal Day Of Order

February 19th., being the seventy fifth natal day of the Order of the Knights of Pythias, Empire Lodge No. 19 of Charlottetown took the opportunity on Thursday evening, their regular night of convention, to celebrate the occasion by inviting the Pythian Sisters and friends of both orders to an open social evening.

Mr. Lloyd Yeo, Chancellor Commander, in his opening remarks said in part: "It is a privilege to have the honor of welcoming such a fine gathering of Sisters and friends to our Castle to commemorate the Natal Day of this great order.

"There is much that one could tell about our Order—how it was founded in the City of Washington, February 19, 1864—the way it appeals to the high and the low—and strikes the chord of human sympathy found in all who do not live for self alone. I will not, however, bore you with historical accomplishments and aims of the Order, for I wish to be concise in my remarks.

"There is no member present happier than I to have the pleasure of entertaining, for a short time, the members of our Sister Lodge. It is my belief that we do not co-operate as much in our work as we should and I trust this social evening will be but the first of many such socially enjoyable events."

Mr. William Warren acting as master of ceremonies announced that the program for the evening would be divided into two parts, the first part consisting of songs, readings, etc., and the second part of cards.

Mr. Warren then introduced the entertainers in turn who rendered the following thoroughly enjoyable program:—

Saxophone Duet, Messrs. Reg. and Chas. McGregor, accompanied by Mr. Alex McLean, "Evening Star"—Wagner; "Mighty Like A Rose,"—Nevin.

Duet, Misses Pearl and Margaret Rowe, "Drifting and Dreaming"; "Hand Me Down My Walking Cane".

Piano Solo, Prof. Roy Kendall,—Waltz—Chopin.

Recitation, Mr. Geo. Beers—"The Dandy Fifth".

Reading, Margaret Rowe—"Six Little Bottles".

Guitar Solo, Miss Jean Crockett —"Home On The Range."

Piano Solo, Mr. Alex McLean—"Moonlight Sonata"—Beethoven.

Following this delightful program two hours were spent at bridge and auction forty fives, after which a buffet luncheon was served.

A rousing "sing song" closed the festivities at the witching hour of midnight when the large number of visitors present voted the evening an unqualified success.

Funeral Yesterday Of Rev. J. M. MacLeod From Trinity Church

Funeral of Rev. John Matheson MacLeod was held yesterday afternoon from Trinity United Church. Rev. Mr. MacLeod died Wednesday, aged 79.

The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. Hugh Miller, pastor of Trinity Church. Rev. G. Carlyle Webster, Charlottetown, president of the Prince Edward Island Ministerial Association, read the scripture lesson, Rev. L. E. G. Davies, Summerside, led in prayer, while Rev. John Stirling, Georgetown, P. E. I., pronounced the benediction. Rev. E. R. Woodside, Cornwall, P. E. I., Chairman of the Presbytery, presided.

The hymns, "The Lord's My Shepherd," and "Now the Labourer's Task Is O'er" were sung by the choir, and G. Elmer Ritchie sang the beautiful solo, "Crossing the Bar."

At the close of the service the Dead March was played by the organist, Professor Kendall.

The following tribute was paid the late Rev. J. M. MacLeod by Rev. Hugh Miller.

Recently a member of this congregation, referring to our departed friend, remarked that several years ago he paid tribute to a brother Minister with the words: "Know ye not that there is a great man fallen this day in Israel", and then, she added, it would be appropriate for the words to be applied to himself by him, who would pay tribute to him on this occasion. I believe that we all feel the appropriateness of these words, yet I am convinced that they would not meet with his approval. His humility would protest. Generous in his praise to others, he never sought praise for himself.

The Reverend John Matheson MacLeod, M. A., was outstanding in many ways. He possessed unusual gifts of head and heart. He was blessed with a Godly home and wise parents, to whom he owed much and he acknowledged his debt. Early he heard and obeyed the call to the Ministry of the Gospel and diligently prepared himself for his high calling, which he was permitted to adorn, for a half century, with distinction His academic training was thorough, first at Prince of Wales then at Dalhousie University and lastly at Princeton Theological College, on whose staff were several of the greatest teachers and leaders of the Church. As a student, he ranked with the leaders and won several awards of merit. Throughout his ministry he was a diligent student. His clear grasp of truth and his retentive memory enabled him to make the best use of all that came to him, in his preaching and teaching. It was always a delight to him to assist young students in their studies and many profited from his instructions.

An Outstanding Minister

As a Minister of the Gospel, he was outstanding. Without reserve, he gave himself to preaching the Word and shepherding his flock. His sermons, diligently prepared, were true to the revelation of God in Christ, evangelical in spirit, enriched with his own Christian experience. With innate dignity and reverence, he exalted his office and never stooped to the trifling and sensational. He loved to preach and his people loved to listen and they were greatly profited. His prayers always appealed to me as exceptional. Opening with a few sentences of adoration he contritely approached the throne of grace with confession; then thanksgiving, followed by claiming all the promises of God's mercy and grace for himself and all others, in all lands. For years, he was Minister of New Mills, in the Presbytery of Miramichi,, New Brunswick. A few years after the close of his ministry there, I was called to a neighbouring congregation. It was there that I first came to know him, as I came to know many of his former parishoners. I do not think I exaggerate when I say that I believe no Minister of any church was more highly respected and honored for his own sake, for his work in the pulpit and in the homes of his people. It has been my privilege to return to that district the past sixteen years and on every occasion, they affectionately enquire for their former Minister and repeatedly express their high regard for himself and his work. I believe the same may be said of every congregation he served. There are many to-day, some advanced in years, who consider it one of the great privileges of life to have been one of his flock. Those of us who knew him and his ministry, will be satisfied when our work is over, if our ministry shares a goodly portion of his spirit, devotion and affection.

He was equally efficient as Presbyter and Churchman. Probably, as such his gifts of discernment and judgment were specially evident. Early in his ministry, he was elected to positions of trust in the Courts of the Church. For years, he was Clerk of his Presbytery and he served on many committees in that and the higher Courts of the Church. To an unusual degree, he possessed the gifts of admiration and reconciliation. Peace and harmony prevailed in all his congregations as well as the Courts of the Church over which he presided. He was elected Moderator of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church. He always supported every cause for the moral betterment of society. In his pulpit and on Commissions, he gave strength and leadership to the cause of temperance. Since his retirement, he continued his interest in his work and gladly assisted his brethren whenever possible. At the time of his death he was an office bearer in his Presbytery.

Friend And Counsellor

When we think of him as friend and counsellor, our feelings are most deeply touched and our sense of loss greatest. His gift for friendship, unusual judgment, sense of humor and charity endeared him to all classes and creeds. What he and his home have meant to me since I came to this Church, I am unable to express. Increasingly I valued his friendship and fellowship. I speak with a poignant sense of loss. Suddenly, shadow rested on his home, so happy and hospitable, and he prepared for eventualities. We pay our tribute and remember her dearest to him that she may be comforted and sustained in her suffering and sorrow. "Well done, thou good and faithful servant". Farewell!

DUNNING AND STEVENS CLASH OVER CURRENCY

OTTAWA, Feb. 16—(CP)—Canadian currency is not and should not be tied to any other world currency, Finance Minister Dunning told the House of Commons today as he emphatically denied a suggestion it was tied to the United States dollar and rejected a proposal it should be tied to the pound sterling.

The Minister, showing the effects of his recent illness, as he carried on an afternoon-long discussion with Opposition members on monetary policy, put off until another day further consideration of his bill to authorize the Government to borrow $750,000,000 for refunding and general governmental purposes. He said he did not want to return to the House tonight.

Hon. H. H. Stevens (Con. Kootenay East) said exchange rates in recent months indicated the Canadian dollar was tied to the American. It had not declined with the decline in the pound sterling. As Canadian producers suffered from the decline of the pound sterling he suggested the dollar should be tied to that currency.

Mr. Dunning said there was a great difference between a $4.70 pound now and a $3.20 pound as in 1931. If the pound declined again as in 1931 the Government would have to take account of the situation. But to tie the dollar to the pound would raise a new protective barrier around Canada and increase the cost of all consumer goods.

The Minister confirmed his earlier intimation that officials of the Bank of Canada would come before the banking and commerce committee for a discussion of monetary policy, with members of the House. He was looking forward to this, he said as it would permit members who had ideas to examine them in the light of the information the bank officials would be able to furnish.

In this category he included social credit members and Walter Tucker (Lib. Rosthern) who spoke today urging an increase in the amount of currency in circulation in place of Government borrowing.

The management of currency presented difficulties to financial authorities never experienced in the days of the gold standard, Mr. Dunning admitted, adding he could not find monetary problems as simple as they appeared to some members.

No domestic monetary question could be settled without a careful consideration of the international exchange situation and the policies of other countries. The people managing currencies in other countries today might not be the same six months from now.

Speaking directly to the social credit group he said: "monetary management in this country alone, along with any line very much more radical than that now pursued, creates a welter of problems because the monetary management of countries with which Canada must do business is not carried on along the same lines."

Within the past five years, said Mr. Dunning, Canada's indebtedness outside the country, governmental and otherwise had been reduced by $524,000,000 and 75 per cent of the funded governmental debt was now payable in Canada.

This was in reply to Mr. Stevens suggestion Canada had overborrowed from the United States. Mr. Dunning agreed it would be unwise to borrow much more in that country but said there was not means of separating the debt due in the United States from the general international indebtedness.

A moderate increase in the amount of currency in circulation and greater use of treasury bills were suggestions offered by Mr. Stevens. He agreed that present government had greatly increased the use of treasury bills and thought it could go further still. He also wondered if the government was considering borrowing in the United Kingdom and thought a settlement of the Grand Trunk Securities dispute would help to open up sources of credit there.

As soon as the financial situation permitted, Mr. Dunning thought the government should adopt a sinking fund policy. He would not like, however, to be in the position of some governments which now had sinking funds and be forced to ask parliament to suspend payments into the fund.

Mr. Stevens began his questioning of the proposal to authorize the government to borrow by protesting against any pre-election public works program and the supplementary estimates should be before the House before authority was given to borrow.

Mr. Dunning agreed to hold up the borrowing bill pending the submission of the supplementary estimates if this was the general wish of the opposition.

New Speaker New Brunswick Legislature

FREDERICTON, N. B., Feb. 16—Hon. Charles Hanford Blakeney of Moncton was appointed new speaker of the House when the New Brunswick legislature opened here today. Hon. Mr. Blakeney succeeds H. F. G. Bridges who resigned since the last session.

Hon. Mr. Blakeney was born at Moncton, December 2, 1888. He served several terms on the Moncton City Council and was Mayor in 1929 and again from 1931 to 1934. He is a member of the Moncton Rotary and Canadian clubs and was president of the Maritime Board of Trade in 1926.

HON. C. H. BLAKENEY

He was elected to the N. B. legislature in the general elections of 1935.

Mr. Blakeney's first employment was in the composing room of the Moncton Transcript and after serving his apprenticeship became an operator on one of the old monoline type-setting machines. A few years later he secured a similar position with the Moncton Times. For six years he worked on the monoline machines.

Having saved some money he entered Mount Allison Academy in Sackville, N. B., and graduated the following year. He entered Mount Allison University in 1911 and received his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1915. While at College he worked at odd jobs for part of his tuition fees. He was president of the Maritime Intercollegiate Championship debating team two years in succession, and was Editor-in-Chief of the Mount Allison Argosy. It can truly be said of Mr. Blakeney that he worked his way through college, because from the time he entered Mount Allison Academy until he finished with his B. A. degree from Mount Allison University he did not receive five cents that was unearned.

He had entered college for the purpose of studying law and was articled with Senator C. W. Robinson ,but after leaving college he was persuaded to enter business with his father and in 1915 Blakeney and Son Ltd., was formed.

In his first year in business, Mr. Blakeney became part owner and Editor of the Busy East, which he edited for a year.

In Memoriam

MR. W. J. POWERS

Funeral services for W. J. Powers were held Saturday morning at St. Charles Catholic Church, Whitefish, Montana, and were attended by friends from all parts of the state. The church was filled to capacity.

Rev. Father J. P. O'Shea celebrated requiem mass and at the close spoke briefly of the many good qualities of "Billie Powers," who, he said, had lived an honorable honest life and was ever considerate of others. "For almost 40 years," Father O'Shea said, "he had helped in the building of one of the greatest transport companies of the United States, and had served with the same honesty of purpose in his work he did as a state employee."

Father O'Shea said that during the service Saturday morning all activities at the state capitol stopped for three minutes of silence in honor of Mr. Powers. He had been a faithful communicant of the church, Father O'Shea continued and "we who knew him rejoice that he is now receiving his reward for years of service."

The singing of the choir during the mass and in the other music was a beautiful part of the service. Floral tributes came from friends all over Montana.

The casket was borne by old friends: William Ferguson, H. B. Markus, F. H. Sullivan, Pat Timmons, Claude Britell, all of Whitefish, and Maudice S. Hurley of Spokane. Interment was in the city cemetery.

William J. Powers was born in Fort Augustus, Prince Edward Island, December 22, 1884. His first work with the Great Northern was at Kalispell, November 1, 1901. He served as carpenter, brakeman and for many years as a conducter, and it was while working in that capacity that he met with an accident which terminated his work with the railroad. For a number of years he served as safety appliance inspector for the state railroad and public service commission, and while thus employed he died of a heart attack in the commission offices.

He and his family have resided in Whitefish since the division point was changed to Whitefish, and only recently completed one of the most attractive residences in the community.

He is survived by his widow, Eva Tennison Powers: two daughters, Miss Alice, who is attending St. Catherine's college, St. Paul, and June, who is a student at Whitefish high school. There are three brothers, Martin of Swalwell, Canada and James and Ernest of Whitefish: and four sisters, Mrs. John Duffy, Vancouver, Wash, Mrs. Wm. Curran, Kalispell, Mrs. Gene Vederine and Mrs. Mayme Barkved of Whitefish.

HE RELATES T. B. TO DELINQUENCY

MONTREAL, Feb. 13—(CP)—Alderman J. Alex Edmison believes there may be a link between tuberculosis and deliquency. In an address the alderman referred to a health department map showing his ward, St. George's, and adjoining St. Lawrence both had annually 95 or more deaths per 100,000 population. The same wards also were among the greatest contributors to juvenile courts, reform schools, penitentiaries and jails. Edmison suggested it would be a good idea for service clubs to find out if there were any reason for the coincidence and if so try to remedy it.
