—SPECIAL COMMUNION SERVICE — Sunday was a day of unusual interest in the Princetown United Church. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed at the commencement of the morning service. Four united with the church. The sermon subject was, Love Holds the Key. "Thou art worthy to take the book and to open the seals thereof" was interpreted as an assurance that the plan and purpose of God for a world kingdom of goodness is not to be frustrated or ultimately fail but this future can only be fittingly and fully assured by love in service and sacrifice as in the life and teaching of Jesus. The sermon subject for the evening service was God's Covenant of Promise as evident in the bows of promise that rest on the clouds that so often enshroud human affairs the ends of which rest on the earth but the arch reaches to very heart and home of the eternal. Messrs. George Bowness and Albert Huestis assisted the male choir in the service of song, rendering solos and duets most acceptably. Mr. Bowness sang Only Shadows and Mr. Huestis, Sunrise. Together they sang, Have thine Own Way, Lord, and Some Day. The pastor Mr. Crowdis preached at both services and Mrs. Chester Simpson directed the choir and presided at the organ.

The bridal couple stood in the bow window under an arch of evergreen which had a background of ferns, cut flowers and potted plants. The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked very charming in a floor length gown of white sheer with a finger tip veil caught with rosebuds and carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses. The ceremony was witnessed by Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Jenkins, sister and brother-in-law of the groom. The wedding music was played by Mrs Marchbank and after the marriage service was performed, Miss Mary Marchbank sang— I Love You Truly. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the immediate relatives of the bride and groom and all sat down to a sumptuous supper after which the happy couple left by car for a trip in the Maritimes. "Shepherd Of The Hills"

CAPITOL THEATRE, SUMMERSIDE

One of the most exciting stories in American fiction sprang into vivid, powerful reality on the screen of the Capitol Theatre last night, when Paramount's Technicolor film version of Harold Bell Wright's gripping novel, "The Shepherd of the Hills," was presented to local audiences for the first time.

Wright's story has lost nothing in its transfer to the screen. Rather, the tale is more vivid, more compelling, as told by the carema. This is due, in large measure, to the superb acting ability of its stars, John Wayne, Betty Field and Harry Carey, and the brilliant supporting cast. Each seems perfectly cast; each gets to the very heart of the characters.

Henry Hathaway's direction is noticeable throughout the picture, in its great outdoor scenes with their colorful magnificence.

Known to millions of readers, the story of "The Shepherd of the Hills" concerns the blood oath sworn by Young Matt, the impetuous, reckless young Ozarks mountaineer, to search out and kill his own father, a man he has never seen, for putting a curse upon his life by abandoning his mother and driving her to an early grave. In love with a young spitfire of a mountain maid, he is not able to win her love completely because of the barrier set up by his restless, unceasing urge to find his father to kill him.

In the picture, Wayne is Young Matt; Betty Field, Sammy Lane, the girl who will not love him until he has forgotten his blood oath, and Carey, The Shepherd, the man who returns to the mountains after an absence of twenty years, to find that his son is bent upon shooting him.

Among the supporting cast in a leading featured role is James Barton, the famous Jeeter Lester of the Broadway stage play, "Tobacco Road." Others who contribute exceptionally effective character portrayals are Beulah Bondi, Samuel S. Hinds, Marjorie Main and Marc Lawrence.

"The Shepherd of the Hills" is a picture no moviegoer will want to miss.

Urge Women To Take Interest In Politics

TORONTO, July 29 — (CP) — Canadian women with sons in uniform must take an interest in politics if they want to see their boys return, Mrs. Dorothy G. Steeves, C.C.F. member in the British Columbia Legislature for Vancouver North, told delegates of the Women's Council of the C.C.F., meeting at luncheon here today.

"Politics means the production of guns and tanks for a second front, without which it is murder and suicide to send our boys overseas," she said.

Upbraiding women who refuse to take part in politics "because they haven't the time," Mrs. Steeves recalled economic conditions in Canada 10 years ago when "young men were riding the rails and begging for bread and jobs."

"The same people responsible for that misery 10 years ago—who exported copper and nickel and steel to our potential enemies up to the 11th hour because of high profits—these same ghastly blunderers are running your war now and making a mess of it," she said.

Nazis Parade SS Troops

By Thomas F. Hawkins
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

BERNE, July 29 — (AP) —In expectation that the Allies soon will open a western European front or with intent to discourage such an invasion from the British Isles, the Germans paraded S S (Elite Guard) troops on the Champs Elysees in Paris today, advertising that they were en route from Russia to the fortified coast.

French dispatches called the paraders "important contingents" which had been seasoned in the fighting on the eastern front, and DNB dispatches from Berlin added pointedly:—

"They are equipped with new vehicles and new weapons."

In added threat against any Allied second front enterprise along the exposed coastline, the German transocean news agency said:—

"The formation is composed of veteran troops from eastern Europe who often have been rewarded for conspicuous achievements in the course of fighting on the Russian front."

Transocean said the commander-in-chief for the west had gone to Paris to review the parading troops.

Field Marshal Karl Gerd Von Rundstedt, in active command of the German forces facing Britain across the narrow channel and the north sea, has been directing revision of offensive measures all along the coast and inspecting "the extensive and deeply echeloned fortification works," one reported yesterday.

Thorson Says No Truth In Report

OTTAWA, July 29 — (CP) — War Services Minister Thorson said in the House of Commons today that there was no truth in a report that alteration is being made in the war services regulations to call the 19-year-old class for compulsory service.

The question was raised by John Diefenbaker (Con. Lake Centre) who referred to a newspaper story to the effect that the 19-year-old class was about to be called.

"There is no truth in the report," said Mr. Thorson.

Yesterday The Canadian Press in an Ottawa story said the probability was seen that the bottom call-up age would be reduced from 20 to 19 before government turned to the pool of married men to meet compulsory military training quotas.

Mussolini 59, Age Is Sore Point

BERNE, Switzerland, July 29 — (A P) — Italy's Mussolini, whose age is an increasingly delicate subject, was 59 years old today.

Hitler sent him the usual birthday telegram, which was played up in the German Press, but he did not get the birthday gift which many persons in Europe believed he had confidently expected: A triumphal entry into Alexandria.

An ardent admirer of Caesar and Napoleon, Il Duce is believed to have been long eager to march into Egypt as did those conquerors.

When Mersa Matruh fell to the German and Italian armies, Mussolini dashed to Africa, but after three weeks of waiting and inspecting troops, he returned to Rome July 20.

Throughout the spring and summer the Italian press has been stressing his "perfect health," and after one 1,100-mile flight inspecting air fields and naval units the Corriere Della Sera said on June 20, "the virile temperament of Il Duce ideally and physically expressed the freshness and perennial youth of the Italian people."

Calls Love Enemy Agent Number One

By Ross Munro
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, July 29 — (CP) — Love is enemy agent No. 1 for Canadians training with the Royal navy to make combined operation (commandos) raids.

Security and secrecy are of supreme importance and the greatest cause of revealed secrets is love.

"Don't tell her" is the theme of posters hung up wherever combined operations men gather. Yet by little fragments of affection in a letter home or a goodbye hint to a wife or girl friend in Britain a soldier may imperil the lives of thousands.

"It's not drunkeness and careless talk in pubs that cause us the most grief," said a combined operations officer. "Its not casualness, or browned-offness or disloyalty. It's love, love is helping Hitler.

"We find that in most cases the offender is a fellow who is not particularly impressive and is trying to be a big shot with some girl."

On the big Canadian manoeuvres, the troops were shown the careless talk film "next of kin," a remarkable movie that drives home the security lesson.

It left a deeper impression on the officers and men than a score of lectures and a hundred posters. "After seeing that movie, I'm almost afraid to talk even to myself," said a Canadian Colonel.

of a day devoted to consideration of two budget bills, amendments to the excess profits tax act and to the succession duties act.

Both bills were passed and sent to the Senate, leaving only the amendments to the income tax act to be passed to complete disposal of all the budget bills.

Conservative House leader Hanson termed the succession duty act amendments as provided in the budget constitute "confiscation pure and simple," and took particular exception to a clause in the act making superannuation benefits or allowances dutiable.

Finance Minister Ilsley said exempting government employees from taxation statutes would be putting these employees in "a privileged class."

J. H. Harris (Con. Toronto Danforth) contended that taxation had now reached the stage of "confiscation" and on this particular tax suggested a conference with the provinces.

Finance Minister Ilsley announced that the National War Housing Act was being extended to encourage construction of small permanent homes in congested areas.

He said supplementary estimates to be brought down later would contain $1,000,000 to aid in this step to relieve the housing shortage and that there would also be an estimate of $2,000,000 to guarantee loans covering transformation of large houses in congested areas into apartments.

Munitions Minister Howe said that government plans to enlarge the Canadian merchant marine are limited only by the number of crews available.

In the Japanese debate Mr Green said there were "indications that the plans for evacuating these people from the protected areas are breaking down." The evacuation from protected areas was ordered last Feb. 26 yet "nearly half of these people are still in the protected areas."

Predicts Trouble

The Vancouver South member added that of the 23,480 Japanese in the province when the war with Japan started, close to 9,000 were still in Vancouver. He said 6,000 of these were at liberty.

"That position is intolerable and is causing bad feeling on the Pacific coast. There will be trouble if the Japanese are not moved from the protected area without delay."

sisted by tanks routed advancing enemy units."

Of the Tsimlyansk fighting in the bend of the Don, the Russians said "we destroyed 12 German tanks, several guns and machine guns. The Germans lost over 800 soldiers and officers. The enemy is constantly hurling in reserves."

The strong effort of the Russians to ease the pressure on the south by pounding at the northern flank of the German offensive produced bitter hand-to-hand fighting in the Voronezh area.

The Russians announced the capture of a populated place in this sector and said the Germans left more than 500 bodies of men and officers on the battlefield nearby.

Growing Air Strength

The Russians are being braced by ever-growing air strength and their resistance is taking a tremendous toll of the Germans.

The Russians earlier admitted they had been forced to retire slightly in the Bataisk area, where their forces are attempting to block the way toward Kushchevka along the main "oil railway" to Baku. Kushchevka is 45 miles south of Rostov and the Don.

A branch thrust by the Germans toward Salsk, 100 miles southeast of Rostov, also encountered the same brand of resistance as German Marshal Fedor Von Bock's armies headed along a spur of the Stalingrad railway which connects with the main Rostov-Baku line.

Ringed by the fierce fire of artillery and subjected to a destructive bombardment by increasing numbers of Red air force planes, the Germans were involved in an even more stubborn battle farther to the east where they sought to enlarge their bridgeheads around Tsimlyansk.

Here, approximately half-way between Rostov and Stalingrad, the Germans admittedly had increased their bridgeheads to at least three and perhaps more, had forced a breakthrough in one sector and were slowly enlarging their footholds south of the river.

Canucks In Jap Hands Are Healthy

OTTAWA, July 29—(CP)—Canadian prisoners of war at Hong Kong were reported officially today to be receiving "good treatment" at the hands of their Japanese captors, with their health "very good" and morale apparently high.

The report—first official word of the welfare of the Canadian troops—came in a communication from Geneva by E. L. Haag, delegate of the International Red Cross Committee. It was released by the External Affairs Department.

Reporting on visits by a Red Cross delegate to three internment camps at Hong Kong, the communication said that camp Northpoint—where most Canadian troops apparently are in custody—"particularly gives the impression of order, cleanliness, discipline and good humor."

The report said that Northpoint camp contains 65 officers, 310 non-commissioned officers and 1,202 other ranks—all Canadians with the exception of 28 Danish sailors. The two other camps visited were Shamsmuipo camp, containing 65 officers, 1,151 non-commissioned officers and 2,779 other ranks, and Argyle street camp, with 474 officers, 19 non-commisioned officers and 93 orderlies.

The nationality of prisoners in the Shamshuipo and Argyle street camps was not given.

(The Japanese announced after the fall of Hong Kong last Christmas Day that they had taken prisoner 1,689 of the 1,985 Canadian troops in the crown colony. Later, a few were reported to have died in custody. On this basis, nearly all Canadian prisoners apparently are concentrated in the Northpoint camp).

Conservative Party In Caucus

OTTAWA, July 29 — (CP) — Party matters were discussed today at a two-hour caucus of Conservative members of parliament and senators which was attended by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, National Conservative Leader.

"There was no advocacy of change of party leadership or anything of that kind," A. C. Casselman, member of the House of Commons for Grenville-Dundas, said in a brief verbal statement after the meeting.

"Matters now stand as they stood before the caucus," he replied when asked whether party leadership had been one of the subjects of discussion. He said other caucuses probably would be held before parliament adjourns, probably this week-end but indicated they would be of minor nature.

Today's meeting followed reports heard on Parliament Hill yesterday that the question of party leadership would be discussed at a meeting shortly. Hon. R.B. Hanson is continuing as House Leader, for the time being at least. His House Leadership was endorsed recently at a party caucus and he acceded to a request to continue.

ENGLISH WOMEN TO MAKE SHIFT

English patchwork hats will be a striking feature in women's autumn clothing.

This is a result of a Board of Trade order banning the sale of cloth to hat manufacturers and cutting supplies of felt hoods.

Ribbon, fur, felt, leather, any materials that can be got hold of will help to make up autumn styles. So hats will not be dull, and the idea will give plenty of scope to those women who have that knack of using up bits and pieces to make a useful garment.

By stretching and pulling, the supplies of felt hoods still in manufacturerers' possession will be made to go further than ever before. Velling is not rationed, but no more is to be made.

"We can go on making hats for the next three months," says a fashion expert. "After that — who knows?"

Judging by the number of civilian women who are now going without a hat, or using a scarf, turban-style, for the purpose, it will not matter.

Use sugar sirup for sweetening beverages. It does a better job of sweetening than if you use plain granulated sugar, and its quicker; it often requires much stirring to dissolve sugar. To make the sirup, boil five cups of sugar in five cups of water for 10 minutes. Cool; pour into a jar or bottle; cover and store in the refrigerator.
