T. B. Relapses In About 20 Per Cent Of Cures

OTTAWA, April 24 — (CP) — Two of the top medical men in Ottawa said Saturday that the rate of relapses among Canadians cured of tuberculosis is about 19 or 20 per cent.

Dr. G. J. Wherrett, chairman of the Canadian Tuberculosis Association, said that about 20 per cent of T. B. sufferers, released as cured, suffer relapses and must return to hospital within three years.

Dr. W. P. Warner, director general of treatment services in the Veterans Department, said the relapse rate among veterans was only about 19.8 per cent. The two medical men gave their statements in interviews after Dr. A. D. Temple, superintendent of the St. Hyacinthe, Que., veterans hospital, was quoted as saying in Montreal that about 50 per cent of those released from Canadian sanatoria as cured either die or return to hospital within three years.

Dr. Wherrett said a Canadian survey made a few years ago showed that about 50 per cent of those cured while in the very advanced stages of T. B. died within seven years.

He was commenting on a report from Port de Grave, on nearby Conception Bay, Friday that near-starvation conditions existed in the isolated district.

Death Saturday Of Mr. Wm. Nicholson

A wide circle of friends learned with regret of the sudden death of Mr. William (Bill) Nicholson which occurred on Saturday morning.

Although suffering from ill-health for the past several years, Mr. Nicholson was up and about as usual the day previous to his demise but a heart attack proved fatal. He passed away at the home of Mr. William Watts, with whom he had been residing for a number of years.

Well and favorably known throughout the Province, the deceased was one of the Island's keenest sportsmen. In addition to being a follower of athletics in his prime he was one of the best billiard shots ever developed here and in addition to holding provincial titles also represented the Province on one occasion at Montreal in a Canadian-wide competition.

Horse racing also was one of his favorite sports and his was a familiar figure at meets at which the trotters and pacers performed. In later years he took up curling and becoming quite adept at the game at the time of his death was a member of the Charlottetown Curling Club.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. J.M. Nicholson, two sisters and one brother, May (Mrs. Harold Messervy) and Lily and Wesley, all residing in this city. The funeral takes place this afternoon at 2.30 from the residence of his sister, Mrs. Harold Messervy, 82 Fitzroy Street to Zion Church. Interment will be in the People's Cemetery.

COME INTO

mopped up, before a Canadian court.

The capture and preparation for deportation of 36-year-old Dimitry Leshchenko, former Red Army officer, comes just as 33-year-old Freda Linton, last of the 1945 spy suspects, prepares for her court defence in Montreal.

She is one of some 20 persons named by a royal commission investigating Soviet spy activities in 1946. Officers of the R. C. M. P. and army intelligence would not say what link, if any, there may be between the 1946 ring, exposed by Igor Gouzenko, former Russian cipher clerk, and Leshchenko.

They are absorbed now, it is believed, in finding out whether he was working as an independent agent or part of a network. Leshchenko's apprehension while employed in a Calgary bag factory is the first disclosure of Soviet spy activity in Canada since the 1945 ring was smashed. He came to Canada 11 months ago as a displaced person.

It is the first instance in Canada of a Soviet spy infiltrating under a D. P. disguise. Immigration authorities say that of the 35,000 displaced persons brought to Canada since 1947, Leshchenko is the only one they know of who turned out to be an agent for a foreign country.

His apprehension, they say, will have no effect on plans to bring more D.P.'s to Canada. The Soviet Embassy here said brusquely it had nothing to say on Leshchenko's apprehension.

Hard To Believe

CALGARY, April 24 — (CP) — The apparent Jekyll and Hyde existence of a former Russian army officer and confessed Red spy has his acquaintances in Calgary baffled.

In custody at Winnipeg for entering Canada "by misrepresentation," stocky, 36-year-old Dimitry Leshchenko was known here as a rabid anti-Communist. Yet an announcement by Justice Minister Garson Saturday said Leshchenko admitted being "an active agent of the U. S. S. R. in the British zone of Germany until shortly before coming to Canada."

In an interview with the Canadian Press; T. Chammutak, landlord of the rooming house where Leshchenko had lived for the last five months said he found it "hard to believe" that his roomer had been a Russian agent.

"He was a quiet man and very honest," said Chammutak, speaking in broken English. A plumber in Calgary for the last 21 years, Chammutak fled from the Russian Ukraine after Bolshevik armies over-ran his homeland after the First World War.

"It is almost impossible to suspect Leshchenko of being a spy," the landlord said. "He was always telling us how Canada was a much better place to live than Russia and how terrible conditions were over there. "He always talked against the Russians and the Communist way of life."

Paul Bonakovsky, also a roomer at the Chammutak home, said Leshchenko had spoken at a number of anti-Communist meetings here.

CROWN COMPLETES

spector H. J. Kilpatrick testified, the young man accompanied police to the wharf after agreeing to go. No formal warning was given when he was asked if he would make the trip.

St. Todd said that as a result of a conversation between the accused and Inspector Kilpatrick, a spot on the wharf was "noted." Two days later a diver went down near the spot indicated and found a hutch knife with a steel blade. A previous witness, Miss Audrey Farris, had said she was "quite sure" she had seen the knife in Morrissey's flat.

(The victim, found dead in his bedroom Jan. 23, had been stabbed numerous times. Witnesses have described an all-night drinking party at the house, where McLeod was said to have been robbed.) Crown exhibits include two knives, a shirt and pair of trousers. The garments were reportedly worn by McLeod when arrested.

Thursday's Evidence

An important witness at Thursday's hearing was Mrs. Joan Welch, who was "going with Morrissey" and who testified that when she left the Pond Street house she took with her $18 of Morrissey's money. She said Morrissey had given the money to her — in two five dollar lots — during the early morning.

Mrs. Welch said at one time in the morning hours preceding Morrissey's death, she saw Miss Pitt holding money in her hand, arguing with Morrissey in the latter's bedroom. She quoted Miss Pitt as saying "Give him back his money" and "Leave his money alone."

She said she did not see Morrissey put McLeod out of the house, but placed the incident at between 10 a.m. and 10.15 a.m. She said she personally put Morrissey to bed between 10.30 and 10.45 a.m. Just before leaving the house she said she kissed him.

Mrs. Welch said she called a taxi at about 10.45 and again five minutes later. Before it arrived another taxi drew up, and she said Miss Pitt left the house and went home in the second cab. It drove into the yard with two passengers, she said.

At about 5 a.m. she said McLeod had put his arm about her. She had kissed McLeod, she said just before the incident. She said at the time Morrissey was kissing Miss Pitt. After the incident Morrissey had called her to the kitchen and "spoke" to her.

Sitting On Couch

McLeod was sitting on the edge of a studio couch, when she left, she testified. Mr. and Mrs. Morton were lying down on the couch. She said a couple of minutes before she and Miss Pitt left she thought Mrs. Morrissey had opened her eyes and made some remark.

Mrs. Welch said she started going with Morrissey in August. Her husband, she said, lives in England. She said a strange woman — as yet unnamed in testimony — in the house just after midnight had put on her coat to leave. Miss Pitt later said the woman left between 1.30 and 2 a.m. because she had to put her children to bed.

A "blonde" man also as yet unidentified may have been in the house through the night, she said, under cross-examination.

Mrs. Welch and Miss Pitt, who followed her to the stand said testimony of Beverly Reynolds that they were in the house Saturday night before Morrissey's death was incorrect.

A woman named Susanne Delaney whose condition was "more toughness than drunk" had been put out during the morning by Morrissey, Mrs. Welch said and "said something to Morrissey. Miss Delaney had not appeared as a witness.

Miss Pitt said Morrissey told her to take money from McLeod to pay for a bottle of liquor that had been ordered. McLeod appeared asleep on Morrissey's bed. With Morrissey present, she said, she took $45 from McLeod's right hand trouser pocket.

Morrissey took $20 of the total and attempted to get the rest. She said she refused to give it up. She told Morrissey the "money wasn't his" and that she (Miss Pitt) didn't want to be blamed for taking it. She said she shook McLeod before taking the money.

Later — after Morrissey was asleep in bed — she said, she told Morrissey to get the rest.

McLeod that he (Morrissey) had kept the change from $20 of the sailor's money. She offered to return the $25 she retained, she said, but McLeod refused the money, saying he would call her at her home later in the day.

She said the sailor promised to return that night with shipmates and wreck the place.

Miss Pitt said she had been advised by Mrs. Welch to stop arguing with Morrissey or he would hit her (Miss Pitt).

A little time after taking the money she heard McLeod ask Morrissey for it and the latter explain that he (McLeod) must have lost it somewhere outside. She said Morrissey was standing with his hands on McLeod's shoulders.

Not long after that Morrissey put McLeod out of the house. He returned quickly and was criticized. After being readmitted to the house, she said McLeod had not to her recollection talked to or argued with Morrissey.

Quotes McLeod

John McLeilan quoted McLeod as saying, on the Sunday afternoon following the slaying: "I was rolled . . . and the way my head feels I must have been doped."

McLeilan said he had been invited by McLeod to sleep aboard the Federal Mariner the night of Jan. 23. He washed a khaki shirt for McLeod which he said was stained by red paint.

McLeilan had helped put McLeod's overcoats on when the latter left ship at 4.30 p.m. He said McLeod returned to the ship again before 9 p.m. and "passed out" before reaching his cabin. McLeilan said he heard McLeod collapse, went out, slapped his face and got another man to bring a glass of water. McLeod walked to his cabin.

McLeod was holding the back of his head, McLeilan said. He (McLeilan) did not think McLeod's condition was entirely drunkenness.

hurry" in view of the works committee recommendation to purchase them. But, he said, the Mayor should have asked the council for a probe into the deal "without hesitation at the outset."

The Mayor's responsibility "however . . . does not exonerate and relieve individual aldermen from themselves initiating an investigation," because as early as February, 1948, a "serious situation had arisen with which the City Council was familiar."

Fine Recital Of Sacred Music At St. James Church

A very fine recital of sacred music by the choir of the Kirk of St. James, under the direction of Miss E. Lillian MacKenzie, Mus. Bac., organist and choir director, was held last night following the regular evening service. There was a large and appreciative congregation. Following was the program: Processional Hymn, "Praise My Soul, The King of Heaven" (Book of Praise, 91), Congregation and Choirs.

"I Waited For The Lord", duet and Chorus from "Hymn of Praise" (Mendelssohn), Mrs. Gordon Stewart, Mrs. James MacConnell and Choir.

YOU CAN'T BUY A BETTER MOTOR OIL. It's Alloyed. Two short words explain the power of Peerless — "It's alloyed." "It's alloyed" to lubricate efficiently in the high compression engines of to-day. "It's alloyed" to improve oil mileage and reduce operating costs. It's a fact that Peerless represents the last word in the scientific production of lubricating oil.
