THE MAN AND THE MAID. By Alice H. McGouldrick, Bluehill, Me. It was the hour of sunset. The house was one of the most stately mansions in all the suburbs of Boston. The maid stood at the window, her golden head leaning wearily against the casement; each separate hair, reflecting the glory of the western sky, became like a thread of spun gold. Her hands were lightly clasped, while on her eyelids the tears glistened.

Cut Out Coal Extravagance

There's just as much room for economy in buying coal as any other necessity of life. While Inverness Coal has more heat units to the ton than any other coal it costs no more than the common coal. The use of a little judgment or "horse sense" will tell any person that the coal with the greatest amount of heat-producing qualities is the most economical to buy. Inverness is properly screened coal—every particle of foreign matter is extracted, leaving nothing but a good, uniform standard of clean, screened coal. Buy the coal that will save dollars.

As the last low minor chords were struck and passed to eternity a sob came from the lips of the girl. "You do care, you do, dear," softly spoke the Man. "No," said the Maid, brokenly. "It was only the music." "Oh, if I could only play my way into your heart! I would play—I would write something that—" dropping her left hand, held her right in a warm strong clasp. "Not until I have proved myself able to do something in the world. Good-by, dear." "Good-by," came from the lips of the girl, and he was gone. She waited there in the still twilight darkness until she heard the front door close. Then she turned and went straight to her room. There she turned up the lights and peered long into her own eyes. "Hidden Adams," said she, addressing the girl in the mirror, "we have been little fools for we have sent away the man we love."

Ten years passed. A lonely woman knelt in an old cathedral in northern Italy. Her lips formed no prayer, but in her heart was one which had been there a decade. "Dear God, bring him back to me, rich or poor, gay or sad—I love him so!" Suddenly in all the silence the great organ sounded. There came the sad cry, the beautiful strains of the first movement of the "Moonlight Sonata." It fell on her ear as an answer from heaven, for who could play it in that wonderful way but the Man?

She softly rose, and as though guided by an unseen hand, found her way to the organ loft. There he sat. His face was thin. His hair was quite gray. His clothes were old. Still she knew him at once. The last low minor chords fell. He turned and saw her. "You—," he said, dully. "You—here—I, oh, I can't let you see me this way."

"Dear," she cried, "dear, I love you." He came to her and knelt at her feet. "I am not fit, beloved, to touch the hem of your garment. I failed miserably." "It is I who am not fit, dear, for I sent you away." She knelt beside him slipping her hand in his. "I have nothing to offer you now, not even an honest name."

FARMS RUN BY ELECTRICITY.

The application of electricity to agriculture may solve the labor problem of the American farmer. Farms run by electricity are no longer a novelty in Europe and Canada. The Southern Electrician reprints the report of the chairman of a Hydroelectric commission recently sent to Europe in search of information for the Ontario government, with the object of extending the use of the electricity generated by Niagara Falls to the Canadian farms. At an electrical exhibition in Munich the representative of the Canadian government remarked a model farm fully equipped with electricity, and a practical demonstration of electric plowing, where from twenty-five to thirty acres were being plowed with one plow per day. In practically all European farms electricity seems to be largely and extensively used on farms of from 25 to 1000 acres, for threshing, cleaning grain, cropping, root-cutting, sawing wood, pumping water, milking, cream-separating, butter making, ironing and lighting. "At a municipal farm at Berlin," the Canadian expert goes on to say, "over four hundred horse-power is used. While we found that the cost of supplying power and light was higher on the whole than it will be with us the cost of distribution of electricity to the farmer is less, as they do not live on their farms as in Ontario, but are grouped in villages. Electricity from an economic standpoint should be of greater value to our farmers, as wages are from 50 to 100 per cent higher, and even at that farm labor is difficult to procure." This statement also applies no doubt to conditions in the United States.—Current Literature.

KEEP YOUR GRIT

Hang on! Cling! No matter what they say. Push on! Sing on! Things will come your way. Sitting down and whining never helps a bit. Best way to get there is by keeping up your grit. Don't give up hoping when the ship goes down; Grab a spar or something—just refuse to drown. Don't think you're dying, just because you're hit; Smile in face of danger, and hang to your grit. Fols die too easy—they sort of fade away; Make a little error and give up in dismay. Kind of men that's needed in the man of ready wit, To laugh at pain and trouble and keep his grit. New York Times

WOMAN SUFFRAGE FOR CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—Woman Suffrage has triumphed in California. Late returns wiped out the majority recorded against the amendment and the margin in favor of the amendment has increased steadily. So overwhelming was the vote in favor of an initiative referendum, and the tabulation of returns was suspended with nearly a third of precincts remaining unreported.

NOTED COUNTERFEITER IS CAUGHT.

WASHINGTON, C. D., Oct. 11.—After a search across the continent and up into British Columbia the secret service operative today captured Albert Leon, a Russian Jew and political refugee, as he was about to leave New York for South America. Leon is alleged to be the head of an extensive counterfeiting gang which has flooded the Pacific coast with spurious ten dollar bank notes during the last year.

AVIATOR AND HIS PASSENGER HAVE NARROW ESCAPE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Thomas O. M. Sopwith, the English aviator, and Nelson Doubleday, son of Frank Doubleday, his passenger, has remarkably escaped today from serious injury when the aviator's biplane fell 53 feet, landing on a fence at the Nassau aerodrome, on Long Island. Sopwith was about 300 feet in the air when he suddenly found that the handle of his control gear would not work. He started to come down and when 53 feet from the ground the connecting wire broke and he partly lost control of the machine. With rare coolness and judgment he managed to keep right side up and landed on the fence without much damage, aside from an injured plane.

Earl L. Ovington again failed to start from here on his trip to Governor's Island, where he was to commence his trip across the continent. Motor trouble was responsible.
