A Covehead correspondent says:—The farmers of this vicinity are engaged at present hauling their fence poles out of the woods. Owing to the heavy fall of snow the roads were splendid and everybody benefited. The snow is the poor man's fertilizer; as the clover has been well protected the hay crop may be a good one the coming season. It is to be hoped so and that the young men might not be lured away by tales of a championship trophy for the men in the form of an oak table, with brass plates for the names of the annual winners. The executive committee also presented a gold bracelet for the lady winning in mixed foursomes.

Ings were elected to act with them on the executive committee. The financial statement for the past season was a satisfactory one. The lady members of the Club presented a championship trophy for the men in the form of an oak table, with brass plates for the names of the annual winners. The executive committee also presented a gold bracelet for the lady winning in mixed foursomes.
