Dorothy Dix Says—

BABY MAY PART A WIFE AND HUSBAND

Mother Gives Child All Her Time And Neglected Mate Stays Out Late

"DEAR MISS DIX—My husband and I have always been very much in love, very close, but my baby marriage is being broken up by my baby. I wanted children. My husband did not, and he was put out by the arrival of this youngster."

"I realize that many times when I get the baby in bed I am too tired to be as interesting and loving a companion to my husband, as I was before baby came. But the fault isn't his. It is the wife who pushed him out of his house, out of her life because she didn't have any time to give him, so places with him, or even to dress up and look attractive. Everything was for baby."

"That is your situation, and unless you meet it with more intelligence than you are doing you are going to lose a perfectly good husband. You have to realize, in the first place, that your husband is jealous of the baby. Foolish, of course. But there it is. The baby is all-in-all to you but it isn't to your husband. You come first with him, and he wants you to be the same tender, affectionate, loving companion you were before baby was born, and to give him as much attention as you do the youngster."

"You will say that you can't do this, that baby takes all of your time. That is because you don't know how to manage it. You don't have to sit up and watch it breathe all the time, spend hours getting it to sleep, and have a fit every time it cries. So it's easiest advice to get a trained baby specialist to spend a week with you. She will straighten both you and the infant out, cure your husband's jealousy, and let your resumer being a wife once more instead of a baby nurse. It will be lots cheaper than getting a divorce."

"DEAR MISS DIX—My husband and I have been married almost three years. He is 22 and I am 20. When we were going together before our marriage we were lithe and gay, but now I have settled down to the extent where this seems childish to me. I thought, perhaps, he would lose his craze for it, too, but he seems to enjoy it as much as ever. Most of the time he is in bed, and he is the wife who pushed him out of his house, out of her life because she didn't have any time to give him, so places with him, or even to dress up and look attractive. Everything was for baby."

"ANSWER—I am afraid that there are a lot of men who never do grow up and become adult, and certainly one who has such a mania for lithe and gay. It is a terrible thing to belong in the perpetual adolescence class. Such men are Peter Pans who are still boys at heart when they are gray-headed and paunchy and while that is very charming in a whimsical novel it is hard luck for the women they marry."

"For they never acquire any sense of responsibility, or get any perspective as to what marriage really means. They never settle down to the serious pursuit of a career. They always stay the kind of out-lets that make everybody tired, and who think that amusing themselves is the chief thing in life."

"And if their wives try to restrain them, and make them be their age and act like sensible human beings, they consider the wives domestic tyrants and complain of being nagged. So I fear there is no way you can do but to spend a week with you. She will straighten both you and the infant out, cure your husband's jealousy, and let your resumer being a wife once more instead of a baby nurse. It will be lots cheaper than getting a divorce."

"DEAR MISS DIX—I have been married to an army officer for two and a half years. He is 36 and I am 28. He wants to adopt a child, I don't, and we quarrel bitterly over this. What should I do?"

"ANSWER—Give the stork a chance. Wait three or four more years, anyway, before you abandon the idea of not having children of your own. If you do adopt a child you need not be too sure that you won't regret it. Most people are more foolish about adopted children than real parents are over their own youngsters."

"You Women Who Suffer From NOT FLASHES then CHILLY FEELINGS"

If you—like so many women between the ages of 35 and 45—suffer from hot flashes, weak, dizzy, nervous feelings, irregular periods, are blue at times—due to the middle age period in a woman's life—start taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once. It's one of the most effective medicines you can buy that's made especially for women, to relieve such painful distress.

"HINTS ON ETIQUETTE" Formal dress for an afternoon wedding is street length. It should be a pretty dress with matching hat, shoes and purse.

Living & Leisure The Woman's Realm

IN THESE TIMES RAYONS REQUIRE CAREFUL IRONING

All homely things are lovelier now; The commonplace is best. So much we have to do not need—Were we too greatly bliss? But now through little simple ways Fate leads us to the hand of bliss. How long it took our eyes to see, How long to understand! Charles Hanson Towne in The New York Times.

PAINT FOR RUSTY IRON Painting rusty iron or steel is useless for the rusting process continues unchecked beneath the paint film. To successfully treat such material you must use a special chromate primer which converts the surface of the iron and steel from the active condition in which rust is formed to the passive state in which its development is arrested. This primer must be supplied to the bare iron and not over existing paintwork. The primer must be allowed to dry and thoroughly hardened before the finishing coats of paint are applied. Two finishing coats are essential to achieve highly protective conditions. Where large painted areas are affected only in parts by rust these parts can be wire brushed to remove loose particles of rust.

GETTING PUTTY TO STICK It is the farmer's fault when putty fails to stick to windows or openings. First you must have good putty, which means mixing about a tea spoon of white lead paste with every two pounds of the commercial putty. Second, the crack or surface must have a coat of oil or paint before the putty is applied, so that the oil will not be drawn out of the putty before it has had time to harden. Third, for filling cracks and holes the putty should be as soft as possible and the hands easily and stay where it is placed. Most farmers get poor results with putty because it takes too much time and trouble to work the white lead into it, and the stiff putty is so much more convenient to handle.

LONG DINNER FROCK SIMPLE IN DESIGN When a long-skirted dinner dress appears, it is likely to be fashioned on simple, dignified lines with a minimum of fuss or extraneous detail. Navy triple sheer is used for an evening frock made with broad shoulder straps and gathers over the bust. Worn with it is a white waffle plique jacket with small classic ruffs above the encrusted band that continues around the neckline and four small buttons. It is grand for that important country club dinner or gala service party.

Home Service The Popular Girl is Sure of Etiquette

Used Napkin Left Under Plate It's the little things that count in table manners and a smart hostess is oh, so aware, whether you observe them! Naturally after a dinner party, you don't fold your napkin. But it's what you do with it that counts! The lovely girl in our sketch correctly half-folds hers and puts it under the edge of her plate. When she is served first she knows it's all right to begin before the others—but what counts is, she doesn't dip right in, table manners being based on the idea that you're not starving! On a restaurant date, she knows it's the man's place to choose a table and pull out the more desirable seat for her; but if it's a double date she'll sit opposite the other woman. Knowing such fine points you can't possibly worry about making slips. Our 32-page booklet tells what silver to use for each course, how to eat unusual foods. Gives rules for restaurant dates, teas, buffets, formal dinners.

Send five in coins for your copy of Good Table Manners to the Charlottetown Guardian Home Service Address. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and name of booklet.

THE COOK'S CORNER APPLE ROLL-UP PUDDINGS Because these roll-ups should be served hot, I suggest that they be put in the oven only a few minutes before the family sits down to dinner—or if they are baked a little earlier, they should be kept warm. Good with a cream or spice sauce—or with cream. 2 cups sifted flour 3 teaspoons baking powder 1-2 teaspoon salt 1-2 cup syrup (or shortening) 5-1-3 tablespoons shortening (or butter with shortening, mixed). Milk (about 2-3 cup) Sliced apples Brown sugar Ground cinnamon Measure the flour and sift with the baking powder and salt. Cut in 5-1-3 tablespoons shortening lipely. Gradually add milk, mixing it in lightly and using enough to make a dough which though soft, is not sticky. Turn onto lightly floured canvas or board and knead with the fingertips for 10 seconds. Roll to about 1/4-inch thickness and spread with a little soft butter. Cover with sliced apples, then (generously) with brown sugar; sprinkle with ground cinnamon and roll up like jelly-roll, dampening edges to seal well. Cut in inch slices and place with cut sides down in a greased pan (which may be prepared first by melting butter in the pan and covering with corn or cake syrup—use 2 tablespoons butter and 1-2 cup syrup for this amount of dough). Bake in hot oven, 425 degrees, about 25 minutes. CANNING CHERRIES WITHOUT SUGAR If cherries are canned without sugar, crush part of the cherries in the bottom of the preserving kettle, add enough water to keep the fruit from burning, add the rest of the cherries. Heat slowly until juice is extracted. Pack hot into sterilized sealers. The fruit should be packed quite solidly and there should be enough juice to fill the sealers. Processing times are the same as these given for cherries canned in syrup.

THE COOK'S CORNER (Continued) Questions and Answers will appear in the Guardian as a regular feature each week and the questions are those which have reached the Wartime Prices and Trade Board from housewives in this region. The answers are provided by the Board Readers. HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA TORONTO—National Immunization Week, during which Canadian parents will be urged to have their children vaccinated against diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough, which continues to take a needless and preventable toll of children's health in Canada. In at least two of the provinces preventive measures for scarlet fever will also be emphasized.

National Immunization Week will be a development from National Toxoid Week, held last year, when immunization for diphtheria alone was urged. There were almost 3,000 cases of diphtheria in Canada last year, and while mortality from the disease has been reduced with the use of anti-toxin, many children recover with complications, such as heart damage, the league points out.

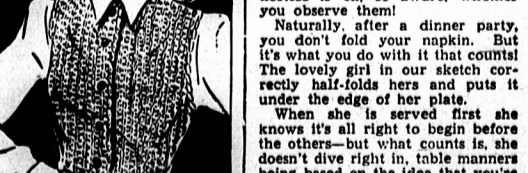

Public health authorities fear that if a large proportion of the growing generation of children are not vaccinated, an epidemic might spread rapidly, with disastrous results. Canada's present freedom from the disease is no justification for relaxing vigilance it has been urged.

Whooping cough is an important cause of child death and ill-health, which is not sufficiently appreciated by the league and out-lets that make everybody tired, and who think that amusing themselves is the chief thing in life."

"And if their wives try to restrain them, and make them be their age and act like sensible human beings, they consider the wives domestic tyrants and complain of being nagged.
