PASTOR SELECTED

For the Baptist Church of This City.

REV. JOHNSON L. MINER

Pastor of the First Baptist Church, Plymouth, Mass. Called.

The resignation of Rev. G. P. Raymond, M. A., as pastor of the Baptist Church of this city was learned with regret by his congregation and citizens in general. Since that time the church has been seeking a successor in the pastorate and the names of several prominent pastors of the denomination have been under consideration. Last night a business meeting was held in the vestry for the purpose of extending a call. The clerk presented considerable correspondence in regard to the matter and after a general discussion it was moved and unanimously carried that a regular gospel call be extended to Rev. Johnson L. Miner, M. A., pastor of the First Baptist Church of Plymouth, Mass. Mr. Miner is a native of Nova Scotia and a recent graduate from Acadia University took a post graduate course and also a theological training. He has been in the pastorate for about nine years, the early part of which was spent as associate pastor with Rev. Dr. Steele in the Amherst church. Mr. Miner is very highly recommended and it is understood, leaves a successful and prosperous church at Plymouth to enter upon the work in this city. It is thought that he will accept and will enter upon the duties of his new charge as soon as he can make satisfactory arrangements with his congregation in Massachusetts.

ROMANTIC STORY HOMESTAKE MINE

Review of a Mining Property near Leadville, now Being Operated by Mr. Campion, FORMERLY A NATIVE OF SOURIS, P. E. ISLAND.

The Proprietor Exceedingly Sanguine and Greatly Satisfied with the Prospects—The Output has Already Defrayed Expenses.

The Denver Post of a few days ago contains a romantic story of the old Homestake Mine or an early-day bonanza in which money and lives were lost. The Post says that there is a romantic story in George Campion's latest mining venture. Col. James Archer and some others when the Upper Arkansas Valley was little more than a vast breadth of solitude, awaiting the band of saviors who brought it world wide renown. General Frank Hale, the writer, goes on to say, as he stood in the rotunda of the Vendome one evening George Campion came to him and said: "I want to give you some beautiful specimens from the Homestake for your office. I feel that for the first time in many years struggle, fortune has taken me by the hand with generous intention." The collection was not only beautiful but indicated great wealth in store. The Homestake is the oldest argentiferous lead producing mine in the Arkansas valley. In 1871 the original discoverers, five in number passed through California. Legend has it that while pursuing a deer they discovered a rich mineral stream and without proceeding to set the boundary lines, the claim was christened "Homestake." According to the particulars given the news of the discovery spread, James McCadyen and Col. James Archer purchased the find and mining began. The cost of getting the mineral to market being $75 per ton. Later on a smelter was built at Malta but the cost of operation being out of proportion small margins were left. Despite all the efforts put forth the smelter project fell. On February 22, 1885, there followed a dreadful tragedy, in which ten Homestake miners, who were operating the mine on their own account were overwhelmed and crushed by an avalanche of snow. The bodies were recovered in the following April and buried in Leadville.

Col. James Archer died some eighteen years ago and Homestake mine fell to his heirs. After the tragedy mentioned several parties of leasers undertook to redeem the mine but failed.

Last year George Campion effected arrangements with Mrs. Archer, whereby made up his mind after a careful examination of the ground that by a certain course of development a great mine could be made of it. A company was formed and the cause of previous failures having been ascertained new plans were formed, George Campion being an experienced miner and having plenty of means, discovered the original vein which was lost sight of by previous management. The problem of drainage which had mastered Mr. Campion's predecessors was next solved. A wagon road to Leadville was next constructed and provisions made for accommodation of men was next perfected. The ore is a beautiful galena, of which a sufficient quantity has already been extracted to repay the expenditure.

Mr. Campion is exceedingly sanguine and naturally enough greatly satisfied with the prospects before him in the workings of the property in which so much romance, misfortune and death have centered upon its introduction to the mining world. Mr. Campion is a native of Souris, Prince Edward Island.

INTERCOLLEGIATE Y.M.C.A.

The Second Day's Proceedings with a Brief Review of Program.

Woffville N. S. Nov. 20th. 1901. The meetings of the Intercollegiate Y. M. C. A. conference continue to be attended with great success. The delegates are enthusiastic, the attendance good, and the addresses and discussions most helpful and hopeful.

The session began this afternoon with a service of song. Then Mr. Eastman of U. N. B. addressed the Conference on the Canada Colleges' Mission. He set forth strongly the claims of this mission. The Canadian College Y. M. C. A.'s have a representative working among the 12,000 students of the famous University of Calcutta. This man is a graduate of a Canadian College and supported solely and entirely by Canadian students. The next speaker was Mr. Fred. Bennett of Mt. Allison who read a paper on Systematic Giving. We should give systematically because our giving is part of our worship. It is an acknowledgement of the blessings we have received from the Almighty. We should give as much as we can afford. We should give carefully and thoughtfully. Lastly we should give regularly and should make our giving a part of our daily life. And we have the injunction "Freely ye have received, freely give," and the promise "In all thy ways acknowledge Him and He shall direct thy paths." The last speaker of the session was the Rev. E. O. Armstrong B. A. (Mt. Allison) who has volunteered for foreign missionary work. He spoke on "Life Work from the Missionary Standpoint." A man's life work should be to "Seek First the Kingdom of God." Whatever a man's vocation is he always has the grand avocation to preach Christ and to strive to bring the world nearer to Him.

The evening meeting was open to the public, and there was a large audience. Mr. C. F. Park, International Secretary for preparatory schools, spoke on "Recent Advances in Student Work on this Continent." We have great ground for rejoicing. There has been an increase of 63 student societies, making a total of 103 now in Canada and the United States. The attendance at Bible-classes and Mission Study classes was never so large as it now is. But our responsibilities are great and there is need yet for tremendous efforts in Christian work among college men. Rev. Mr. Hutchinson, of Moncton, then adressed the meeting on "Thought and its Fruit." In a splendid address he pointed out the fact of evil thinking being as much a sin as evil speaking or evil doing. Everything that exists to-day is the result and perfection of some form of thought. Since thought is the fountain of action, if we want our outward life right we must think pure, noble thoughts. To-morrow's meeting promises to be the culmination and climax of the Conference. The interest is intense, and the meetings are steadily growing in interest and power. W. P. B.
