WILL THE GERMANS SIGN?

BRITAIN PREPARES FOR EVENTUALITIES

(Special to The Guardian.)
LONDON, June 19.—The morning newspapers feature the British naval and other preparations in the event of Germany refusing to sign the treaty of peace and print under big headlines several unofficial reports which were current during the night. The Grand Fleet has again been placed on a war footing, it is reported, and ready to sail for German waters at a moment's notice. It is also stated that the dirigible R 34 has been diverted from her trans-Atlantic trip, equipped with bombs and machine guns, and has been sent or is going to the Baltic, while her companion aircraft the R 33 similarly equipped left Wednesday night for a cruise which will include the Kiel Canal. A telegram from Copenhagen reports the arrival there of a dozen British cruisers and several destroyers prepared to enforce the blockade. According to some reports the R 34 which is now over the Baltic is neither armed or loaded with bombs but is undergoing a final preparatory to her Atlantic voyage. The Daily Sketch says the R 34 was over Berlin at four o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

BERLIN, June 19.—"Sign the treaty and be through with the agony" is the gist of the comment of the people of Berlin today. After the wrath provoked by the normal indictment contained in the covering note of the allied conference the residents of Berlin seemer to have resigned themselves to the inevitable. "Rather the end with terror than without end" was the way one small merchant put it today.

Turkey's Position Still in Doubt

(Special to The Guardian.)
PARIS, June 19.—The Entente attitude towards Turkey still remains a mystery. The great powers have not announced whether they consider Turkey actually exists and refuse to say whether a treaty will be negotiated with the Ottoman Empire. They maintain that the present conference is only for the purpose of learning Turkish position. The near eastern experts of the Great Powers were denied admission to today's conference. One of them remarked afterwards that the diplomats did not want any one there who know anything about the near east.

ROTARY CLUB

ADDRESS BY MAJOR CYRUS
MCMILLAN

Rotarian E. Temple Kinsman presided at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club in the Rose and Grey Cafe yesterday. The vocalist was Mrs.

Major Cyrus J. McMillan.

Lawson, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Bayer, and she delighted the members with two solos exquisitely rendered. The address was given by Major Cyrus McMillan who spoke on "The Army of Occupation" and gave a most entertaining account of the experiences of the Canadians in Germany and the effect of their influence on the Germans they came in contact with. He pointed out that the army of occupation consisted of the First and Second Divisions including five battalions of Heavy Artillery, and as most of the batteries were comprised in whole or in part of P. E. Islanders, it may be said to have been a Brigade of P. E. I. Heavy Artillery.

After referring to the hardships experienced on the march to the Rhine and to the fact that their nearest neighbours on the line were the famous 42nd, Rainbow Division of the U. S. A. with whom they exchanged many courtesies, the Major proceeded to describe the effect of their presence on the enemy. The instructions from headquarters were practically that they were to enforce the same discipline upon the German Civil population that the Germans enforced in Belgium. All had to be off the streets by 9 p. m. and men were compelled to lift their hats to officers of the army of occupation, but after a little this was not insisted upon. The Canadians were billeted in comfortable homes. The people were kind on the whole and seemed eager to fraternize but without much success. They were particularly impressed with the kind attitude of the Canadians toward their children and their consideration for the weak. The shops were well stocked except with regard to food and clothing. In the hotels linens were replaced by paper; for example there being paper sheets on the bed, the linens having been all used for wounded. The mark had fallen down in value. A franc was formerly equal to a mark (about 20c) but it was then equal to a mark and a half and later to two marks, yet the prices did not seem to be advanced by the Germans and the attitude of the sales-people was courteous. Chocolates, soap, butter and fat seemed to be the food articles most desired by the Germans and there was an utter absence of these.

The soldiers were ordered to be kind in their treatment of women and children and this they invariably were. At first the children were a little afraid of them. They were white and thin and seemed to live entirely on vegetables. The Germans greatest surprise seemed to be to find the Canadians were not in-

CONVENTION IN FOURTH KINGS

HON. M. MCKINNON AND MR. M.C.
MCGOWAN, LIBERAL CONSERVATIVE
NOMINEES.

The Liberal-Conservative convention at Murray River yesterday afternoon was typical of the old Murray Harbor District, large, enthusiastic and unanimous.

Every poll in the district was fully represented. At 2.30 the Conventioneer, Mr. Bernard McGuigan called the meeting to order and the business of the convention was promptly proceeded with. Mr. William McPherson was Secretary.

The convener in a brief and happy speech welcomed the delegates and expressed his pleasure at seeing Premier Arsenault present. Without wasting any time he called upon the representatives, Hon. M. McKinnon and Hon. A. P. Prowse to address the meeting.

Hon. Mr. McKinnon was the first speaker. It was more than 22 years, he said, since he first addressed a political meeting at Murray River when he had the honour of being nominated as their prospective representative. While the representation present on this occasion was larger than at that first convention it was a shock to note the changes that time had wrought. Some of those voters who would decide the present contest were not born when that first convention was held. He briefly reviewed the political history of the district since his first nomination. They had won out in six elections and he had the fullest confidence that they would win out in the present. Their political opponents had made the Murray Harbor District their special target as they had the Summerside District, because they were both held by members of the cabinet. They would do the same at the present election and it was up to the electors to stand loyally by their nominees whoever they might be. Speaking for himself and his colleague, Hon. A. P. Prowse, he had only to say that they both did their duty to the best of their ability. He regretted that Mr. Prowse owing to pressure of business found it necessary to retire from the political arena. They would miss him in the legislature and he, Mr. McKinnon, trusted his successor whoever might be nominated would prove as faithful and as able as Mr. Prowse. He himself had been honoured by his colleagues with one of the most important departments in the government. The records of that department were before them. The record of the Department, he had reason to believe would compare very favorably with that of any provincial agricultural department in Canada. With the other departments he was not so familiar but he believed they would all bear the closest scrutiny and he felt sure the good work done by the government as a whole was appreciated by the people. He was again in the hands of the electors. If there was anything in his conduct of the affairs of his department that was not to the liking of any individual he would be glad to explain or to account for it.

Mr. Prowse followed. It gave him great pleasure, he said, to again meet the electors of the Murray Harbour District as a supporter of the Liberal-Conservative party with whom he had been closely associated for twenty-two years. He also briefly reviewed the situation since he first represented the district. Now, he said, he was obliged to retire from politics owing to the pressure of his business. He thanked the electors for the loyal support they had always given him and solicited the same for his successor, whoever he might be. He assured them that under the leadership of Premier Arsenault the province had everything to hope for. He was not only a capable representative but he had the ear and the friendship of the government at Ottawa which meant much to this province.

Premier Arsenault was next called upon. On coming to the platform the Premier received with an ovation which spoke volumes for his popularity in this district. He was glad, he said, on this beautiful day to meet this large and representative convention on the occasion of his first visit to Murray River. He gave an inspiring address reviewing and contrasting the history of the two parties. He spoke of the criticism and faultfinding which constituted the stock in trade of the Liberal party. "Can you point to one helpful suggestion," he asked, "that came from the voluminous criticism indulged in and by which the House was held up for days during the last session?" (A voice—None, Mr. Premier.)

Opposition's Hopes Badly Shattered

AS RESULT OF TARIFF DIVISION
GOVERNMENT MAJORITY OF 50.

Senate Causes Sensation By Rescinding Prohibition Order.

(From our own correspondent)
Ottawa, June 19.—The result of the budget division which took place early this morning demonstrates how well the position of the various members of both parties was understood in advance. Predictions of well-informed correspondents were that between twelve and fifteen members of the Unionist party would vote either for the amendment or against the budget. The vote showed fourteen the only surprise furnished being that Mr. Cockshutt, Conservative Protectionist voted against both propositions feeling that the tariff proposals made too heavy concessions to the west and that in the present time where the necessity of securing revenue is so great the tariff should not be reduced in any particular.

During the debate several members of the Unionist party who voted for the budget took occasion to remark that it was high time the party was reorganized and run again on former party lines. It is known there is a movement on the part of some old line Conservatives to get together a Conservative wing for the purpose of holding together the nucleus of the old time party organization in the hope there will be realignment in the future. Oppositionists hopes were badly shattered by the result of the budget division as it is known they expected to better their position in view of the coming convention. As it was, the McMaster amendment was defeated by a vote of 121 to 70, Unionist majority 51, and the tariff proposals were carried by 120 to 70, Unionist majority 50.

The decision to take the vote at the conclusion of Wednesday's session was reached by the whips early Wednesday evening when it was decided the discussion had gone on long enough. Several members both sides of the House were prepared to speak today.

Following the close of the budget debate the House today almost took a holiday. The excessive heat both indoors and outdoors prevented a quorum was in attendance. The afternoon was devoted to consideration of the tariff proposals in committee. The senators action in rescinding the government orders in council prohibiting as a war-time measure interprovincial transportation of intoxicating liquor is likely to raise a storm from one end of the country to the other. The senate measure goes for third reading today and it is regarded as certain it will pass. The effect will be to place liquor traffic on the same position as before the government orders in council were passed, the matter of prohibition being left altogether to the provinces. Interprovincial shipment of liquor from wet provinces to dry will be permitted unless the provinces decide otherwise. Thus Montreal can again become the supply base for such provinces as will let liquor come in.

The government action in arresting the leaders of the Winnipeg strike is generally commended. A report here this afternoon is that there are from forty to fifty more arrests to follow. One development of the arrests is that the Methodist conference of Manitoba has decided Rev. William Ivens, one of the leaders arrested, can no longer preach for that denomination.

The Duke of Devonshire, Governor-General is now a big Indian. At a meeting of St. Regis tribe at Cornwall on Wednesday it was resolved he be admitted to tribal membership and he was unanimously elected chief. His Indian title is "Kaniserliokowa" which interpreted means "great father." Among the perquisites of office is a full Indian costume, paint, feathers etc. But his excellency is not expected to wear it, particularly in ninety degree weather.
