U. S. GRABS THREE PACIFIC ISLANDS THAT ONCE WERE CLAIMED BY BRITAIN

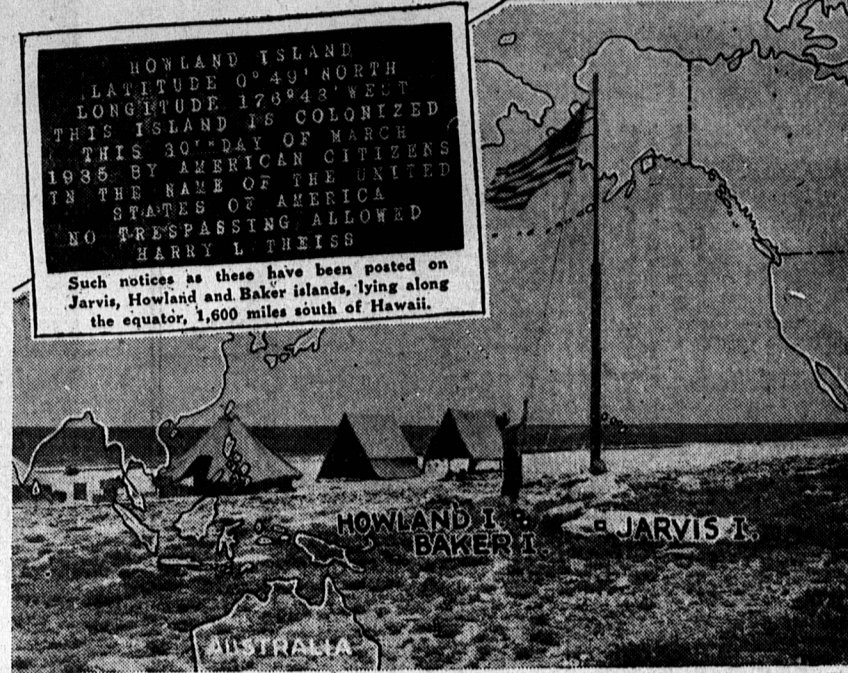

Important as trans-Pacific aeroplane stations

By Charles P. Stewart
Central Press Canadian Writer
Washington, Oct. 5—While the world has been too much preoccupied with Benito Mussolini's attempt to grab Ethiopia to observe grabbing activities elsewhere, Uncle Sam has effected a neat grab, which he is consolidating with no opposition whatever.

He has grabbed three important islands and has colonized them.

Previously they were uninhabited. Now they have populations of four each, a total of 12 for the trio.

They are Jarvis, Howland and Baker islands in the mid-Pacific. Jarvis is exactly in the middle—on the equator and the 160th meridian, the precise centre of the Pacific ocean, 400 miles due south of Honolulu. Howland and Baker also on the equator and about 80 miles apart, are approximately 1,000 miles to the westward of Jarvis.

Raising the flag over Howland island which will be an important link in transpacific aviation.

They are coral islets, each with an area of approximately six square miles, and in their centres they rise to altitudes just sufficient to keep their inhabitants, (if and when any) out of the wet when storms rage and seas are high.

The British pre-empted them once, long ago, but left them uninhabited, and a claim of that sort isn't recognized under international law without inhabitants to hold it down. Accordingly the United States re-empted them later on, but also left them uninhabited.

It can't really be said that title to them has been in dispute between Uncle Sam and John Bull; they weren't considered worth quarrelling over.

Still, their status has been indicated on maps as "indeterminate."

Pin-Points on Map

Eight months ago, however, the United States grabbed them forcibly—as forcibly as was necessary to overcome the resistance put up by three absolutely uninhabited isles.

It was done secretly. Only within a few days has the news leaked out.

The "coup" now is what diplomats call a "fait accompli."

It looks as if the U. S. has gained a trick in the trans-Pacific or trans-world airways now planned in both nations.

And, for once, Uncle Sam has seen an overseas advantage first.

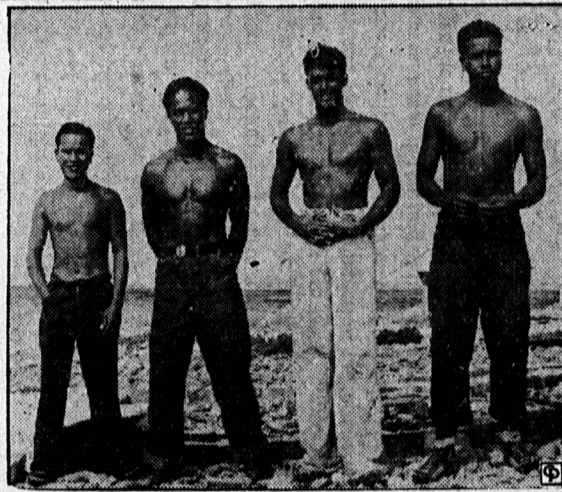

The Hawaiian colonists are reckoned as able to take care of themselves among south sea island conditions. They are fishermen. They are used to living, in modern times

Aeroplane Stops

The essence of the argument, of course is this:

In the past Jarvis, Howland and Baker islands were considered of no possible value except as they might yield an occasional shipload of guano. To-day they are vital stations for airship stops between Hawaii and Australia and New Zealand.

On each island this warning was signed by the chief of that particular island's group of four.

Colonists selected for the three South Sea islands are well-educated young men of Hawaiian blood, trained at the Kamehameha school in Honolulu.

On "canned stuff." All the water that they have will have to drip from the eaves of their tents—but it rains nearly every day in that zone.

Nominally (to provide for their pay) they are weather observers.

But not for the weather bureau—they are servants of the commerce department's bureau of air commerce.

Essentially their duty is to keep trespassers off.

Canoe Cove Cullings

The continued Indian summer weather is most congenial and acceptable and is affording the farmers a splendid season for all kinds of outdoor work, which is being taken full advantage of to prepare for the oncoming winter.

Hallowe'en passed by very quietly in this locality. There was no vandalism or noisy conduct; even the young and fair preferred keeping indoors for the evening enjoying the sociable hours of the family fireside to silly pranks outside.

A very successful masquerade party was given in Long Creek Hall last Tuesday evening which brought together a large crowd. The costumes were showy and attractive, there being many participants. A pleasant social time was spent until the midnight hour.

The genial Mr. Yeo gave the last presentation of his popular picture shows for the season on Friday evening last, the closing display bringing together one of the largest crowds seen in the Cove hall for some time past. There surely was some stir in the old town on the occasion, somewhat resembling a fair or an old-time picnic.

Mrs. Raymond Liskee and baby son are visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald MacKinnon, at present. Mrs. MacKinnon has been in a weak state of health recently.

Mrs. Steves, of Hampshire, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Ward, and her sister, Mrs. Dugald MacLean, last week.

Rev. Dr. Lowry and Alex MacKenzie attended Presbytery in Charlottetown on Tuesday.

An interesting social event of last week was the marriage of Malcolm MacKenzie of the Cove to Mrs. Elizabeth MacKenzie of Kingston, relict of the late Neil M. MacKenzie of Long Creek. Both bride and groom appear to have inherited a decided preference for the historic name of the famous MacKenzie clan of ancient Highland lineage. A jolly crowd of friends and neighbors gave the newly wedded couple a lively welcome home the evening following their marriage and were hospitably entertained by Mr. and Mrs. MacKenzie.

Those two young ladies who were interested in the party which took place in another community some time ago, were on their customary stroll the other evening, when one asked the other, "Is your brother still in the hospital?" "Oh, yes," was the prompt answer, "I expect he will be there for some time," whereupon the other replied, "Pretty sick, eh?" "Oh, no," rejoined the other, "pretty nurse."

A good number of the Cove residents attended the burial of the late Mrs. John MacNeven of DeSable on Saturday, braving the heavy rain storm to be present.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Ross made some friendly calls in the Cove a few days ago.

The Fox Show attracted some of our citizens to Charlottetown this week.

There was a large congregation at the Cove Kirk last Sunday evening when Dr. Lowry began his series of special sermons on the petitions of the Lord's Prayer, which the preacher said was a model and not a ritual prayer, as too many regarded it. The minister said that the great eternal truth of the Fatherhood of God, as revealed in the Sonship and Saviourhood of the Lord Jesus, was expressed in the words, "Our Father Who are in heaven."

Mr. A. Stubbs, of Ottawa, Dominion Inspector of Cattle, has been touring this locality in the circuit of his work during the past two weeks and finds a favorable condition of things existing in the territory covered.

Some fixings up are being done this week to the parish manse, so that the home of our "country clergyman" may be cosy and comfortable as a winter residence.

Willard MacKinnon has been laid up this week with a severe cold and irritating cough.

Miss Ida MacDougall revisited friends in the provincial capital this week.

The L.O.L. of this district will celebrate the Fifth of November anniversary by a social time in TANTON-SCOTT—Of interest to a wide circle of friends throughout the Maritimes is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Helen Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Scott, Guysboro, and Dr. Gerald Tanton, of Summerside, which took place very quietly in Port Dufferin Saturday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Nelsh officiating, the young couple being unattended. Dr. Tanton graduated from Dalhousie in Medicine last year, having been captain of the Dalhousie football team for two consecutive years. He has been associated with Camp Hill hospital, Victoria General hospital and the hospital in Charlottetown returning from Prince Edward Island two weeks ago, when he entered practice with Dr. Duncan MacMillan at Sheet Harbour, N. S.

ORANGE LECTURE AT HARTSVILLE—On Wednesday evening last in the community hall at Hartsville a public gathering in connection with the Orange lodge was held with a good attendance. Mr. Allan MacLeod presided and introduced the programme of the evening which was opened with the singing of "O Canada" followed by several musical numbers by members of the lodge. Bro. Rev. J. W. S. Lowry was then introduced by the chairman and delivered his lecture on "The Origin and Objects of the Loyal Orange Association," upon which he spoke for upwards of an hour. The speaker dealt at length with the period of the Stuart dynasty in Great Britain and Ireland and the Revolution Settlement of 1688-90 and subsequent insurrections that had taken place in the fatherland. The Orange Association, he said, was formed as a defensive—not offensive—organization, in troublous times and existed all over the British Empire as a Protestant defence association, having no malice toward those of a different faith or different sentiment, but desiring honestly to live peacefully with all men. The L.O.A. was a benevolent organization and was doing an excellent work within this Province and throughout the Dominion and he commended their good work to the sympathy and support of the people. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to the lecturer on the motion of Eros. J. Nicholson and A. MacDonald and the proceedings concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

Farewell Service

Dr. A. C. Vincent preached his farewell address to the Marshfield congregation on Sunday evening to a large congregation. The church was nicely decorated for the occasion. Assisting was Rev. G. A. Christie, president of the Ministerial Association. Among the choir were some new and welcome faces. Miss Mary Ferguson sang a solo very sweetly.

At the close Mr. Ludlow Jenkins read the following address and Mrs. J. H. Crosby presented a nice purse to Dr. A. C. Vincent:

Dear Sir,—We, the congregation of the Marshfield Baptist Church, feel we cannot let this opportunity pass without showing in some way our deep appreciation of the valuable services you have rendered this scattered congregation during the past seven years. You have come out here as though it were
