THE BUDGET

The Liberal and Progressive government has succeeded in negotiating what looked like a dangerous curve in their devious career; they carried the vote on the budget. Everyone who has watched the proceedings of the House expected this. Everyone who read the ultimatum given by Premier King some days ago to the effect that the vote on the budget would determine whether there should be an immediate appeal to the country or another session of the House, who have private "pull" but little expected some such outcome as developed in the budget vote. The situation was clear as mud, either the government had to be sustained in the vote on the budget or the members would have to seek reelection and the latter was unthinkable. The two alternatives placed before them were, support the government or go back to your constituencies. The Liberals and Progressives supported the government and decided to remain in the shelter while the roof could be kept over their heads. The Conservatives voted against the government.

Much more interest, we take it, will attach to the disclosures made by the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen in his speech on the budget than on the result of the voting. The Liberals and Progressives voted as they were expected to, they voted to save their political skins. Mr. Meighen, in a speech which was incontrovertible, the figures in which cannot be successfully contradicted, disclosed a situation which cannot but be regarded as calamitous. By actual count, he declared, the government had adopted nine different policies since their advent to power and they were all wrong, each policy calculated to maintain their grip on their seats in the Commons and on such other emoluments as might come their way through their support of the government. They had in their three years of office added $262,000,000 to the public debt, besides $18,000,000 since the close of last year. They had misrepresented the immigration figures in an attempt to justify the enormous expenditure on immigration. His exposure of the inconsistency of the Progressives who had declared against certain policies and then to save their skins voted for these same policies was sufficiently scathing to compel them to drop their $4,000 salaries under their seats.

We shall now see recorded in the Liberal press, in capital lettered headlines the "Great Victory" of the Mackenzie King government, the entire satisfaction of the people with the King government and the utter "defeat" of the Conservative party. So Canada is moving on towards the end of a regime which has brought the country nearer to disaster than any other regime in its history. The end is, at the worst, not far off. One more session is quite probable and, if that is decided upon, not very much can be added to the injury already done, to the depopulation, to the stagnation of industries, to the general business depression. And there is no help for it. There is, however, a terrible lesson in it and we trust the people have learned it sufficiently thoroughly to enable them to avoid another such catastrophe.

Notes By The Way

Hard times, the high cost of living and the cost of high living were matters touched upon by His Lordship Bishop Richardson in his admirable address to the Anglican Synod the other day. "Times are hard, of course," he said, "there is no room to question that. There is nothing in the situation to warrant pessimism, and there is nothing to be gained by an unreasoning optimism that refuses to look facts in the face." He was wondering whether it might not be well for people to consider whether they were not in some measure responsible for much of the depression which we all deplore.

In saying this he was not thinking of any lack of initiative, or the like, nor was he dealing with what are in his opinion quite properly spoken of as Maritime Rights, but was simply wondering whether instead of talking so much about the high cost of living and blaming that for all our troubles we ought not to be thinking about the cost of high living—a very different thing and one that concerns us very closely. "The fact is," he said, "that we have acquired ideas of living and standards of expenditure that are altogether beyond our means. These standards were adopted half unconsciously in the mirage of fictitious prosperity that was one of the unhappy aftermaths of the war, and have hardened into fixed habits."

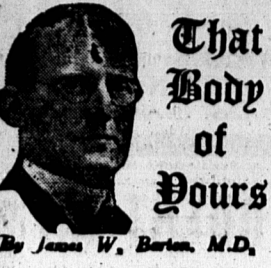

All of which is undoubtedly true. Privileges and possessions that were once regarded as the luxuries of the comparatively rich are now looked upon as the necessities of the comparatively poor, and an almost reckless extravagance has become the common rule of life and has become the curse of governments and people alike. His Lordship instanced the expenditure of the people of New Brunswick on motor cars. In the three years 1922 to 1924 inclusive, when complaints about the scarcity of money and general business depression were common everywhere, the people of the province expended for what is to a very considerable extent a luxury, close upon $9,000,000.

The motor car is only one of a number of expensive luxuries taken on since the war the purchase of which would not have been entertained for a moment by their present owners in pre-war times. Yet to the first cost of nine millions has been added other millions for the cost of operation and maintenance. The money now locked up in cars was formerly available for the purchase of articles of necessity for living, and its diversion to luxury must have gone far to create the scarcity of money that is complained of. Thus hard times have naturally followed upon "the cost of high living."

Assuming the average first cost of the motor car to be $1,000 and the cost of operation and maintenance to be $500 per annum the ultimate sum withdrawn mainly for comfort, convenience and luxury by the purchase, maintenance and operation of 1,000 cars for three years would be $2,500,000. And how many thousands of cars have been purchased in Canada during the hard times of the past three years. It can hardly be otherwise than this immense withdrawal of money from the purchase of textiles, leather goods and other lines of industry and trade has contributed to the general depression.

The beer drinkers of Ontario who had been rejoicing in the prospect of abundant supplies of their favorite beverage at a mere nominal cost have met with a surprise. The federal customs and excise authorities at Ottawa have decided that the 4.4 per cent beer introduced by the Ferguson Government must pay an excise tax of 12½ cents per gallon, whereas the 2 per cent beer which could be lawfully sold under the Ontario Temperance Act paid no federal tax because it passed as non-intoxicating. The sale of 4.4 per cent beer is now expected to be 15 to 20 cents a pint.

During the budget debate Mr. Lewis, Progressive M. P., for Swift Current, suggested that to relieve heads of families from a part of their heavy burdens all bachelors over 25 years of age should be taxed. In this way millions could be raised for the benefit of all including the unmarried ones. "As it is now the married man is penalized, while the bachelor to a large extent escapes taxation," said Mr. Lewis. He added: "I think the Right Hon. the Prime Minister is setting a very bad example to the young men of this country. Unless he changes his condition he will

FALSE PLEURISY

During the cool months it is not unusual for the family physician to be called in to a case of "pleurisy," so called. The chest muscles are quite sore, and the movement of the arms in any direction, the movement of the chest in breathing, is extremely painful. The physician by the use of his stethoscope, notes the absence of any "friction rub" which would be present in pleurisy, tells the patient that there is no cause for anxiety as the trouble is really on the outside of the chest, that is simply in the muscles themselves. The lifting of the chest wall, and the covering of the lungs—the pleura—are not affected at all. What is this trouble called?

Well it is called "false pleurisy," pleurodynia, muscular rheumatism, myalgia (inflammation of the muscles), and perhaps some other names. What has happened? Something has got into the system that has made a direct attack upon the fibrous coverings of the muscle fibres, and the fibres which attach the muscles to the bones. That means that every movement of these muscles, gives a pull upon these fibres, and the nerves supplying the muscles fibres, and hence the pain. Most cases can be traced to overeating and then exposure to draughts, cold air, or dampness. There may be some specific cause, but it has not been discovered as yet.

Now although this false pleurisy is not dangerous, it is very troublesome, and requires real care and treatment. Many physicians treat the case as they would pleurisy by putting the patient to bed, and strapping up the chest with adhesive tape so as to limit the amount of movement in the muscles. Heat in any form is indicated, and so the hot water bag, hot poultices, or the ordinary plasters are used.

The Nostrils

Long, narrow nostrils stand for courage, and small nostrils for fear. Pride curves the nostrils. Those which run up the front of the nose signify coarse tastes, and the curved, distended type a love of horses. Thinness of the bridge of the nose is a sign of liberality and a quick parting with money, and noses wide at the bridge and spreading on to the face usually belong to persons bent on acquiring gain; but this feature must be read in conjunction with others, which may modify the tendency.

Mr. Lewis would have a graduated tax imposed, commencing at the age of 25 and increasing yearly thereafter every year so long as the bachelor shirks his responsibilities. The idea is not new, unreasonable or impracticable. It has been applied in France and in some

REV. MR. MALONE AND PUBLIC HEALTH

Sir,—You say in your Editorial Notes "It is evident that the Rev. Mr. Malone does not know much about politics in P. E. I." The Rev. Mr. Malone thoroughly agrees with you, and more, he is not concerned with the history of past political squabbles.

But, the plain man who is no politician expects the Government in power—whether it be the Bell Government or any other—to show its interest in this fight against T. B. in a practical way.

Here are the figures taken from the Report of the Federal Dept. of Health as to what each Provincial Government spends for this purpose.

Alberta, $102,948; British Columbia, $369,996; Manitoba, $13,485; New Brunswick, $5,157; Nova Scotia, $97,231; Ontario, $308,288; Quebec, $56,048; Saskatchewan, $90,000.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND, 0. Total spent by Provincial Governments, excluding P. E. I. $1,357,460.

I do not intend to enter into a newspaper controversy, but ask a plain question "What is the Government doing?"

Convention of The Quebec Union

Arrangements for the Annual Convention of the Union of Municipalities of the Province of Quebec, are being completed and the Official Programme is in hand.

The delegates will leave Montreal on the S. S. "Richelleu," the steamer de Luxe of the Canada Steamships, on Monday, June 22nd at 1.30 p.m. and will be in Montreal again on Sunday, June 28th at noon.

The delegates will stay 24 hours in Charlottetown and will be welcomed officially by the Provincial and Municipal authorities of Prince Edward Island. A civic banquet will be tendered them and automobile excursions, and visits to the fisheries and silver fox ranches will be arranged.

Papers will be given by distinguished speakers on subjects in which they are experts.

Hon. Senator Emile Vinck, Director Le Mouvement Commercial, Brussels, will be present and give an address.

The course of the "Richelleu" will never be out of sight of land, so that the rugged promontories of the Gaspeian coast, as well as the beauties of the New Brunswick shore, will be seen before the panorama of the "Island Province" comes into view.

It is likely that representatives of the municipalities of the other two Maritime Provinces will also be present and take part in the proceedings.

As the party will arrive at Charlottetown on June 24th, St. John the Baptist Day, Mayor McKenna is arranging for a special service in the Cathedral in honor of the patron saint of Quebec.

50,000 Affected By N. S. Strike

TORONTO, May 3.—Interviewed here last evening, Rev. Dr. F. McAvoy, of Glace Bay, director of relief work among the striking miners and their families of Cape Breton, stated that at a conservative estimate 50,000 persons are in the area affected. The object of his trip west, he said, was to head up a national relief organization and to make it clear that there could be no dispute as to the actual need of relief.
