The judge was forced to adjourn court and the woman with tears streaming down her cheeks was assisted to the anteroom.

She is Mrs. Maurig Morris, well-known medium, who is suing the London Daily Mail for libel. When the trial resumed the court listened to a gramophone record made by her under the influence of a spirit she called "Power." A deep unearthly voice "from the other side" boomed from the portable gramophone on the lawyers table while many women in the courtroom clasped hands and prayed.

Capt. Lauchlin McLaine Passes

Capt. Lauchlin H. McLaine, 68, one time prominent figure in Maritime shipping clubs, died at his residence, 55 Fitzgerald Ave., Whitney Pier, Tuesday afternoon about four o'clock following a lingering illness.

A native of Prince Edward Island, deceased had for years sailed his own ships out of that Province and for a time operated a flourishing lobster packing business at St. Peter's, P. E. I. He came to Sydney more than twenty years ago, residing here ever since, and during his residence acquired a wide circle of friends and acquaintances who will learn with deep regret the news of his passing.

A widower, his wife having predeceased him five years ago, he is survived by two sons, Walter and Percy at home, and two daughters, Mrs. P. J. Doyle, living in Charlottetown, and Mrs. L. J. Evans, James St., Whitney Pier. Also one brother, Wallace McLaine, at Nine Mile Creek, P. E. I., and three sisters, Mrs. Frank Nevers, Dedham, Mass., Mrs. George Gorveatt, Cumberland, P. E. I., and Miss Ellen McLaine, Wesleyan, Mass. Another sister, Miss Annie McLaine, and a brother George McLaine, passed away some time ago. Retiring from the sea shortly after coming to Sydney deceased joined the staff of the carpenter shop department at the steel plant.

Sorrowing friends and relatives in large numbers turned out yesterday afternoon to pay their final respects to the memory of Captain Lauchlin McLaine, well known and highly respected Pier resident, whose funeral was held from his late residence, 55 Fitzgerald Avenue, to Hardwood Hill cemetery, where interment was made.

Services at the house, St. James United Church and graveside, were conducted by the Rev. Dr. John MacIntosh and favorite hymns of the deceased were rendered by members of the choir.

The funeral was one of the largest witnessed in the Pier district for some time and the numerous and beautiful floral offerings, cards, telegrams and other messages of sympathy received by the bereaved family tangibly testified to the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

The pall bearers were J. Moffatt, Angus McLeod, Norman Gillis, D. A. Gillis, D. C. McNeil, and Frank Fitzgerald.—Sydney Exch.

IN MEMORIAM

GEORGE ALBERT WHITEWAY
George Albert Whiteway passed away at his home on the farm, Dover, Caledonia, on April 15th, 1932 after an illness which lasted since last November. The end came like a child peacefully falling asleep in his mother's arms with his wife and members of his family present at his bedside.

He was born at Murray River 66 years ago but spent the most of his life on his beautiful farm at Dover where he finished his earthly course. As a good neighbour and Christian citizen he strove to carry out the counsel of Paul to the Philippians and live "blameless and harmless as one after the Son of God" and "shine as a light in the world", devoting his life to his family, the duties of his daily calling and the word and worship of the Living God.

"Behold the Book whose leaves display
Jesus the Life, the Truth the Way
Read it with diligence, with prayer
Search it and you shall find Him there."

Mr. Whiteway impressed the writer as one who took this advice to heart. He was a diligent and devout reader and student of the Bible. He committed much of it to memory and heart; in the language of his noble wife, "It is me that knows the hours and hours he occupied poring over the sacred pages of the Blessed Book." God gripped him through His Word and he gripped God in Christ revealed in the precious promises of the sacred page. Thus he was able to quote it with reverence, facility and fitness, application and love, the love of God in his heart to the edification and delight of the earnest listener. He was ordained into the Eldership a few years ago.

Rev. Allister Murray, Caledonia, conducted the funeral service at the home and grave in Murray River cemetery. The pallbearers were: Messrs. J. H. Saunders, J. E. Saunders, John Bowles, Chester Whiteway, Carney MacLure and Farnley McLure. Mr. Whiteway left to mourn the loss of a godly husband and father, his wife, three sons, William at home, Robert and John of Brooklyn, four daughters, Mrs. McKinnon, Brooklyn, Mrs. Lewis Johnstone, Upper Stewiacke, N. S., and the Misses

French Elections Under Discussion

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

PARIS, April 20.—Canadian Press Cable)—Hair always ruffled, "walrus" moustache aggressively curled, flowing the flapping in the breeze, Louis Marin, Deputy from Nancy and leader of the Republican Federation, is one of the most picturesque personalities in the French electoral campaign which winds up with balloting on May 1 and 8.

In the comforting atmosphere of a banquet given by the republican federation over which he presided, Mr. Marin received a letter. It was from Pierre Laval, at the time Prime Minister of France. "It is pleasing to me," Mr. Laval wrote, "to take this opportunity of telling you how much I appreciate the fidelity and constancy of the co-operation which the federation and its elected members have always given to me since I assumed the heavy duties of office." The gathering broke into loud applause.

In the chamber, the group which corresponds to the republican federation is the republican democratic union. It is generally classified as the main group of the right. The letter cut the rumors short. However, desirous Laval might be of radical-socialist co-operation he evidently did not intend (so the letter was interpreted) to break with friends of the right.

Political Paris buzzed with imminent crisis. Rumors arose, died down, arose again. The letter may have played only a minor part. Be that as it may, within 10 days the radical senate had defeated the Laval government on a motion of non-confidence. Mr. Laval's resignation was in the hands of the president of the Republic. So much for letters of appreciation.

In the Chamber Mr. Marin is known alike for the ability of his speech and the fertility of his ideas. He was Minister for the liberated regions in the Poincare government. A deep student of the constitution, an advocate of votes for women and senate reform, he would introduce more business-like methods into parliamentary work. He is strongly urging the entente with central groups against socialism.

"Goodwill," he holds, "does not suffice." The groups must get together, he argues. Though long a resident of Paris, he represented the first division of Nancy, Department of Meurthe-et-Moselle, and this is part of the "Marches of Lorraine" which know what foreign invasion and bombardment is, which are insistent on the full realization of the Tardieu policy of security before disarmament. When one thinks of French national sentiment one automatically turns to M. Marin. Since ill-health forced former Premier Poincare from the political field Marin has become the foremost protagonist of the "Lorraine School."

Impetuous, thoroughly honest and outspoken, incapable of concealing his convictions for long, he is one of the stormy petrels of France's public life.

Would Dismiss Half Of Staff

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, April 20 (Canadian Press Cable)—A generation was caused in labor circles today by the publication of a circular by the W. R. Jacobs biscuit manufacturing company, the second largest individual employer of labor in Ireland, which amounted to a virtual ultimatum that if the Free State seceded from the British Commonwealth of Nations the firm would discontinue the services of 1,500 workers, or half of their staff.

The circular stressed that if the intention of the Republican Government to abolish the oath led to the secession of the free state, the company's factors would not be able to export biscuits to Northern Ireland and Great Britain without paying import duties on their arrival and therefore would have to transfer manufacturing to Aintree, Liverpool.

The circular created a delicate position for the labor members of the DaIL, holding the balance of power between President Eamon De Valera's Republicans and the party of former President William T. Cosgrave. The labor members are understood to have pledged their support to the bill abolishing the oath of allegiance, which will be introduced at the reassembly of the DaIL April 20.

The circular pointed out the factory's products would also have to encounter import duties in all British dominions and colonies owing to the regular difference in duties between members of the commonwealth and foreign nations.

"This portion of our export trade would also be transferred to our English factory, including the new and growing trade in biscuits packed in air-tight cartons for Canada and other markets," the circular said. These changes would result in halving the output of the Dublin factory and making inevitable the proportionate dismissals.

FAMOUS PORTLAND VASE RETURNS TO BRITISH MUSEUM

LONDON, Eng., April 20.—(By The Canadian Press)—The Portland Vase, which is nearly 2,000 years old, is returning to the British Museum after being nearly three years in the vaults of a bank. In April, 1929, the Duke of Portland, owner of the treasure, withdrew it from the gold ornaments room where it had been for about a century, and it was put up for auction at Christie's. An exceptional price was expected for it, but to the general surprise about $150,000 was offered—far below the reserve price and the vase was withdrawn. The Portland Vase is considered about 1,000 years old, and stands only 10 inches high. It was found in a tomb near Rome, in the 16th century, and came into the Duke of Portland's family in 1784.

COVENT GARDEN OPEN, LONDON GAINS OPERA.

LONDON, April 20.—(By The Canadian Press)—London music-lovers heard the recent announcement that Covent Garden is not to be closed for the entire summer season, as had been feared, with considerable relief, and there is a general gladness in the knowledge that there will be opera for at least four weeks. The short opera season has been decided upon since the statement was made not long ago that Covent
