Interesting Items.

The anonymous author of "An Onlooker's Note Book" says that he remembers a little boy belonging to an historic English family who cried when he cut his finger—not because it hurt, but because he was poignantly disappointed to find that his blood was not blue, as he had always been taught, but red, like anyone else's.

The majority of people can scarcely remember the time when there was no revolver, yet the fact is that it is a modern weapon and in its form of real efficiency is less than half a century old. It was the invention of Joseph Shirk, a citizen of Lancaster County, Pennsylvania.

It is said that one of the great enemies of the overland telegraph line in Central Australia is the common green frog. In order to save the insulators from being broken by the lightning they are provided with wire "droppers" leading round them at a little distance to conduct on to the iron pole in case of need.

A great many people were sorry to hear, a little while ago, that old "Pug," the Central Park, New York, police horse, was to be sold by auction. For fourteen years he had done service in the police department, and during that time had stopped innumerable runaways, several of them on his own account, having started when his rider was absent and having caught the reins of the runaway in his teeth.

Mythical French Politeness. "One hears so much about French politeness and sees so little of it that I was a good deal struck by two good specimens of it which have recently come under my notice," writes a correspondent.
