Ebbsfleet And Vicinity

Mrs. Ben H. Gallant spent the weekend in Summerside, the guest of her daughter Evelyn.

Mr. Fred Gallant, of St. Louis, is busily engaged in Ebbsfleet sawing up the fire-wood.

Mr. Austin Aylward, secretary of Pleasant View School was in Ebbsfleet recently collecting school taxes from property holders there.

Owing to the recent snow storm our mail courier, Mr. Sam Myers, was unable to make his round trip on Monday.

The newly formed Women's Institute of Ebbsfleet school district are doing fine work in regard to making money for charitable purposes. In the past week two dances were held in the school under their auspices. A fancy sum was realized on both occasions.

The many friends of Mrs. Alphonse Doucette are glad to see her home again after undergoing treatment in the Western Hospital.

Mr. John Praught of Grand River, who has recently returned from overseas, spent the week end in St. Louis, the guest of Miss Clara Shea.

The Co-operative Cannery at Miminigash are contemplating building a cook-house to accommodate their staff. It is estimated it will cost in the vicinity of one thousand dollars.

Mr. Fred Deagle, manager of the Wahl Cannery and fish plant at Miminigash, has returned from Bonshaw where he shipped a car of gaspereaux to Halifax.

Mr. Birt Shea of Halifax has returned to the Island where he visited his father, Mr. Emmett Shea, Pleasant View.

Capt. and Mrs. J. R. Perry, merchant, St. Louis, accompanied by his brother Leon and Mrs. Perry, have just returned from a two-weeks visit to Boston, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perry. The Captain gives a great account of travelling by air.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Shea of Waterford, on the arrival of a bonnie wee lassie born at the Western Hospital, January 26th.

The pie social and dance which was held in the school on the first of March was a decided success. The sum of seventy-three dollars was made. Proceeds were raised to buy gifts for the boys of the district who have recently returned from overseas. A commendable act, so to speak. E

Former S'side Man In Traffic Accident

SAYS HOUSE

per knows, and he knows nothing; just what he heard."

Mr. Strong: "He would know as much as the author of that article you read yesterday, wouldn't he?"

Premier Jones: "Just the same!"

Mr. Strong: "You gave that to us, and I am giving you this. According to the Winnipeg paper, every Province except Prince Edward Island and British Columbia would take the per capita grant tied to national income. Prince Edward Island would take the flat payment of two million dollars because it would receive most in that way. The Dominion gives a pledge not to increase the present taxes on gasoline, amusements, pari-mutuel betting, telephone and telegraph messages, and electricity, provided that in a national emergency no such undertaking would apply.

"The Premier does not seem to care to give us any further information on the subject. It is going to tie this Province up for three years at least, and we will get in exchange for our taxes and subsidies two million dollars a year, according to this article. It goes on to say that the Dominion Government is prepared to step up the grants for general health, tuberculosis, mental institutions, venereal disease, professional training and so forth. This is only unofficial information. I submit that in a matter as serious as this the members of the Legislature have a right to be told what went on and what are the proposals made to this Province.

"The Premier of Nova Scotia addressed a service club in Halifax and made no particular secret of what went on there, according to the Halifax press. Here we have the Premier keeping the secret to himself, and perhaps Mr. Hughes."

Dr. MacMillan: "Not even the rest of the Government knows it!"

(Premier Jones did not reply.)

Liquor Conditions

Noting reference in the Speech to the illicit liquor traffic, Mr. Strong said the new regulations by order-in-council had opened the doors wider than ever.

Premier Jones: "We didn't open the doors to illicit liquor."

Mr. Strong: "But you opened the doors of the vendors' shops and poured more rum into the Province. Everybody can get it now. Every member of the House can get a script if he wants it."

Hon. Dr. MacMillan: "Question!"

Premier Jones: "I didn't try it yet."

Mr. Strong: "Look at the crowds at the vendors' doors. There must be an awful lot sold."

Premier Jones: "That is not illicit liquor."

Mr. Strong: "I am not talking about illicit liquor. I am talking about your liquor trade. With these new rum scripts they can get bottles every week for six months."

Mr. Linkletter, Third Prince: "Under the old regime you could get fifteen a month, and now you can just get two."

Mr. Strong: "Every man in the Province can get one."

Mr. Linkletter: "He has a right to it, the same as the rich man."

Mr. Strong: "That is your opinion."

Mr. Linkletter: That is the fact. Give the thing credit."

Mr. Strong: "I am giving it credit, I will tell you this, that the drunks in the police courts in Summerside and Charlottetown have increased by leaps and bounds, and there is as much moonshine as ever. You can buy plenty of it in the western part of Prince County for $2.00 a bottle."

Dr. MacMillan: "You can buy it in Bedeque too."

Mr. Strong: "The Premier says in the Speech from the Throne that more policing and heavier penalties are needed to cope with the situation, and he is right."

Mr. Linkletter: "I can tell him differently."

Mr. Strong: "They don't take you into their confidence, apparently, when they write the Speech from the Throne."

Mr. Linkletter: "They do their business and I do mine."

Mr. Strong cited police court figures and reports of increased drunkenness on trains. Conditions, he claimed "have got back to the time when Mr. Barbour was prosecutor, when he had to put a man on his back one time and bring him to Summerside. And he knows it! He must have heard it."

Hon. Mr. Barbour: "Well, he didn't."

Mr. Strong: "Well, you ought to go up there again."

Mr. Barbour: "I was up a week ago."

Mr. Strong said he noticed the Government had now appointed a man to educate the people in temperance; "which was like locking the stable door after the horse was stolen." This was nothing but government by order-in-council, he declared.

Divorce Court

Mr. Strong also protested against the manner in which the Divorce Court was brought into operation by order-in-council. This order purported to make effective an old statute of 1835. At that time, Mr. Strong said, the Governor was the Colonial Governor appointed by the Home Government in England, in whom were vested very great powers. Today the Lieutenant Governor is appointed by the Government of Canada and is not clothed with any executive authority.

Mr. Strong said that the Council as mentioned in the Divorce Court Act of 1835 was appointed by the Governor provisionally and later confirmed by the Home Government. It was responsible to the Governor and through him to the Home Government.

"The Council of 1835 had not only executive but legislative functions," he said. "There were two separate Councils, but composed of the same persons; and two separate journals and minutes were kept. This is entirely different from the Council of today.

"The Governor in 1835 sat in the Council and took a leading part, the same as the President of the United States does with his Cabinet. The Chief Justice was a member of the Council and was usually appointed President of Council. Nowadays the Executive Council performs administrative duties only, not legislative.

"The Divorce Court Act of 1835 implied that no one but a member of the Council was qualified to form part of the Court.

"The present Chief Justice is without that qualification, as we all know.

"So there is no Council or other body corresponding with the Executive Council of 1835, and therefore it is impossible to establish the Court authorized by the Act."

Mr. Strong recalled that when the resolution for a divorce court was introduced at the last session, he had moved that the Speaker take the chair, and the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Stewart) had seconded the motion. That had the effect of killing the resolution. "The effect of the vote was practically to rule that a Divorce Act should not be brought into operation in this Province," he said.

Premier Jones: "I believe that someone on your side of the House said that if it cost a lot more to go to Ottawa than it would in Prince Edward Island, the difference should be paid by the Government of this Province."

Mr. Strong: "I didn't hear that statement, and I know nothing about it."

Premier Jones: "It was made."

Mr. Strong: "I would say that the passing of this order-in-council in 1945 is a defiance of the Legislature of this Province and an open violation of the fundamental principles of democratic government."

Premier Jones: "Why don't you make a motion, then?"

No Appeal

Mr. Strong: "I might come to that. There is another question: where is the court of appeal? This Act was brought in before we entered Confederation. Now under the British North America Act the sole authority for divorce is vested in the Parliament of Canada. In 1835, when this Act was passed, we were a separate Colony. The only appeal under the Act, therefore, is to the Privy Council in England; and we can't very well go there. It would cost too much money.

"So that what this Divorce Court of ours does—composed of five members of the Executive and the Chief Justice—is final. There is no appeal from its decisions."

Mr. Strong went on to discuss the Rules of Court as set forth in the Statute. Sec. 103 gives the Court inherent power to make its own rules, which is a usurpation of the legislative function. Sec. 107 empowers the Chief Justice to make "all necessary rules on questions of evidence and points of law. This also was a function of legislation.

"The principle is entirely wrong that any Government should be allowed to bring in rules and regulations by order-in-council and not submit them to the people," Mr. Strong added: "It is not responsible government."

He maintained that in other provinces divorce is undermining family life, and that there was no call in the country districts in this Province for a Divorce Court.

Premier Jones: "What about the Legion?"

Mr. Strong: "I know the Legion takes a different attitude, but there was no call in the country districts that that Act should be brought in."

In his opening remarks Mr. Strong endorsed Premier Jones' commendation of the deputy ministers of the various departments, particularly Mr. L. B. MacMillan, who will be 56 years in the public service on Aug. 8 next, a record, he believed, for all of Canada.

He came to Victoria six weeks ago for his health. A native of Park Corner, P.E.I., his death brought to a close one of the most distinguished and successful banking careers in Canada's history.

Besides his widow he is survived by a brother, Hartell McLeod, Brockton, Mass., and a sister, Mrs. Glover, Kensington, P.E.I.

First Prince Member Makes Maiden Speech

MR. CLARENCE MORRISSEY

Making his maiden speech in the Legislature yesterday as last speaker in the Draft Address, Mr. Clarence Morrissey, First District of Prince, made a strong appeal in the interests of fishermen in his district.

Fishermen were operating with old, worn-out boats, with no immediate prospect of getting new ones, he said.

He complained of fish inspection regulations. "Our canned goods have to be sent to Halifax for inspection before they can be sold. Samples are taken over and we don't know the class of men they have to examine these cans. Why not give us that inspection here? This is a hardship and our packers don't know whether we are getting a fair deal or not.

"They claim they have got to have a laboratory," Mr. Morrissey said. "Years ago we used to put up lobsters with old-fashioned wooden coolers, and we never got any complaints. But now since the factories are standardized and are in first class condition in every way, I don't see why we should have to send our goods to Halifax."

Hon. Mr. Barbour: "They would be sent over there for overseas?"

Mr. Morrissey: "They are sent over there to be sampled."

Mr. Strong: "Even if they only go to Newfoundland?"

Mr. Morrissey: "Even if they go to DeBloises."

He explained that this did not only apply to lobsters but to other fish.

"Where I operate," he continued, "there is a fishing season on both the east and west sides of the Island. One season opens May 1 and closes July 1; the other opens Aug. 10 and closes Oct. 1. The law provides that fishermen may fish within his own coastal waters, but a lot of them go across and fish on the other side. They have been fined every year, but this year they went one better. Any man who was fined in any previous year, the second time was given a jail sentence without option of a fine.

"The pitiful part of it was in the fall, at the time of year when we are subject to gales and it sometimes takes a week or more to get their gear ashore. This year the Mounted Police came and they were taken up and sent to jail, ten or twelve men, before they even got their gear ashore. This is not the fault of the local Government but of the authorities in Ottawa."

Other Matters

Mr. Morrissey commended the Irish moss industry as a wonderful thing for the Province. Children can go down and pick as much as an adult. It has brought in as much money as the fishing industry itself. There was some trouble with inferior grades before the buyers knew what they were doing, but now they are buying only the best. The industry is on an even keel, the price is good and the quality is second to none.

He approved of the Newfoundland trade and expressed hope that the energetic agent, Mr. Agnew, would get good results.

Hon. Mr. Barbour: "You ought to be able to ship to Newfoundland from Tignish and Alberton."

Mr. Morrissey: "Nothing to stop it except the transportation facilities."

He discussed briefly the farm help and potato car situation.

Roads, he said, were in bad shape. He instanced the road north of Tignish, in the Sea Cow Pond district, which was impassable last season. Along that shore there are thousands of tons of the best gravel in the world. If the Government made an effort to get some of this gravel it would give excellent satisfaction.

The old Sea Cow bridge, Mr. Morrissey said, is patched up beyond its original shape. He hoped something would be done to it soon.

He commended family allowances and old age pensions, especially the latter. "If either one of these measures was taken away there would be disaster, because the country is in pretty bad shape as it is," he said.

He discussed rural beautification, commending those who had accomplished this with no financial help. If other men had large amounts to spend, he hoped one of them would contribute $50,000 or so to each of the two orphanages.

Mr. Morrissey read a request from Cascumpec for repair of a road from Goff's corner to Alberton, which it was claimed would shorten the road from Tignish to Summerside by eleven miles.

Hon. Mr. Barbour: "I don't believe it is eleven miles or anywhere near it."

Mr. Morrissey: "Would there be any chance of fixing that road up?"

Mr. Barbour: "Promises are easily made; but I will do the best I can."

Genial Suggestion

In congratulating Mr. Saville on his speech, in seconding the Address, Mr. Morrissey said he did not know the member very well, but he seemed a genial fellow and somewhat of the same avordupois as himself. "Perhaps before the end of the session we could go out and have a rolling good spree," Mr. Morrissey suggested amid laughter.

Discussing Prohibition, he said this legislation "in its different forms should have been shot with a double-barrelled gun twenty-five years ago—with both barrels—because it has been a headache to members on both sides and we don't seem to be getting anywhere. The Premier says he is going to try this new system out, and we trust it will work out."

Mr. Strong: "Any 'shine' in your locality?"

Mr. Morrissey: "All kinds of it. They should put up vendors' stores wherever possible because it is the only way to curb the liquor traffic."

Premier Jones: "Do you want one in Tignish?"

Mr. Morrissey: "Absolutely!" (Laughter).

Double indemnity, he suggested, should be paid to members from the extreme ends of the Province, owing to their additional expenses while attending the Legislature.

A Pimple Covered Face Kills Many a Romance

The lives of many young people are made miserable by the breaking out of pimples, and you probably know of cases where a promising romance has been spoiled by those red, white, festering and pus filled sores on the face.

The trouble is not so much physical pain, but the mental suffering caused by the embarrassing disfigurement which very often makes the sufferer ashamed to go out in company.

The quickest way to get rid of pimples is to improve the general health by a thorough cleansing of the blood.

Burdock Blood Bitters helps to cleanse the blood and with the blood cleansed the complexion should clear up.
