WHISPERING ROCK by JOHN LEBAR

As soon as he was beyond the point where he would dare try to use his revolvers, Ann settled herself on a rock beside the trail, and the rifle came slowly to rest on her knees. She was trembling.

Ruth had been gone half an hour. Ann decided it would be safe to let him go. Darkness was coming fast. Ann looked down at the rifle, then at the man by the trough. He would need this gun. Ann again looked at the rifle. Quickly she rose, and running with her body bent low, she reached the trail. Snavely would soon pass over. She placed the rifle across the path and returned, a slow smile on her face.

As she reseated herself she saw that Snavely had already started; the tip of his hat bobbed along over the corral wall. She leaned forward, chin on palm, one huge leg thrust across the trail. Again she smiled slowly—he'd be right pleased when he come on that rifle.

Sugarfoot came to the back screen door of the ranch house and scratched. Ann grinned—it was supper time and nobody could fool that dog. "Here I is, Sugar—come up an' set a spell."

A rifle cracked from the direction of the trail to the west. Ann's hand flew to her side. She sat very straight for a moment, an expression of bewilderment on her face.

Slowly her head dropped, the great body crumpled.

Slowly her head dropped, the great body crumpled, slid from the rock and fell across the trail. Sugarfoot whined and licked the big open hand.

It was long after dark when Old Charley, Will and Ruth crossed the mountains and came among the lower foothills on the Dead Lantern ranch.

Old Charley rode first, his ancient forty-five on his hip and a Winchester in a sheath under his left stirrup. Ruth followed, then Will. David had been left behind with old Juan and Juana.

The riders were coming down the last hill when Old Charley suddenly halted. His revolver sprung into his hand, and he leaned forward, peering at the ground. "It's Ann!"

Sugarfoot stood guard, growling fiercely. He would allow no one to approach but Ruth, who did not heed him but dropped to her knees beside the giantess. "She's alive, I think—Ann! Ann!"

"Yes, little white girl," Ann whispered faintly. "I been waitin' fer you."

"Let's get her to the house," said Fill. "Here, Dad—"

"Wait," cried Ruth. Ann was whispering; the girl bent her head lower.

"Don't move me—I ain't got but a minute, little white girl. I jes' want to tell you—Mr. Snavely an' me was together long ago in Texis—he's my man—we ain't married. We got a little girl—at Saint Mary's Convent in town, she is—Martha Jackson—"

Ann rested for a moment. "Will you look after my little Martha? She—don't know—who her folks is—thinks good people. Don't tell her—no different. Mr. Snavely don't want nobody to know—but he's been payin' fer her a little—I tol' him I'd tell if he didn't—"

Again the whisper died away for a moment.

"Ann," said Ruth, "I promise to always look after your little girl as long as she needs me."

Ann sighed.

"Was that where you went, dear, those times you used to go away from the ranch?"

Hear Plight Of Furniture Manufacturers

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

OTTAWA, Jan. 14.—One of the veteran furniture manufacturers of Canada, John R. Shaw, of Woodstock, Ont., recommended to the Royal Commission on Mass Buying today a plan to lift the industry back to its feet. Its basis would be a Manufacturers' Association with power to fix production quotas, price limits and wage levels.

All day long, the Commission heard of the serious plight of the industry, of wages of $3 and $4 a week, for skilled men, recurring losses, impaired capital—an industry drifting toward its death. The industry centres in Western Ontario and is the economic life-blood of many small cities and towns.

The Cost Of An Eye Service

Any person who considers the cost of an eye service from the proper angle never complains of the price. Anyone requiring aid in seeing is losing more as a result of his errors of vision than it would cost to have them corrected. There is no cost to a satisfactory eye service. It is a steady payer of dividends.

Signature On Certificate Of Ownership of "Gypsum Queen" Probed.

(C. P. by Guardians' Special Wire)

OTTAWA, Jan. 14—The "Gypsum Queen" hearing before the Exchequer Court today devoted its entire time to expert evidence on the question of the genuineness or spuriousness of the purported certificate of ownership by Captain Freeman Hatfield of the vessel acting for Hatfield, Senator H. J. Logan filed the document with the Canadian Reparation Commissioner in 1930.

It is on this issue that Albert S. Osborn, chief handwriting expert for the prosecution in the trial of Bruno Hauptmann is coming to Ottawa. With two other handwriting experts, he will be a witness for the Senator.

On the stand at both morning and afternoon sittings, August Hartkorn, New York, examiner of questioned documents, joined with A. B. Farmer, Toronto, and A. J. Park, Hamilton, in the opinion the signature of J. S. Henderson, retired Parrsboro, N. S. shipping registrar, on the document was not genuine. The Government witness was given a gruelling cross-examination by W. N. Tilley, counsel for Logan. It was not until a late hour that he left the stand after a re-examination by Peter White, counsel for the crown.

Death of Prominent Doctor

DR. A.W. GOODALL ,NEW YORK PHYSICIAN WAS SON-IN-LAW OF HARRY ANDERSON FORMERLY OF CHARLOTTETOWN

Dr. William Ainslie Goodall, prominent Bronx physician, died yesterday morning at the Wickersham Hospital, 133 East Fifty-eighth Street, after a brief illness. He was 72 years old. His widow, Elizabeth Anderson Goodall; a sister, Janet Carruthers of Windsor, Canada, and a brother Auls of Gault, Canada, survive.

His offices were at 205 East 161st Street and he had been active in Bronx medical work for the past fifty years. He was the first director of the Morrisania City Hospital on whose staff he remained until his death as a consulting physician.

He was born in Louisville, Ky., in 1862. During his early boyhood his family moved to Galt, where he entered Dr. Tassie's College. He was graduated from the University of Toronto in 1883 and carried on post-graduate work at Victoria University, Canada.

Several years later he attended the medical school of King's and Queen's University in Dublin, Ireland. He also took medical courses at several European universities.

He began practice in the Bronx in 1888 and soon became one of the borough's outstanding young doctors.

During his fifty years of practice Dr. Goodall was active also in civic organizations. He was a member of the Bronx County Medical Society and personal physician to many outstanding citizens.

On May 6, 1933, more than 200 friends and professional associates honored him on his fiftieth anniversary as physician with a testimonial dinner in the Hotel Astor. The dinner was sponsored by the medical board and staff of the Morrisania Hospital. Speakers included former Hospital Commissioner J.G. William Greeff, Dr. Charles Gordon Heyd, president of the New York County Medical Society; Dr. Nathan D. VanEtten and former Justice Tierney.

Funeral services were held in the Boyertown Funeral Home, Webster Avenue and 186th Street. Burial took place in the family plot at Westport, Conn.

(The above is taken from a New York paper. The late Mr. Goodall was a son-in-law of Mr. Harry Anderson, Superintendent of the Prince Edward Island Railway, who left many friends here when he removed to New York years ago. They will be pleased to know that Mr. Anderson, who is ninety years of age, still retains his faculties and is loud in his praise of Prince Edward Island.)
