THE British and American Steamship and Railway Tourist Agency beg to call the attention of the public to the facilities offered by this office for reaching the large class of summer tourists from all parts of the American Continent, who annually pass through Boston, looking for new recreation grounds. For the past seven years this office has been considered by the traveling public, as headquarters for those looking for information concerning summer resorts, hotels and boarding houses in Canada and the Maritime Provinces, namely, Nova Scotia, N. W. Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island. Many thousands of Americans have visited the Canadian resorts through the sole agency of this office. This department of their business has now grown to such proportions that in order to conduct it in an up-to-date and equitable manner to all concerned, they have resolved this season to adopt a new and more systematic method of registration for summer hotels and boarding houses, where painstaking, personal attention will be accorded the wants of patrons. They wish to remind the public in this connection that many American families will not go to a new summer resort unless they can be assured beforehand of the character of the hotels and boarding houses. In order to provide a portion of the cost incurred in the carrying on of this department, they charge a nominal registration fee to all hotels and boarding houses desiring to have the benefit of this service. An early response will insure proper attention.

THE June Number of The Delineator is called the Early Summer number and combines an immense amount of authoritative and applicable advice as to what is the newest and most beautiful in the world of fashion including special illustrations of Bridal Costumes—with a profusion of sparkling Literary features, Social, Household and Departmental hints and suggestions and Fancy Work detail. The story, A Box of Oranges, by Anna Robeson Brown, recounts in sprightly fashion the exciting incidents attending the solution of an enigmatical gift. A graphic picture of Eastern conditions is presented in Marriage in the Orient, by Laura B. Starr. The origin and treatment of cancer are lucidly discussed by Dr. Grace Peckham Murray in the season 1 of four papers on The Great Scourges of humanity. The concluding chapter in The Development of a Boy, by Alice Meynell, is a child-study of uncommon depth. In this number also is completed the Series on Cultivation of the Voice, by Eleanor Georgan. The sixth of the New Kindergarten Papers, Home Work and Play for June, by Sara Miller Kirby, will appeal to nature-loving instincts, as will also the instructive sketch Wild-flower Hunting. Michigan clubs are discussed in Club Women and Club Life, by Helen M. Winslow. A perfect Travelling Outfit, by Clare Bunch, is a particularly seasonable topic. The descriptions of Commencement Days in College News, by Carolyn Halsted, are filled with a delightful college atmosphere. Girls' Interests and Occupations, by L. Fayette McLaws, is characterized by the usual zest and good humor. The puzzling complications of A Slip Hunt make it a model entertainment. Of a more distinct Domestic character are the articles, A talk to Mothers, by Edna S. Witherspoon, and Frozen Novelties, by Amelia Sulzbacher. The Departments Fancy Stitches and Embroideries, by Emma Haywood; Social Observances, by Mrs. Frank Learned; The Dressmaker, The Milliner, Crocheting, Knitting, The Latest Books, etc., etc., yield a rich grist of indispensable information.
