year of orphanage work. It was also stated that there were no deaths in the Home during 1940.

The School Inspector's report showed that "very satisfactory work had been done during the past few years."

The Medical Report submitted by Dr. F. W. Tidmarsh, revealed that in the month of October, 26 children contracted measles but all recovered without complications developing.

Mrs. H. S. Henderson, energetic Chairman of the Finance Committee, who has been a member of the Board for the past 16 years, reported that the Orphanage had a "year of exceptional success; exceptional because during these days of stress and strain we again have a surplus, true it is small but nevertheless a surplus."

TRUSTEES' REPORT

The war, as anticipated, has forced many changes for us all; early in the year we were asked to fill a War Chest and many of our young men offered their services for the protection of our democratic ideals.

New taxes have been imposed; prices in many necessities have greatly increased, so that in our institution, where revenue is almost solely derived from free-will contributions, it has been most difficult to close this year on the right side.

However, as the statements show, we have succeeded and credit for this may be shared by the several committees, with Mrs. H. S. Henderson chairman of the finances, fully meriting the greatest share. She worked incessantly to maintain our standard of revenue, while the others sought by every safe means to reduce the expenditures.

The Adoption Committee now under Mrs. W. G. Bruce, has had a very strenuous time but has ever been mindful of the best interest of the child itself.

The Buying Committee by careful scrutiny of all purchases has succeeded in reducing the cost in many noticeable ways. These three committees have well earned our grateful thanks for their success.

The Endowment Fund has had some small additions but interest rates on new purchases from maturing Bonds have very much decreased so that revenue from this fund shows considerable decline.

Our School, as the attached report of Inspector McPhail shows, has done excellent work; we are fortunate indeed in having so efficient a teacher

All children in our care have enjoyed excellent health throughout the year; there have been no deaths or serious illness; we may well be proud of the health record over many years and it is our great pleasure to thank Dr. Tidmarsh and his associates in the Polyclinic, who have so skilfully tended and watched over them at all times and often at great inconvenience answering calls for attention in some uncertain case.

Our most grateful thanks are due a host of friends and helpers scattered far; it is only possible here to mention a few whose assistance is outstanding: Dr. Tidmarsh and his Associates; Dr. Ayers; Grand Lodge L. O. B. A.; Queen Mary Needlework Guild; Children's Aid Society; W.A. St. Peter's Cathedral; Fraternities, including: The Masons, The Orange Association; The Gyros; The B. I. S.; Salvation Army; Caledonia Club; The Churches and Clergy; The Press, Charlottetown and Summerside. To all these and especially to the Orphanage Ladies Auxiliary whose work is so vital to our success at all time—Thank you friends most sincerely.

To the members associated with me on the Trustee Board may I here express my personal thanks; there has ever been such complete co-operation and earnestness in the work that success is well deserved.

W. A. STEWART,
Chairman Trustee Board

Fourth Class Of Graduates Get Wings At S'side

Air Commodore Walsh presents Wings at interesting ceremony.

The fourth class of graduates from No. 9 Service Flying Training School R. C. A. F., received their wings yesterday afternoon from the hands of Air Commodore Walsh, Air Officer Commanding No. 3 Training Command. Air Commodore Walsh was accompanied by Ft. Lieut. Doyle.

The ceremony took place on the parade ground of the training school and was witnessed by a large number of friends and relatives.

Hon. Dr. Thane A. Campbell, Premier of the Province, Hon. E. P. Foley and Mr. B. W. Robinson, M. L. A., Mr. A. R. Brennan and Mr. Napier Moore, editor of MacLean's Magazine were among the visitors.

There was only one P. E. I. boy to receive his wings, Robert Brennan, youngest son of Mr. A. R. Brennan editor and manager of the Summerside Journal, and Mrs. Brennan, who now has all three sons in the air force. Robert, the youngest is nineteen years old today.

Mr. Moore's son, A. W. Moore, also received his wings, in yesterday's ceremony.

There were three Maritime boys, R. C. Toft and A. E. Scott of St. Stephen, N. B., and E. M. C. Franklin of Digby, N. S. Among the graduates were nine lads from the Royal Air Force, fine well set up lads.

Practically the whole flying school was lined up for the ceremony forming a square on the parade ground. After the ceremony the men and officers were inspected by Air Commodore Walsh who took the salute at the march past. The air force bugle band led off the parade with the air force "March Past."

Wing Commander Fullerton spoke a few words to the graduates congratulating them on their success in getting their wings and wishing them an outstanding career, and then introduced Air Commodore Walsh who presented the lads with their wings, congratulating each graduate as he came up to receive his wings.

After the presentation Air Commodore Walsh addressed the graduates briefly. After congratuling them on their success in the first stage of their career, he said, they must not think they had completed their training, as they had a lot more to learn in the school of practice and experience. The more you learn and the quicker you learn it the better it will be for you and the worse for your opponent.

You have an excellent example in the Royal Air Force and in the 1st Squadron of R. C. A. F. who have made a very good showing and have shown what they can do and what you can do when you go over.

The 1st Squadron of the R. C. A. F., accounted for 75 Huns, that is not definite, possibly many more when they first went over, and is nothing to what they have done since.

When you go overseas you will find a wonderful spirit among the boys. They are always cheerful. They work hard all day and every time they come back from fighting they always have a bag and with very few casualties of their own. You will be very impressed, as I was, with the spirit and courage of the people as well as the fighting forces.

You will be better equipped than those in the first Great War. Things are different today we must knock the blighters out of the air and gain predominance in the air before we can do anything on the ground. The speaker told some amusing stories to illustrate the fine spirit of good humour which the English are showing in spite of the blitz. He concluded by speaking of the difficulties that are being overcome in the way of obtaining more equipment and men, and said he was pleased to state that we are becoming stronger every day. The British realize it and so do the Huns. He wished the graduates the best of luck and happy landings.

Premier Campbell was called to the platform and in a short speech congratulated the men on their success in obtaining their wings. He spoke of the wonderful achievement in preparing this air training school in such a short time, and also congratulated Wing Commander Fullerton and his officers on their splendid efforts in turning out so many graduates in such a short time, especially with the trying weather that had prevailed during the winter months.

Speaks on Conditions in Wartime England

Captain T. W. Jones, of the Y. M. C. A. Service Group, who has just returned from fifteen months in England, gave a most interesting address in St. Mary's hall on Thursday evening on England in war time. Captain Jones is a gifted speaker and told his story in such a way that his audience could almost feel they were on the spot.

He had great praise for the high courage and determination of the British people to see this thing through, especially could this be said of the people in the bombed cities. Londoners particularly show an undaunted spirit and this with the humour which is characteristic of the "Cockney" is carrying them through the great trials they have been forced to bear.

He also spoke of their Majesties, King George and Queen Elizabeth, who travel all over the country meeting and sympathizing with their subjects, fellow sufferers in all that life holds dear. The Queen is everywhere with her happy smile brightening the lives of the women and the King with his manly bearing and steadfast confidence in victory is an inspiration to all.

Captain Jones gave some very interesting descriptions of war time England, the completeness of the blackout, the trials of driving convoys by night, the work of the British soldiers, and the soldiers from the Empire, the women who are doing marvelous work, the Boy Scouts and Guides, always on duty in the air raids.

He also told of so many everyday things that are unobtainable now in England and which the people are cheerfully doing without. He told of the magnificent work of the R. A. F. and the part they played in the evacuation from Dunkirk. He also spoke of the ordinary men, business men doing home guard at night. He told of the many beautiful churches, now in ruins, of St. Paul's, St. Martin's in the Fields, Westminster Abbey and many others, which Jerry has spoilt.

He gave descriptions of the way the Germans get in their deadly work and how the British scientists have conquered the daylight air attacks and will soon have perfected ways and means to combat the night raids successfully. He paid tribute to the London firemen, 2,000 of whom have lost their lives fighting the fires caused by the blitz.

He also spoke of life in the underground shelters far below the Thames where Londoners take shelter, of the educational work in the shelters, which have come to be part of London life. Captain Jones spoke of the morale of the Canadian soldiers and the work that the Y.M.C.A. and other organizations are doing to bring comforts to the boys, of the travelling tea canteens which follow the troops giving them hot tea and biscuits during the night when they are on the march. In closing he referred to Prime Minister Churchill, the greatest leader Britain has ever had and mentioned a poster which is to be seen on Trafalgar Square; a picture of Churchill with the words "Deserve Victory" in large letters. The British are striving to deserve the victory which they are confident that at long last they will win.

Rev. L. E. G. Davies moved a vote of thanks and expressed regret that more were not present to hear such an inspiring address. Mr. W. A. Currie, seconded the motion. The lecture was under the auspices of the local Y's Men's Club.

Captain Jones is on an official visit to the Y.M.C.A. quarters at the Summerside airport.—S.

JUDGE DEMANDS

Court. Am I right?"

Attorney General: "As I have stated before, I would prefer not to make any statement."

The Court: "An explanation is due the Court."

Attorney General: "If the Court insists—"

The Court: "Yes, the Court insists."

The Attorney General then proceeded to read the following statement:

"Canada
"Province of Prince Edward Island
"In the Supreme Court

"Explanation of the Attorney General on charge of discourtesy to or contempt of Court.

"I should very much prefer not to make any statement on this subject.

"Since, however, the Court has severely reprimanded the Crown Counsel and myself; since it has charged us with discourtesy to the Court, with ignoring the dignity of the Court, and with near contempt; since the comments of the Court on these charges have been published throughout the Province by the Press under large headlines; since the Court now continues to insist on an explanation, I most reluctantly proceed.

"I am particularly concerned with the fact that, owing to my absence and to instructions given by me, the Court insisted on an apology from my colleague, the Assistant Crown Counsel, Mr Trainor, a most conscientious and courteous young barrister, under circumstances which in my submission called for an apology by the Court to Mr. Trainor, rather than vice versa.

"During the noon recess of the Court on June 18th, I informed Mr. Trainor that I had a business errand to the country during the afternoon, and asked him to attend Court on the return of the Grand Jury with their Report. We also discussed the necessity of attending Court at the expiry of the recess at 2:30, and I instructed Mr. Trainor that it was not necessary to attend, as the issues in both Appeals under consideration had been disposed of, and nothing remained but the making of a formal order in favour of the Appellant in the Prohibition case.

"Throughout the morning session, I had sat in Court in consultation with Mr. Trainor, who was conducting the case of the Crown (Respondent) in both the Excise and Prohibition Appeals lodged by Pansy MacLeod. Technically-speaking, the Excise Appeal was being tried, but an arrangement had been made at the outset whereby the same evidence should be applicable to the two Appeals.

"The evidence concluded shortly before one o'clock. Without giving Counsel any opportunity to address the Court, the Court immediately proceeded to state its findings of fact. When the Court had concluded its statement, Mr. Trainor respectfully suggested some comments which he felt he should make, and attempted three or four times to sum up the evidence on behalf of the Crown, or to cite some authorities in support of his case. He was permitted to do neither, but each attempt was brushed aside by a re-statement of the Court's own views. Finally, while Mr. Trainor was in the middle of attempting to make a statement, the Court interrupted him in tones of distinct finality with the remark 'There is nothing more to be said, Mr. Trainor.' Before Mr. Trainor had time to resume his seat, the Court took recess until 2:30 and His Lordship left the Bench. The Prothonotary asked 'The Appeal is allowed?' and His Lordship in passing through the door, turned around and said, 'Yes, the Appeal is allowed.'

"Technically-speaking, the Prohibition case had not yet been called. It had, however, been agreed that the same evidence should be used, and admittedly the disputed issue on the fact of possession was the same in both cases. The Prohibition Appeal stood or fell with the Court's findings of fact in the Excise case.

"I therefore instructed Mr. Trainor not to appear on the technical calling of the Prohibition case for two reasons:

"(a) The substantial issue in the case had been fully determined, and nothing remained but the making of a formal Order, which was a matter for the successful Appellant, and not for the Crown;

"(b) I could see no point in Counsel for the Crown attempting to present an argument in the Prohibition case, when the issues of fact had all been found by the Court, particularly as the Court refused to allow Counsel either to sum up the evidence or to submit authorities.

"Respectfully submitted this 20th day of June A. D. 1941.

"THANE A. CAMPBELL,
"Attorney General for Prince Edward Island."

When the Attorney-General concluded, Mr. Justice Arsenault said: "In the first place, Mr. Attorney General, there was no intimation before me that there was the same evidence in the second case as there was in the first."

Attorney General: "Your Lordship asked counsel at the outset to agree to that."

Mr. Justice Arsenault: "I asked the Prothonotary about that and he told me there was none. The Court had not seen the case before that, and was not aware of those facts. As far as the Court was concerned the Court was not informed on that matter. If the proper procedure had been taken it would have been to instruct or to intimate or to come to an arrangement with the other Counsel and to inform the Court as a matter of courtesy."

Attorney General: "The Court asked this question, my Lord."

Mr. Justice Arsenault: "The Court will not submit to anything like this. And since you, Mr. Attorney General, take the attitude that you do in this matter and especially in view of your written statement which is a reflection on the Court, so far as I am personally concerned you shall not have the privilege of appearing before me in any case on which I am trial Judge until an apology has been tendered."

The Court then adjourned until Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

ACTIVE YEAR

state of good health among the children is having Miss Beers as Nurse in Charge and that they are under the very efficient care of Dr. Tidmarsh, who for many years has given his services without any remuneration except that gained from the joy of serving.

If it were not for this Orphanage, many homeless waifs would be scattered over the province and their lot would be a hard one indeed.

During the years a great many unfortunate little ones have been fed, clothed, educated and carefully trained, so that the majority of them have proven to be a valuable asset to our province and to the Empire as today many of them are serving their King and Country and of these we are especially proud.

As you know, the main purpose of this Orphanage is that it should serve as a clearing house from which the children can be sent out to good homes. The past year has been a most successful one in this respect—a number of lovely children having been placed in particularly fine homes.

Financially we again show a surplus—true a small one but nevertheless a surplus.

The work accomplished by our Auxiliary cannot be too highly commended; the helpless little ones here in our "Home" have kind and true friends in the members of our Auxiliaries, who at great trouble and fatigue exert themselves willingly to raise funds so that the work may go on.

For over twenty years our ladies have worked tirelessly and efficiently, have raised over one hundred thousand dollars as well as contributing a tremendous amount of clothing, etc.

Again I thank you all from the bottom of my heart. There is still the same work to do this coming year and may we continue under the guidance of Him who said "In as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my children, ye have done it unto me." NEW CHIEF JUSTICE NAMED

This picture of Harlam F. Stone was made in the New York city law office of his son, Lauson, after President Roosevelt nominated him to be chief justice of the U. S supreme court, succeeding Charles Evans Hughes. Senator James F. Byrnes became a justice and Attorney-General Robert Jackson an associate justice at the same time.

Yesterday was recruiting day at Summerside and the young manhood of that town and surrounding country were present in large numbers to offer their services for King and Country. "They were very fine types and would be a proud addition to the personnel of any unit," were the words used by the Recruiting Officer, Lt. Col. R. O. Chandler, when interviewed yesterday.

No less than 22 secured the coveted "A" which is the standard necessary for admission in the overseas forces.

Col. Chandler also enlisted seven at Charlottetown the previous day and these figures now bring the June quota near the completion mark. As a matter of fact, it will just take 21 more enlistments to fill the quota and then the province can say to the world that Prince Edward Island is again, as it was in May, the first province in Canada to fill its quota of the 32,000 recruits asked for overseas service by Col., the Honourable J. L. Ralston, D.S.O. on May 12.

THE FULL VIEW MODEL B MOWER is designed to take advantage of faster tractor speeds when time is an essential. First of all, the cutter bar is mounted ahead of not behind the driver's seat in full view. Small children or animals cannot get in front of the cutter bar without being seen. It does not interfere with other draw bar operations —You can have the mower attached while you finish some other job. Driven by a V belt from the power take-off, no damage is done if a stone or other object becomes lodged in the knife guards.
