ASHES OF LIGHTING

either day with this ungodly twilit sort of menace. It's beastly—unclean.
"The leprosy, sir," Captain Callthrop made a forthright reply, "that laid all Europe low. Science has to tackle it here. A filthy job, I admit, but so necessary!"
The General Officer Commanding looked at the quiet, pleasant-faced captain.

"Thank you, Callthrop," he said decisively, "for that. You are quite right. It is a necessary duty to civilization." He looked at his watch. "Well, it's time to interview you, prickly sergeant from Libya. I wonder if he'll throw any light on the matter? Pity Moreton can't be present. I hope!"
"Yes, sir. Enlargements of Press photographs taken at the Tractor Corporation's annual sports—five excellent portraits of Hector, Fitzagan, machine-shop superintendent."
"Wonder if the real Flanagan will recognize the false," the General grunted. "However, let's get to work!" (To Be Continued)

BUDGET SPEECH BY HON. M. R. MCGUIGAN

Speech on the Budget in the Legislature by Hon. M. R. McGuigan, continued from yesterday's Guardian.
Reviewing education, he said the Government must credit with having increased teachers' training, increased salaries to teachers on a sliding scale, reduced the price of school readers, given a direct loan of $100 to those taking teachers' training and established high schools at Montague, Kinkora and Souris. The agreement with Summerside to pay teachers salaries to the higher grades could not be continued in fairness to the other high school districts. The school trustees' agreement was on the statute books, it would not necessarily bind the Government.
Mr. E. H. Strong asked if it was not possible to arrange for a delegation from the Summerside Board of School Trustees to wait on the Government on this matter. He had a lot of correspondence which he could submit, but he did not wish to take up the time of the House.
Mr. McGuigan: "We passed the statute two years ago. I don't see any advantage in discussing it. Why should we pay the whole salaries to the teachers of Summerside and refuse to pay the teachers of the other high schools?"
Mr. Strong: "It is on the same principle that you pay the teachers of Prince of Wales College. The high school in Summerside is undertaken merely to make those advantages available in Prince County. There was a large amount spent on that school which otherwise would never have been spent. To provide those 11 and 12 grades. It was only done on agreement with the responsible ministers of the Crown. That agreement was carried out for a number of years and suddenly it was thrown back on the town to pay these fees. That was not fair."
Mr. McGuigan: "My hon. friend is wrong. He suggests that they wanted to be placed on the same footing as Charlottetown, but that is not so. A student in Charlottetown attending Prince of Wales College has to pay $90 in fees, and Summerside does not want to pay agreement with the hon. member from Cardigan (Mr. McPhee) as to the importance of both classical and technical education. He also agreed that it was not desirable to get someone from some other Province to take over our educational problems.

He noted that the Farmers' Federation had asked for larger administrative units. They had made the same request last year. The School Act, he said, "is now worded so that they can establish larger administrative units. If they represent the farmers, and the farmers are in favor of this movement, why are they not making arrangements to take on large administrative units? It is all very well to say, 'Why does not the Government do it?' I think that would be the way to kill a movement of this kind. What we want is an experiment with I am not so sure that larger administrative units would cure all our problems, but that as it may be expected to get active cooperation from the farmers in a matter of this kind."
Mr. McGuigan cited the experiment in consolidation at Annandale in the case of grades 9 and 10. That seemed to be working well. He also enumerated the advantages of consolidation from the standpoint of efficiency and economy. The small school, he believed, was satisfactory up to grade 8.
"I think in educational reform we shall have to commence with the district," Mr. McGuigan said. "If the men are not making good progress, turn it over to the women. With good live school boards in each district we would make some progress. A lot of the trouble is due to the fact that the trustees are no good. I wish we had, not so bad, after all."
Mr. McGuigan: "I agree with you, Mr. Strong. I am inclined to agree in this matter with the leader of the Opposition, that in the primary grades our educational system is not so bad, after all."
Continuing, he emphasized the importance of a conference to be held shortly at Ottawa, at which representatives of the Dominion and all the Provinces will take into consideration a new Dominion-provincial setup for the post-war period. He reviewed in this connection the provisions of the Rowall-Sirois report.
Mr. Heath Strong: "There will be matters of national adjustment to be taken up at this conference. I wish to draw attention to the Succession Duties Act. Ours is higher than the Dominion's. I think there should be one tax and that the Dominion Government should pay an adjustment in lieu thereof."
Mr. McGuigan: "I agree with what my hon. friend has said. I intend to go into that matter."

ADMIRAL'S CHAUFFEUR
A Wren whose feet shook as from nervousness that she found driving Vice-Admiral Percy Nelson a difficult task at first has arrived at a British port to carry on the job as a petty officer. She is Petty Officer Betty Allen, of Winnipeg, who was chosen to drive Admiral Nelson last November. When she was transferred overseas as senior Canadian flag officer, it was decided that she should also be sent over as his driver.
GRILLS AND GROUCHES
Doing light housekeeping and cooking on a grill is very easy. It takes imagination and ingenuity to contrive exciting meals that can be cooked on one or two burners. Try cooking several vegetables together for interesting flavor. For instance, mash together pointed and turnips, or carrots and turnips. Make the bottom of the double boiler do the vegetables and the top do a pudding. Save the vegetable water for gravy, too. Don't let the size of your "grill" get you down.
