Interest Quickens In Guiding

turn to work and wash the dishes for fifty persons. Girls who had never cooked had to scramble eggs, boil potatoes, etc. over a low fire-place built upon bricks, but as the work was shared equally nobody minded.

"The Montague and Charlottetown Guides were kindly assisted by Miss Hilda Jenkins, Miss Betty MacKay and Miss May Bentley. The 1st Charlottetown Company has since camped ten days of each fortnight. These camps were made possible only through the kindness of Mr. J. O. Hyndman who loaned his summer house land and tennis courts to the Guides."

The 1st Charlottetown Company is now under the leadership of Miss Dorothy Bentley, Miss Gwynneth Fry and Miss Gladys Hart.

2nd Charlottetown Company

In September, 1932 a meeting was called for the formation of a Guide Company in St. Paul's Church, Charlottetown. The girls were made up of those who had been in the twenty-eight girls present and by the fourth week the quota of thirty-six members had been reached, and a waiting list was started. The Company was under the leadership of Miss Dorothy Bentley as Captain and Miss Virginia Scarth as Lieutenant the former having been in the 7th Montreal Company and the latter a Patrol Leader in the 1st Windsor, N. S. Company.

Five patrols were organized and the girls soon passed their tenderfoot tests and were enrolled. The Company was registered at Headquarters as the 2nd Charlottetown Company. The first year was a busy one, spent in earning money for uniforms and equipment and in elementary test passing.

The Patrols for the first year were the Misses Jacqueline and Esther LaCourse (transferred from the 1st Montague Company) Hilda Richardson (now Company Leader) Vivian Partridge and Patricia Ritchie.

In February 1934 the Company's Lieutenant, Miss Scarth, left to take over the captaincy of the 1st Charlottetown Company. Miss Scarth was replaced by Miss Olive Thornton who had been one of Charlottetown's pioneer Guides. This company is still under the leadership of Miss Reay and Miss Thornton.

The First Guide Camp at Canoe Cove

In the summer of 1933 the 2nd Charlottetown Company held its first camp at Canoe Cove, which proved to be a very jolly and successful one. The Guides were kindly assisted in camp oversight work by Miss Ruth Ayres, Miss J. R. Fullerton and Miss Phyllis Reay.

1st Charlottetown Brownie Pack

Soon after the inception of the 2nd Charlottetown Company in the autumn of 1932 a Brownie Pack was formed in St. Peter's Church, Miss Gwynneth Fry was Brown Owl, assisted by Miss Gladys Hart. The Pack was registered as the 1st Charlottetown Pack and has since furnished the Company to which it is attached with a number of well prepared and eager recruits. Miss Joan Brady has since been taken into the Pack as further assistant.

The Melville Guides Start Out

About this time a group of girls in Melville under Mrs. Phillip Ross began to hold meetings in Mrs. Ross's home with the intention of becoming Girl Guides. Unfortunately it was not possible for this group of girls registered as a Company until over a year later, but the girls have since been enrolled as Guides and are now doing splendid work under their Captain Miss May Gilmour with Miss Jean

In response to a local hospital's emergency radio call for a blood transfusion, the Edmonton and Russian Scouts presented themselves. The majority of the Alberta capital's Rover Scouts have placed their names on the rolls at the various hospitals for this service, for people who are unable to pay.

Lord Baden-Powell has made a post-humous award of the Bronze Cross, the highest award of the Scout Movement for gallantry at serious risk, to a ten year old Wolf Cub, Jack R. Green of the 1st Blackwood (Monmouthshire) Cub Pack. Cub Green attempted to save his 11 year old sister, who had fallen into a pond, and lost his life with her.

After a period of training by members of the Beamsville, Ont., volunteer fire department, the local Boy Scouts have been declared an efficient junior auxiliary fire brigade. "If a serious conflagration should break out," stated Fire Chief Gibson, "we would not be the least bit afraid to leave part of our duties to these boys."

"Scouting has done an immense amount of good all over the world, among races of every colour. When I was Governor of Guyana I saw a little brown boy, too poor to buy any sort of uniform--they just had staves--organizing themselves into Scout Troops and obeying the Scout Law. It had a wonderful effect on them."--Sir Herbert Stanley, G.C.M.G., Governor and Chief Scout for Southern Rhodesia.

Ralph Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smith, Rochford St., has been officially approved by the Provincial Command to represent the Island in the Canadian contingent to the Washington Jamboree August 21-31. Besides his connections with the Rovers he holds the rank of King Scout and is Troop Leader of St. Paul's troop of which the Field Commissioner, Mr. William Warren is leader. The Canadian contingent will consist of 53 members including officers. Ralph Smith is the only scout standing from the MacKenzie as Lieutenant, capably supervised by Mrs. Ross, in whose home weekly meetings are still held.

Visit of Dominion Field Secretary

Welcome assistance to Charlottetown Guiders was given by the arrival in October, 1933 of the Dominion Field Secretary, Miss K. McMahon who visited and inspected the Guides and Brownies, held training classes for Guiders and attended and addressed the annual meeting of the Local Association held on October 27th, 1933.

2nd Charlottetown Brownie Pack

In November, 1933 a Pack was formed in connection with the 2nd Charlottetown Guide Company which met in St. Paul's Parish Hall. A large number of recruit Brownies joined under the leadership of Helen Terrell assisted by Miss Olive Thornton and Miss Esther Hart. Several of these Brownies have also "gone up" to the Company and are excelling themselves as Guides.

3rd Charlottetown Company

This Company was organized in February, 1934 under Miss J. R. Fullerton, Miss Effie Brehaut and Miss Betty Large. Recruits flocked to join and a waiting list was very soon necessary. Within a few months every girl in the Company was enrolled and provided with a complete uniform.

The Joint Camp at Canoe Cove

The following summer this Company joined the 2nd Charlottetown Company at a very enjoyable winter camp at Canoe Cove. Miss Fullerton was Camp Commandant. Besides the other Guiders Miss Fullerton was kindly assisted by the Misses Bernice Mutch and Margaret Woolaver.

The I. O. D. E. Lend Their Support.

The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire have on three occasions donated Union Jacks to the Charlottetown Guiders. These flags have been dedicated in St. Peter's, St. Paul's and St. James' Churches. In the past the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Charlottetown Companies hold their meetings respectively. The members of the I. O. D. E. have given loyal and staunch support and many are on the Provincial Council and Local Association.

The First Joint Church Parade

A combined Church Parade of all Companies and Packs was held on May 27th 1934 when one hundred and fifty Charlottetown Guiders and Brownies paraded to St. James' Church on the occasion of the presentation and dedication of the colours of the 3rd Charlottetown Company.

A Joint Church Parade has since been held and will be an annual affair on the Sunday nearest to Empire Day.

The Province is Provincially Organized

In the Autumn of 1934 a long felt need in the way of a Provincial Council was finally granted. Mrs. G. D. DeBlois graciously consented to become Honorary Vice-President of the Movement in Canada and the Provincial Council was held at the picturesque Government House on Oct. 17, 1934.

Miss Mona Wilson, formerly President of the Local Association was appointed Provincial Commissioner, with Miss Mary MacNutt as Deputy Provincial Commissioner.

The Formation of a Guiders' Council

The Guiders of Charlottetown were further aided and brought more closely together by the formation, amongst themselves, of a Guiders' Council in November, 1934. The officers appointed were: President, Miss R. S. MacNutt; Vice-President, Miss Dorothy Bentley; Secretary, Miss Gwynneth Fry; Treasurer, Miss Dorothy Bentley. The Guiders' Council meets in turn at the Guiders' homes on every third Wednesday.

Rangers (Senior Guides) are Organized

In January of this year the need of a Ranger Company was felt as many of the older Guiders were drifting. A Company was organized under Miss Wilson, Miss MacNutt and Miss Burns and their thanks are extended to the Rovers for the use of the Rover Den in which to hold their meetings. A successful concert was held in May 29th which realized a sum sufficient for buying complete uniforms. Rangers are girls over sixteen years of age who intend to carry the Guide Promise out into a wider world.

Guiding in Murray River, Alberton and Borden.

During the past few months three other Guide Companies outside of Charlottetown have been registered. The Company at Murray River is under the capable leadership of Mrs. Walter Daisiel and twenty-nine teen girls have so far been invested. This Company put on a very successful concert, making enough money to purchase part of their uniforms.

Mrs. W. J. Phillips is the Captain of the Alberton Guiders and she is ably assisted by Miss Marion Wilson as Lieutenant. Since the Company's first meeting in December the attendance has been excellent and the majority of these Guiders have been enrolled and are now working on their second class tests.

Early in March, Mrs. Wallace Field interested Miss Genivieve MacDonald and Miss Tessie Sexton in the formation of a Guide Company in Borden. The result was the 1st Borden Company, which is now composed of over twenty enrolled Guiders. Soon after its inception a successful party sale was held. Much credit is due to the Deputy Provincial Commissioner, Miss MacNutt, for her untiring efforts in bringing about the formation of these three Companies.

At Last Guiding has Taken Root

It will thus be noted that whereas all existing Companies and Packs in the Province are less than five years old, not one has been forced to disband for any reason within that time. From this it must surely be a fact that Girl Guiding in this Province has at last firmly taken root.

However, the efforts of those brave young ladies who so valiently carried on in the days when the aim of Guiding was very little understood by the public, were not in vain, for it is they who have done so much towards clearing and paving the roads upon which the present Guiders are now travelling.

In conclusion, we would again like to quote Mrs. MacIntyre: "It is good to see this splendid work among young girls in the teen age and under, once more take new life and sincerely hope that the impetus of the coming of its founders Lord and Lady Baden-Powell will surely give the Movement, we may hope for a steady and vigorous growth and the training in habits of willing service, respect and the knowledge of many useful arts and crafts, all of which will broaden and enrich the lives of our girls and develop a sound and moral character."

Baptist Young People Meet

The P. E. Island Association of Baptist Young People met Saturday afternoon and evening in the Tryon Baptist Hall.

The business of the group was reported at the afternoon session, reports showing a very successful season. The program of meetings at Moncton in August was outlined by Rev. A. Gibson, and the Island President, Mr. Spurgeon Clark, was appointed as the P. E. Island Executive delegate to the Convention.

Mr. Spurgeon Clark, Tryon, was re-elected President for the ensuing year. The program of the evening was presided over by the President, Mr. Spurgeon Clark. One representative from each Society to complete the Executive.

A contest was outlined to cover attendance at Church Services, average attendance at group meetings, the number of meetings held and contributions to the missionary objective of the Maritime Young People during the year from September, 1935 to May 31, 1936, together with the number of members participating in the Bible Readers Course from January to May inclusive.

LADIES AND OFFICIALS

A prominent part is played by ladies in the Scout Movement, and in this Province, 5000 have been very fortunate in having an enthusiastic ladies' auxiliary for the Association, as well as ladies aids in connection with individual troops. Outstanding in its devotion to the movement as been Mrs. A. B. Cosh, who has given much valuable time and service to both St. Peter's Troop and the Provincial Command. She has been greatly assisted by Mrs. F. S. Chandler, the present President, who also has given devoted service to the interest of St. James' Troop. The present Auxiliary consists of, besides the President, Mrs. Walter Bowness, Mrs. George Hooper, Mrs. J. D. McCougan, Mrs. J. J. Morris, Miss Josie Blake, Mrs. Gavin Duffy, Miss Joseph Hennessey, Miss Margaret Irving, Mrs. Wm. Brehaut, Mrs. Rowland Paton, Mrs. Wm. Cotton, Mrs. J. D. Jenkins, and Mrs. Arthur Alfleck.

forces then in Mafeking. Situated in the centre of Bechuanaaland, on the long line of railway between Kimberley and Rhodesia, it was from this little town of corrugated iron buildings that, four years earlier, the unfortunate exploit known as the Jameson Raid had been launched. Baden-Powell's force consisted entirely of irregulars--a detachment of the Protectorate Regiment, some police, the town guard and so forth--amounting in all to less than 1,000 men. The "artillery" amounted to a couple of seven-pounders. The town was invested immediately after the declaration of war.

At the first the besiegers were under the command of the redoubtable Cronje, although Cronje himself soon left for other operations, and in a few months surrendered at Paardeberg, where the Canadian Contingent rendered gallant service and suffered grievously.

For seven long months the tiny garrison of Mafeking suffered in investment with undaunted spirit. The enemy cut the water supply, so the townsmen dug wells. Baden-Powell's fertility of invention, both in checkmating and in rallying the men and women of Mafeking, never failed. The Boers brought up heavy guns, the defenders of Mafeking instituted an ingenious system of warning the townspeople when the big shells were coming. The only reply possible to the bombardment was a series of bayonet sorties. These were repeatedly carried out by "B.P.'s" irregulars.

The high spirits with which Baden Powell conducted his defence were infectious. In spite of the shelling and the privations a daily round of entertainment was organized. There would be a cricket match in the morning, sports in the afternoon, and a ball at night. For seven months the eyes of the whole world were fastened upon this beleaguered little township of the Veldt.

Siege Was Raised
 Finally in May 1900, Colonel (later Field-Marshal Lord) Plumer, with Regulars and soldiers of the Rhodesian Force, raised the siege. Mafeking was a place of little or no strategic importance, but the plucky resistance of its people kept 3,000 of the Boer forces from other operations during the most vital months of the War. Probably also the invasion of Rhodesia was averted.

The style of hat affected by the Boy Scout the world over is a memento of the siege of Mafeking, for it was this kind of hat in which Baden-Powell figured when everybody's lips. The wild exuberance which burst out in London and other places when the news of the relief of the town came to hand was responsible for the addition to the dictionary of the verb "to mangle." Baden-Powell's achievement made him a national hero.

His military services were recognized by his promotion to the rank of Major-General.
 For four years after the South African War he was Inspector-General of Cavalry in Great Britain.

During the remainder of the evening the B. Y. P. U. of East Point under the efficient leadership of their Pastor, Rev. H. B. Bell, very ably presented the pageant "A Sinner Beloved", giving a very vivid picture of the life of the prophet Hosea and leaving a very prophetic and profitable message which taxed the seating capacity of the spacious auditorium.

Rev. Mr. Bell as soloist with an orchestra of three--Miss Erma McGregor, Mr. Preston Bennett and Mr. Kenneth Seaver rendered suitable music during the pageant. The leading parts were ably portrayed by Mr. Earl Kennedy, Miss Martha Robertson, Garfield Robertson, Evelyn Robertson and Ernest Allen. Others taking part included Ernest Morrow, Murie Bruce, Stuart McGregor, Rupert Garrett, Eva Stewart, Vera Ching, Evelyn McVane, Clinton Stewart, Wesley Bruce, and Austin Page.

Each new lesson aroused fresh enthusiasm in the boys and the delight with which they studied convinced their teacher that the idea merited expansion. So a few weeks later the first Boy Scout scheme was given to the world. Within six months more than 80,000 boys had been enrolled in Great Britain. The movement spread quickly, first to the United States, Canada, Australia, South Africa and the English colonies in the Orient, and then to non-English speaking countries. The 1930 "world scout jamboree" saw 50,000 prize scouts gather in England from 71 lands.

From a purely recreational beginning, the movement has grown into an ideal of service. Participants in it are no longer boys who have rendered valuable aid to the Red Cross, while untold millions of cases of helplessness have resulted from the rule of "one good deed a day."

much the same creature, as events have proved, in all the countries of the world. It satisfied their almost universal taste for romance and adventure. It was carried on mainly out of doors. It enabled them to indulge--but always with a definite practical purpose in view--in the delights of camping, cooking, nature study, tracking, finding their way about by their own powers of observation and memory as well as by map-reading, the interpretation of small everyday signs on land and water, and the quick reading of sky and stars, besides more stereotyped exercises such as boating, swimming, carpentering, and other handicrafts. If he had stopped at this point he would not doubt have achieved a success of a kind in banding together a large number of boys and helping them to make their lives happier and healthier and more intelligent and self-reliant. But he had a higher aim in view. He wanted also to instill into their minds, a proper regard for their own bodily development, a desire for cleanliness, physical and moral, and--more important still--habits of obedience and self-discipline, a sense of duty, self-sacrifice, loyalty, and patriotism, a spirit of friendliness to man and beast, and a knightly code of chivalry, courtesy, thrift, honour, courage, cheerfulness, and general helpfulness. It is open to men of ordinary minds to argue, with a certain show of reason, that these qualities and virtues, however excellent in themselves, have nothing whatever to do with scout craft and scouting. Happily for the world the Chief Scout is not an ordinary mind. To him they seemed to be essential to the success of his scheme, which without them would have been as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal. As it is they are the life and breath of the whole movement, and utterly confounding, though they do not apparently contribute, the sour and morbid and class-conscious critics who profess to detect in Scouting the cloven hoof of militarism.

When the Great War broke out the Association was still in its infancy. The fact that 150,000 ex-Scouts--eleven of whom won the Victoria Cross and 10,000 of whom were killed--fought for their King and country does not stamp them as a military force. They only served, like every one else who could, as part of the manhood of the Empire. The specially remarkable feature of the work of the Association during the War was the tact and intelligence and willingness shown by every unit of the existing Boy Scouts of all the combatant nations, each in their own country in voluntary public services of all kinds, however dull and monotonous, in places outside and generally far removed from the zone of the armies. The same zeal and endurance and readiness to oblige are almost universally known and acknowledged to be the hall-mark and distinguishing badge of the Association in time of peace. In the Old Country, from the Throne to the humblest cottage, they are recognized and honored as only second to the police in general utility. King Edward was their firm friend; King George is their Patron today; the Prince of Wales is the Chief Scout for Wales and the Earl of Bessborough, Governor-General for Canada; and there is not a leading man in the country who would not gladly and proudly see his name connected with them.

Visiting Scouts from outside Charlottetown will be looked after by the Ladies Auxiliary and billeted with Boy Scout families while in the City.

A large turn out of City Scouts and Cubs is expected for the arrival of the great Chief of the World this evening.

It was overlooked in the report of the Corpus Christi procession that the Basilica troop was present under the direction of Assistant Scoutmaster Earle Norris.

Historic Glastonbury Abbey was the scene of a gathering of more than a thousand Boy Scouts over Whitsuntide. They came "up from Somerset," Devon, Gloucestershire, and Wiltshire.

Scouts from seven European countries--Denmark, Sweden, Finland, France, Norway, and Russian Scouts from London and Armenia from Paris--were guests at a West Country (England) Whitsuntide Scout Jamboree. The program included boxing, campcraft, bridge building, signalling and first aid.

Another Whitsun gathering was a National Sea Scout Meet, which brought Sea Scouts from all over England to Douglas House Meadows, Petersham, on the Thames. The camp was inspected by Admiral A. V. Campbell, C.B., D.S.O., M.V.O., London Headquarters Commissioner for Sea Scouts.

"When it is successful Scout leadership is a noble work. It is the shaping of human characters which will endure for eternity. To amass wealth; to become a filmstar--all these ambitions are fleeting and evanescent. But to have made a good Scout is an everlasting achievement."--Rt. Rev. Mr. T. W. Morton, in a radio address from Winnipeg.

The Boy Scouts of India carried out a program of loyal celebration of the King's Silver Jubilee which included beacons in the hilly provinces, rallies, parades, campfires and services for prayer and thanksgiving. Scouts of Assam contributed one pipe each toward a cablegram to His Majesty, and the Scouts of Bihar and Orissa sent a message of affection and loyalty to Their Majesties through His Excellency the Provincial Chief Scout by cycle relay 2,000 miles through the dense forests of Orissa and Chota Nagpur.

The actual number of Boy Scout beacons to celebrate the King's Silver Jubilee in Britain was 1,775.
