Pilchard Movements Puzzle Fishermen

Pilchards apparently still pursue their puzzling ways. Reports came in some time ago that schools of immature pilchards and some anchovies, were present in British Columbia and substantial landings were made but August came along —the usual time for mature pilchards to put in an appearance in Canadian waters —without scouting fishermen being able to locate any big run. Perhaps the pilchards are going to show the same elusive behaviour in 1940 that they showed in 1939 when they were not found in British Columbia waters in any large numbers, although substantial quantities of them were taken by Canadian and United States fishermen off the coast of the States of Washington. Or perhaps before this little story has seen print they will have been found off British Columbia in the great quantities in which they often visited the coast.

Meantime, British Columbia pilchard seiners have been taking fairly substantial catches in extra-territorial waters off Washington. Up to a date in early August Canadian fishermen had landed more than 7,900 tons of mature pilchards from these waters. In addition, over 1,700 tons of young pilchards and anchovies from the same areas had been processed by British Columbia reduction plants.

Most of the catch of pilchards, of course, is used in making fish meal and oil, though some of the fish are canned. In 1938, for instance, when British Columbia pilchard fishermen made a large catch — more than 103,500,000 pounds —the provincial output of oil made from the fish was nearly 2,196,000 gallons and the output of meal ran almost to 8,900 tons. Last year when the fish were so elusive the pilchard reduction plants turned out less than 179,000 gallons of oil and only slightly more than 900 tons of meal.

Pilchards have always shown themselves among the most fickle fish occurring in Canadian waters. Their probable whereabouts are often quite a problem for the fishermen. Sometimes they come along off the British Columbia coast in very large numbers. Pilchards, by the way, do not occur on the fishing grounds of any Canadian province except British Columbia. In other years diligent scouting by pilchard seine boats fails to locate more than comparatively few of them. This latter condition does not necessarily mean of course, that the pilchards aren't off the coast, possibly it means that they've altered their route a bit and the seiners haven't happened along to the right spot at the right time.

Urguay's first case under its new law against Illegal Associations was the protest of the Italian Consulate against remarks made about Italy by a local radio station.

FINANCE

By Frederick Gardner
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—(AP)—Rails and steels followed the lead of chemicals today in a late advance which carried the whole stock market higher.

Distillers Seagram, International Nickel, Bell Telephone and Lake Shore Mines, in the Canadian group, advanced to better levels. Hollinger, Imperial Oil and Massey Harris were easy.

The Associated Press average of 60 selected stocks rose 3 of a point to 45.4. It was the fourth consecutive rising session. Transactions totalled 796,900 shares compared with 807,100 yesterday. Nearly half the total action occurred in the final hour.

Leaders in the stock upturn were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Crucible Steel, Chrysler, Case, Owens-Illinois, Allied Chemical, Dow Chemical, Union Carbide, Johns-Manville, Phelps Dodge, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, Pennsylvania Railroad, Cerro de Pasco and Electric Boat.

BATTERED PLANE MAKES HOME PORT

LONDON, Oct. 1—(CP)—The captain of one of Britain's bombers tells of how he brought his battered plane safely home from a raid on Hamburg docks despite a shell through the oil tank on the port wing.

He said he circled the docks area three times before dropping his cargo of "eggs." Immediately there was a tremendous barrage. "We got a direct hit on the port wing," he related. "One shell went right through the oil tanks and at the same time another hit our tail."

He said he expected the port engine to fail but it didn't faulter all the way back, and the plane landed safely despite a terrific electric storm near its home basis.

The measure would apply to all ships except those for which construction or operating subsidies were made under the 1936 merchant marine act.

Great Need For Missionary Zeal

WINNIPEG, Oct. 1.—Lack of zeal for the missionary and service work of the church is due chiefly to lack of knowledge about it, and about its needs, stated a report brought to the Ninth General Council of the United Church of Canada, by a "Committee on the Finances of the Church."

"Pertinent evangelism and pertinent education" are the chief needs of the church and her cause today, the report stated, recommending some changes in the set-up of the Missionary and Maintenance Committee.

Establishment of a Missionary and Maintenance Cabinet responsible for the operation of the unified plan of finances and the promotion of its interests was recommended. There should be no change in the budget system of the church, it was advised.

In their report the Committee on Finances paid tribute to the loyalty of many laymen and ministers in the church, but said also that "much of the difficulty in securing adequate support for missionary and maintenance enterprises is due to a lack of sufficient effort on the part of some ministers and official boards of local charges."

The Committee, in its survey, discovered that there was not enough co-operation or co-ordination of effort by the various boards and departments of the church in promoting the interests of the budget in initiating plans and in developing the whole work of the church.

Deficit in the Missionary and Maintenance Fund still amounts to $1,703,688, but there is no justification for exaggerating the significance of this fact, the Committee stated.

"For a church with assets of $13,000,000 this does not seem to be a colossal debt threatening bankruptcy especially when at the end of 1939 none of it was borrowed from without, but the whole amount was borrowed from other funds within the church itself to the mutual advantage as to interest rate of both borrower and lender." Yet the deficit cannot be ignored. It is a debt to be paid.

The Committee went on to state: "We cannot regard our position with anything like satisfaction or equanimity. There is no need for hysteria or despair about it, but there is need for serious consideration and determined effort to improve it."

Declining contributions to the church were blamed on general economic conditions, lack of spiritual interest in the church, flaws in organization and lack of enthusiasm on the part of some of the ministers and official boards.

Members of the Committee on the Finances of the Church were: Chairman, Rev. W. J. Gallagher; Rev. Henry Mick; Rev. E. Crossley Hunter; Rev. W. H. Sedgewick; Rev. George Telford; Rev. Gordon A. Sisco; Rev. Robert Laird; Mr. J. J. Gibson; Mr. C. E. Abbs; Mr. Elmer Davis; Mr. Guy Tombs; Mr. Morgan Crockford and Mr. Russell W. Treleaven, K.C.
