HOUSE DEBATES

provinces, was launched shortly after the war.

Canada operated under a federal scheme, Mr. Bennett reminded the House, and provinces had definite rights. "They will not submit, especially the older ones, to having their rights taken away from them and administered by someone else."

During the last two or three years, some rich provinces, like Ontario, had financed large public works programmes, said the Prime Minister. Ontario, Quebec and other provinces would not submit to a federal commission telling them where and when they could spend their money.

There were few abuses found in the spending of unemployment relief money, said the Prime Minister. The Dominion had demanded certificates and auditor's statements from provinces and municipalities before money was paid. Every care had been taken to prevent fraud and misappropriation.

Regarding the Liberal leader's suggestion for a national commission, Mr. Bennett said local officers knew local conditions better than outsiders.

Mr. King interrupted to say the commission only would co-operate with the provinces in an attempt to correlate the work in an advisory capacity.

"No commission, no matter how well informed, could be as fully informed as the provincial government itself," replied the Prime Minister.

Under the government's unemployment relief scheme, continued Mr. Bennett, the older and richer provinces like Ontario had spent more money relatively and received more from the Dominion than the others because their municipalities were able to help out.

Although a large number of public works had been started all over the country through the relief scheme, no general housing plan was possible because of falling revenues.

The $40,000,000 public works programme started last year had had a very beneficial effect. A housing scheme presented different problems if it involved co-operation of individuals who resented being asked to spend any definite sum of money on their own properties.

The existence of slum conditions, particularly in a young country like Canada, was a reflection on civilization. Slums seemed to grow up in every city.

It was not the function of a national government to erect houses in cities. So far as schemes could be made self-liquidating it would be proper for the Federal Government to make money available at low rates of interest to the local authorities.

There was also a class of non-self-liquidating houses which might be provided for people whose wages did not enable them to pay an economic rent. There were many such people with wages at their present levels.

Mr. Bennett said he would propose the question be referred either to the banking committee or to a special committee of the House with instructions to draw up a set of proposals dealing with housing. He asked Mr. Church to withdraw his motion and promised to submit a government motion to send the question to a committee.

Mr. Church withdrew the motion.

and Japanese commanders at Kalgan, which bestrides the great caravan route from Russia to China about 80 miles southwest of the battle zone. The latter extended southward from Kuyuan to Tuhsikou.

Reports received here said the military agreement had been formally approved by the Nanking Government.

Fighting ceased shortly after nightfall Thursday when Chinese troops were still trying to hold their positions near Tuhsikou and prevent the Japanese war machine from thrusting further southwestward and invading Kalgan.

(In a copyrighted despatch the Associated Press reported further Japanese bombing raids along the border Thursday and that a fleet of armored cars also was reported cruising about the Chahar plains near Tuhsikou and Kuyuan. Japanese military forces, it added, denied further bombings, asserting "the desired conditions within the disputed area have been accomplished.")

Hostilities, which began on Tuesday when combined Japanese and Manchoukuoan forces numbering about 3,000 men launched an onslaught on the Chinese, were called off to permit Gen. Sung Chen-Yuan, Chinese commander, and Gen. Sukishara, leader of the Japanese offensive, to discuss peace terms at Kalgan.

General headquarters of the Japanese Kwantung army (the Japanese army on the mainland of Asia) reported that only one Japanese non-commissioned officer had been killed and one captain and four privates wounded in the fighting in which tanks, heavy artillery and planes were used by the Japanese.

Chinese semi-official sources here reported that 50 civilians had been killed and an undetermined number wounded by artillery fire and bombs dropped from Japanese planes in an aerial offensive that preceded the advance from Jehol, Manchoukuo, across the great Khingan Mountains into Chahar.

The number of Chinese soldiers killed was not learned, but Japanese headquarters reported the retreating Chinese, who put up a stiff battle, had left many dead.

Kwantung army headquarters reported one of the aeroplane bombs had scored a direct hit on the headquarters of the Chinese army, where Gen. Sung's staff was quartered. Several persons were believed killed by the explosion.

The fighting which preceded the truce left towns in the disputed territory along the frontier partly demolished by shell fire and bombs.

Japan cited refusal by the Chinese commander to withdraw his troops from the demilitarized zone established on the Chahar-Jehol border, violating the agreement which concluded the Jehol campaign last year, as the reason for her offensive. Chinese circles here, however, claimed Kuyuan and Tuhsikou were outside the limits of the demilitarized zone.

GOOSE IS SHOT BANDED IN 1920

KINGSVILLE, Ont., Jan. 24—(CP)—Jack Miner, noted bird sanctuary owner, has received a letter from Russell Keith of Grand Tower, Ill., advising him of the shooting Jan. 5 at Horse Shoe Lake, Ill., of a goose bearing two leg bands with Miner's address.

The bird, the bands showed, had been captured and banded first in the spring of 1920 and rebanded in the autumn of 1931. Miner said the incident caused him to wonder how long the bird would have lived and carried the band had it not been shot.

NEED HIGHER QUALITY

OTTAWA, Jan. 24—(CP)—Increase of quality rather than quantity is the need of the poultry industry for 1935, the Dominion Department of Agriculture states in its publication, "Agricultural Situation and Outlook." The opportunity for Canadian poultry products exported to the United Kingdom stands second only to that for bacon, the department says, predicting that the farm poultry flock will be a steady and reliable source of income for the Canadian farmer in 1935.

enter the United States? A. Summer time, 1923.

Q. You boarded a steamer did you not, as a stowaway? A. I did.

Q. Came to America and you were discovered on board the ship, were you? A. Yes.

Q. And returned to Germany? A. Yes.

Q. When did you next attempt to enter the United States? A. I guess it was August, the same year.

Q. You were caught again, were you? A. Yes.

Q. When was the third time? A. In November, the same year.

Q. Were you successful that year? A. Yes.

During 1928 and 1929 he also worked Saturdays and Sundays for some friends, and built three houses.

Q. And how much did you make on the job working overtime in your odd hours on that job of three houses? A. Oh, it was approximate one thousand dollars.

Q. And how much of that did you save? A. Well, I took some to the bank, and some of the money I always keep in the house.

Q. Was Anna working all the time until practically the birth of the baby? A. Well, she worked all the time with the exception of two times she went to Europe.

Q. How much did Anna make a week? A. She makes about $20 or $25, I guess, and about five to eight dollars tips.

Q. About $30 or $33 a week? A. Yes.

Q. Did she save most of it? A. A. Well, we kept our household from the money from my wife.

Q. Can you tell us now about how much you had in cash, just before you started for California in 1931? A. You mean by cash all the money in my possession?

Q. In the house; in the house, yes. A. Oh, in the house. It was approximate a little over $4,000.

Q. Can you remember now without referring to your bank account how much you had in the bank at that time? A. Around five—five hundred or seven hundred; I really don't know exactly how much there was.

Q. Altogether you had about $5,000, didn't you? A. I think there was more.

A man named Hans Kloepenburg accompanied the Hauptmanns to the west coast, and they were gone for three months.

In March, 1931, Hauptmann said, he bought a four-door sedan.

Q. How much did you pay for it? A. $725 in cash.

Q. And is that the car that you had when you were arrested? A. That is the car.

In Fredericksen's bakery where his wife worked he met early in 1932 a customer who worked in a Sixth Avenue employment agency, and shortly afterwards registered with the agency for employment, paying a fee of $10.

Q. Where was the first job that you got through that agency? A. That first job was Majestic Apartment.

Q. Now, do you remember what date it was in 1932 that you went to this agency? A. It was 27th of February.

Q. Now on the 28th,—what day of the week was the 27th, do you remember? A. Well, I remember 27th., was on Saturday

Q. Yes, well then, on the 29th., Monday, did you go any place looking for work as a result of being at the agency? A. No, I, on the 29th. on a Monday, in the morning, I sharpened the tools and put the tools in the car and went down to the Majestic and put the tools in the carpenter shop and I left.

Q. Now did you go back there any time after the 29th of February, to the Majestic? A. I went back on the 1st of March. I went down eight o'clock in the morning.

Q. 1932? A. Yes.

Q. And when you got down there to the place did you go to work? A. I got to see the superintendent first.

Q. Did you see him? A. I saw him. I got to wait a little while, about a half hour. Then he said he couldn't put me to work and I got to come back on the 15th of February., because he said he only hires men on the first and on the fifteenth.

Q. Now do you mean the 15th of February or the 15th of March? A. The 15th of March, I mean. Excuse me.

Q. When do you say now that you first went to work at the Majestic Apartment. A. It was the 15th.

Q. And how long did you work at the Majestic Apartment? A. I quitted on the 2nd. of April.

Q. Now, April 2nd 1932 was a Saturday, wasn't it? A. It was.

(This was the day of the ransom payment).

Q. And what time did you go to work on April 2nd? A. The usual time.

Q. What was the usual time in New York? A. I left the house at seven o'clock in the morning.

Q. And then you worked until what hour in the afternoon? A. We worked until five o'clock.

Q. Five o'clock. And the Majestic Apartment is how many miles away from your home in the Bronx approximately? A. Pretty near eight miles, I figure.

Q. Now, you heard the timekeeper Edward F. Norton from the Majestic Apartment job testify here, did you? A. I did.

Q. And did you hear him testify that you did not work on April the 2nd? A. I heard it, yes.

Q. Do you say positively that you did work on April 2nd? A. Positively.

Q. And you were paid for it? A. Paid for it.

Q. And it is a fact, isn't it, as testified to by the time-keeper that the following day was a Sunday? A. Yes,

Q. And that next day was a Monday? A. Yes.

Q. And that you did not do any work after Monday, you resigned on Monday? A. I originally resigned on Saturday; on Monday I went down to try to get my pay cheque, but I get answer I got to wait till the 15th.

Q. Now you were supposed to get a hundred dollars a month, weren't you? A. Supposed to get it.

Q. Yes. As a matter of fact all they gave you was eighty, isn't that right? A. Yes.

Q. And that is why you threw up the job, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Did you get your pay cheque on the 15th? A. I did.

Q. So that on April 2nd, 1932, you worked for the Majestic Apartments the entire day until five o'clock at night? A. Five ,o'clock, yes.

Q. And about what time, do you recollect now, if you can, did you arrive home that Saturday night, April the 2nd, 1932? A. Around six o'clock.

Q. Now, do you recall the evening of April the 2nd, 1932 after supper? A. Well, when I came home, my wife was home already and around seven o'clock Mr. Kloeppenburg came in the house because this is usual our music evening is the first Saturday in every month.

Q. Now, did anybody else come there that night? A. No, I don't think so.

Q. Do you recall a fellow—did you know a fellow named Jimmie? A. I only know him by name, Jimmie; but I don't know his regular name.

Q. Now, do you recall whether or not Jimmie was there that night? A. I really can't.

Q. Now, who was there that you recall? A. My wife, Mr. Kloeppenburg, myself of course, and about Jimmy. I am not quite sure if he was there or not.

Q. This is two and a half years ago, almost three years ago, is that right? A. Yes.

CELEBRATED GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

A very happy and enjoyable event took place at the home of Hamilton Leard, North Rustico, on the evening of Nov. 29th 1934, when upward of eighty people of the neighboring district gathered to celebrate the 50th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Levi. Leard.

Although the weather and roads were not in a very favorable condition the large number that gathered showed the respect and high esteem in which the couple are held.

Mr. Chester Woolner acted as chairman and the following programme was well carried out.

Opening chorus—"When You and I Were Young." Remarks by the Chairman. Reading by Mrs. Lorne Houston. Solo by Mr. Ewan Mac Kenzie. Reading by Miss Mabel Woolner. Chorus "Long, Long, Ago." Solo- by- Benjamin- Woolner (encored). Recitation by DeWitt Brown. Chorus "Auld Lang Syne." Reading by Mrs. Townsend McNeill. Solo by Mrs. Harry MacKenzie. Recitation "Winter Wooing" by Mrs. M. Doyle.

Mr. Oliver Bernard in his capable manner read the address and Mrs. L.A. Paynter presented them with a well filled purse. Mr. and Mrs. Laird, although taken by surprise, in a few well chosen words thanked one and all for their most generous gift.

The rest of the evening was well spent in singing, and social entertainment, and the music rendered by our capable musician, Mr. Benjamin Woolner, was heartily enjoyed by all.

After a bountiful lunch, served by the ladies, the eveing was brought to a close with singing, "For They are Jolly Good Fellows," "Good Night" and "God save the King".

Following is the address—

To Mr. and Mrs. Levi Laird:

Dear Friends,—We have gathered here tonight to congratulate you on your fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Just fifty years ago on the twenty-seventh of December, when the spirit of love, peace and goodwill was in the air your married life began, and you settled here among us, where you have lived happily and contentedly ever since, enjoying the fellowship of your family and friends.

You have been the best of neighbors, hospitable at all times, kind, sympathetic and helpful in times of sickness.

During all these years you have known joys and sorrows, have seen marvellous changes take place in the world around us, but we realize that the fundamental truths of life do not change, Love, Peace and Integrity have been exemplified in your home and the bonds of friendship with your neighbors have been strong and lasting.

It is well to be able to say "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us" and to look forward to the future with faith believing with the poet that "the best is yet to be." The last of life for which the first was made."

Your many friends unite in wishing you many years of health and happiness and ask you to accept this small gift, as a token of our esteem.

Does Jinx Follow Racing Schooners?

By Tom Horgan,
Associated Press Staff Writer
(By Guardian's Special Wire)

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Jan. 23.—Loss of a worthy vessel is to this old port a tragedy only a little less poignant than loss of a man and Gloucester was saddened tonight by news of the foundering off St. Pierre, Miq., of the schooner Elsie, former American contender for the International Fishermen's Trophy.

Superstitions unknown to crews of steamers and oil burners cling to Gloucester where men still know the art of harnessing the wind, and there were those who muttered about a jinx that is reputed to follow racing fishing schooners. There is a long list, beginning with Esperanto, winner of the first series for the international trophy and thereafter soon wrecked; Columbia, perhaps the fastest of them all, lost with all hands; the Henry Ford lost, but her crew saved; Progress, flames quenched only when she sank beneath the waves, and others, too.

Whether the jinx is applicable to Elsie is debatable. She was built 25 years ago at Esser, just outside of Gloucester, by the late Arthur D. Story, who launched from his little yard on the river bank more than five miles of fishing schooners. Fifteen years is considered the average life of a fishing schooner, so Elsie has been sailing on borrowed time for a decade.

Until last Spring Elsie was Gloucester owned and was the last member of the Gloucester fleet to depend upon canvas alone. Then she was sold to Newfoundland interests. Her last voyage was a visit to her old home port, arriving here last month with a cargo of cured fish. She sailed for home, Belleoram, Nfld., Jan. 13.

Gloucester is saddened by her passing, but rejoices that Captain Levi Kearley and his crew of six found safety.

WHEAT SENT TO MALTA

Canada is one of the chief suppliers of wheat to the island of Malta, the British naval and military station in the Mediterranean. Only about one-fifth of the wheat requirements is supplied by local production. While wheat is a staple food crop of the farming community of the island, its cultivation is most unscientific, writes the Canadian Trade Commissioner. In spite of tariff protection, the acreage of this crop has been decreasing, and the British agricultural expert who recently visited the islands of Malta and Gozo states that "some form of subsidy is necessary in order to maintain the cultivation of wheat". The wheat is grown from poor seed; it is dirty because it is threshed on the ground, and it is not suitable for milling in the large flour mills of Valletta that depend on imports. Wheat here is sown by broadcasting. There are two general kinds grown, a red and a yellow wheat, the first in red soil areas and the other in clay soil. The local wheat is milled in the steam-driven country mills. The farmer himself consumes it, mixed with imported flours.

IN HALIFAX—Mr. J. W. Boulter, secretary of the Potato Growers Association is in Halifax in connection with the loading of a cargo of Island produce for the United States. Consisting of turnips principally for discharge in New York, the remainder of the cargo is a quantity of seed potatoes for the far south. George Thompson, of the Associated Shippers, left for Halifax to supervise the loading of the cargo which is already assembled.

BOLD THEFT—Sneak thieving is still going on in Charlottetown but a different section of the town was selected for operations yesterday. Last evening about six o'clock as a family living on the Esplanade were all at supper in the dining room the lady of the house had occasion to go to the kitchen, and when she entered it a man spoke asking for something to eat. She turned, left him in the kitchen, and went to the dining room to bring her husband. When they returned they found the kitchen door open and the fellow gone. On looking around to see if anything was missing they discovered that the maid's purse containing over six dollars had been taken from a shelf. The lady had only a glimpse of the man but her description of him is that he is about 5 feet 8 inches tall, slight, shabbily dressed in a dark suit and wearing a light cap pulled down over one side of his face.
