"There is a great demand for Zam-Buk at the front. I have personally given it to many of my men for cuts, scratches, burns, bruises, blisters and sores, and in all cases the results have been eminently satisfactory."

Capt. R. Nunn, who is with No. 2 Section, 8th D.A.C., comes from Vernon, B.C., and before enlisting was cured of a chronic ulcer by Zam-Buk. Writing of this, he says:

"For two years I suffered from an ulcer on my leg, which, notwithstanding all I did for it, became worse and worse, until I was advised to go into a hospital. A friend, however, asked me to try Zam-Buk, and it was wonderful the effect it had. The inflammation and soreness were soon drawn out, healing began, and to cut a long story short—Zam-Buk completely healed the ulcer."

OVERSEAS BRIDES FOR BRITISH PRINCES

LONDON, September 24.—A British bride for the Prince of Wales is now taken for granted, and in Court circles it is even whispered that the very agreeable young man who stands next in line of succession to the Throne has already indicated where he would like his choice to fall.

The popularity and propriety of the idea of a British-born consort for the Heir-Apparent are too unmistakable to leave room for argument in these democratic times. That is should be provocative of much discussion is not a sign that any difference of opinion prevails on the subject; it is simply a sign of the overwhelming appeal that the outside solution of the marriage question of the Prince makes to the people.

The Death Knell.

But the nation has also been concerning itself with the wider problem of wives for our Royal Princes in general, and it has endorsed with considerable enthusiasm the suggestion of General Smuts, that splendid son of Empire, that our Princes, instead of going to Central Europe for their consorts, might go to the British Dominions.

If a further link in the chain binding the Colonies and Dominion to the Mother-country were needed, that link would surely be found nin a Royal bride taken from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, or South Africa. The old German-propagated view that royalty must in the matter of marriage keep to a certain groove has heard its death-knell; and, with the waning of the German matrimonial mart, it is obvious that the so-called morganatic union— marrying someone not of royal blood—loses the force of traditional objection.

Once the morganatic marriage is approved, then the matrimonial field, as far as our Royal Princes is concerned, is immeasurably enlarged. The birth barrier falls away, and the daughter of the Colonial gentleman is just as suitable as a bride for our Royal Princess as a near or distant cousin.

Fine Old Families.

A new and a more liberal meaning is given to aristocracy, and the condition of good family no longer requires to be descent from certain families irrespective of fitness. There is no Colonial-born royalty; but there are many fine old (families whose present generation stand for the dignity and progress in mentality which the high-minded Royal Prince will seek to-day in his consort.

The infusion of the healthy Colonial blood in the Royal race would not only please Empire patriots like General Smuts, with a far-seeing outlook as to the future of the British union of States and Commonwealths, but would recommend itself on eugenic grounds. And, after all, if you have a British-born bride, not of Royal blood, for any of the British Princes, you automatically include a Colonial-born bride in the scope of selection.

Strengthening the Link.

What could be happier than to send as Governors-General to the Colonies and Dominions Royal Princes ably tutored in Statecraft who had chosen their consorts from the particular division of Empire to which they were accredited? How Australia would rejoice to have in her midst a Prince wedded to a beautiful daughter of the Southern Cross! What a rapturous welcome Canada would have for the princely Governor-General who brought to Ottawa a bride born under the clear skies of the Dominion!

A new era in the attitude towards Royalty marrying out of a narrow Colonies towards the Mother-country would be reached. The sentimental and racial bond would be strengthened by the link of family, and there would be a visible and tangible meeting-place between the democratic instincts of the Colonial peoples and home policy.

There is nothing un-English in Royalt marring out of a narrow set. Before Germany sought to impose its matrimonial mart on this country, our Princes chose their brides where they willed, and often chose them well.

And, since it has been made quite clear that Germany has used her matrimonial mart as a means of fostering unscrupulous intrigue to benefit her own selfish ends, the British nation will no longer tolerate foreign royal alliances which ultimately may be found to do harm to British interests. Again and again—even during this war—history has shown the demoralising effect of the intermarriage of royalty on a country's welfare.

Royal marriages have come to be regarded in quite a different light. Continental royalties, with few exceptions, have stood for the perpetuation of an autocratic and privileged system that is repugnant to the spirit of the democracies.

Numerous Degenerates.

British Princes henceforth will demand the right to marry women of Empire parentage who are in sympathy with popular sentiment and popular aspiration. They will insist on wives who are able to win the love and respect of the people, not because they are of exalted birth, but because they incorporate in themselves those sturdy, enlightened qualities which are the true test of greatness.

Such brides may well be chosen from the splendid, broad-minded women of the Colonies, whose ancestry in the popular conception rings truer to British ideals than the tainted royal progeny of Central Europe, with its numerous degenerates.

What is particularly significant is that the call for Empire-born wives does not proceed from the people alone! it is echoed by the British Royalties themselves. That they have long rebelled against the convention that restricted their matrimonial choice to a narrow set is an open secret. To-day we find one popular Prince taking early opportunity to signalise release from this paralysing convention by proclaiming the fair daughter of an English earl as his bride-elect.

A Chance for Commoners.

And from wives for Royalties chosen from the Second Estate of the Realm the Third Estate of the Realm (Commoners).

Who will be the first British Prince to marry a Colonial girl? Our travelled Princes have come into contact with Colonial Society, and been greatly impressed. Had they felt at liberty always to throw the handkerchief where their affections were aroused, we should have had a Royal-Colonial alliance before to-day.

In future, when they go travelling in the different parts of Empire the public may not without reason speculate on the possibility of their return with an Empire consort. And what wonderful news it would be for all the sons and daughters of the British race! And how the edtior of the "Almanach de Gotha" would be shocked!

Had Piles For Ten Years

And Tried Nearly Everything Except a Surgical Operation Without Obtaining Relief — Tells How Complete Cure was Effected.

Brantford, Ont., Sept. 25.— There is reported here three cures of chronic cases of piles. In all three cases many treatments were tried before it was discovered that Dr. Chase's Ointment is about the only real cure for this distressing ailment.

Mrs. A. Oates, 22 Gilkinson street, Brantford, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment as a household remedy for ever so long, and am particularly indebted to it for a cure from Piles. I had suffered from this annoying trouble for ten years, and tried nearly everything I heard of. After using Dr. Chase's Ointment a short while I was completely cured."

Mrs. Wm. Shantz, 155 Albert street Kitchener, Ont., writes: "For several years I was troubled with bleeding piles.I tried different remedies for relief without success. I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac of the benefits other people were receiving from Dr. Chase's Ointment, so I sent to your office for a sample box. I found it gave me such relief that I went to a drug store and purchased a full-sized box. I have used several boxes since, and have derived more benefit from its use than any remedy I have ever used."

Mrs. F. Cussons, Victoria street, Ingersol, Ont., writes: "About two years and a half ago I was suffering from Piles. I had tried many different remedies for this distressing trouble, but nothing helped me. Finally I got a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and after using it found that I was completely cured, and have not been bothered in this way since. I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to anyone suffering as I did."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmanson Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. There are no rivals to Dr. Chase's Ointment as a treatment for Piles.
