Laurel And Hardy In "Block-Heads" At Prince Edward

Hilarity reaches a new high, judging from the guffaws emanating from the Prince Edward Theatre yesterday with the first showing of the new Hal Roach-M-G-M comedy, "Block-Heads." Chief reason for the merriment is that it stars Laurel and Hardy. Coupled with it is the fact that it is their best venture in months into their own fantastic realm.

"Block-Heads" starts with a tawny breeze of mirth and ends with a whirlwind of insanity, one of the most ludicrous finales that has ever graced a Laurel and Hardy product. Interspersed are rare gems of comic and pantomimic art. Gags are fresh and frequent. Action zips along with a refreshing spontaneity and the players react with apparent enjoyment.

Sian Lewis impersonates America's man of the hour, whose most recent exploit has made the front pages of the country's newspapers. Oliver Hardy, once his war buddy, hastens to invite the hero to share his home, but his wife has other ideas. With domestic workings and misinterpreted friendships throwing the pair into a welter of mirthful woe, Laurel and Hardy muddle through in their own inimitable style to a gloriously funny conclusion.

Reason Now Rules Where Romance Once Was the King

BY RUTH MILLETT

Getting married always has been a serious business. But the generation marrying now is the first one that has been let in on the fact before-hand.

Forward-things high schools making certain that their graduates K n o w from the start how serious a step they are taking when they say "I Do" and just about what complications and adjustments to expect. If school doesn't get them ready, they are a church or marriage clinic will.

Then when they get out and decide on a mate, the test law as a prerequisite to marriage holds them up for a long enough period of time to give them ample opportunity to remember that they are stepping into a serious affair.

Divorce statistics in the next ten years may prove that all the education and all the precautions are a wonderful thing. And another generation may produce a new high in marital happiness.

But there is bound to be many a romantic young person, sitting through courses on marriage, and going through all the state's requirements who look back longingly on the day when young people entered marriage without so much depressing knowledge of the difficulties involved.

The more romantic of the young ones are bound to think it was a fine thing when a young man and woman married with the conviction that nothing could happen to their marriage - that no difficulties could ever arise - and that marriage was an adventure on strange and wonderful seas, not a charted course.

Some of the marriage-educated young folks who seek to believe that a little ignorance was a privilege. And that the young people of another day had an enviable complacency, that the marriage-educated can never know.

But no matter how romantic the past may look, from now on young people will have to be content to have the R that once stood for Romance - stand for Reason.

And reason tells us they will benefit from the change.

Amusing Isn't It?

FUNERAL SERVICES - The funeral of Michael Hennessey took place yesterday morning from his late residence, Brighton Ave., to Holy Redeemer Church. It was largely attended. Members of the Benevolent Irish Society attended in a body. The pall bearers were Messrs. John Callaghan, Roderick MacDonald, William Dalziel, Arthur White, Joseph Gallant, and John Coyne. The Father Mooreau, C.S.S.R., conducted the service at the church and the grave.

BRIDAL SHOWER - Miss Gladys Matheson, whose marriage takes place next month, was guest of honor at a bridal shower given at the home of Mrs. Wilfred Hunter, Kent Manor. The joint hostesses were Miss Jean MacLean, Kay Sutherland and Kathleen MacRae. After the bridegroom's refreshments were served and when the prizes for the evening were presented the guest of honour was presented with silver water pitcher and Prax plate to mark the happy occasion.

WORKMAN INJURED - Wednesday while working at the construction work on the new airport at Sherwood, Ray Dunn suffered a nasty cut on his foot from an axe he was using. First aid was rendered at the site by a volunteer conveyed to a doctor. The wound required several stitches. This is the third accident of this kind to happen since work began on the project.

LOADING HAY AT MONTAGUE - The schooner George B. Cluett of the International Grain Association, was loading hay in port at Montague yesterday for St. Anthony's, Nfld. The Cluett, with Captain Kenneth Iverson, Lunenburg, N. S., as master, came here with a general cargo from Boston, Lunenburg, and Halifax. At Boston, Captain Iverson left eight young college boys who had shipped as volunteer workers during the summer months. The George B. Cluett, which was built at Lunenburg, N. S., is said to be the largest two-masted fishing vessel ever built in Nova Scotia. She is the third vessel presented to the Grenfell Association by the Cluett family, each named the George B. Cluett.

Carleton and Vicinity

Mr. and Mrs. David Murphy of Carleton have as their guest Mr. Murphy's aunt, Miss Jessie Murphy of Baltic.

Mrs. Fred Bell of Carleton returned Saturday from a visit with her sister, Miss Agnes Linkletter of New York and Miss Sara Linkletter of Boston.

Mrs. Edna Howatt and Mr. Stanley Howatt of Carleton, motored to East Point, Belle River and Souris last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Crooks, Miss Esther and Mr. Iley Crooks of Cape Traverse left Monday morning on a motor trip through Nova Scotia.

Miss Evelyn Bell of Cape Traverse returns Monday from a month's visit with her sister, Mrs. Herbert Benner of Somerville, Mass.

The Cape Traverse Women's Institute put on a hot goose dinner and fancy-work bazaar in the Hall Wednesday evening. The "cass" were delicious, fully sustaining the high culinary standard set by former affairs of a similar nature under the same auspices. There was a good attendance and a gratifying sum was realized.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Callbeck of North Tryon and Mrs. Joseph Cluette of Cape Traverse returned Monday from a most enjoyable motor trip to New Hampshire. They were delighted with the beautiful scenery in the White Mountains. A memorable feature of their trip was their encounter with last week's terrific New England storm. Mrs. George Callbeck of North Tryon accompanied the party as far as Dixmont, Maine, where she visited Mrs. Sophie Clark, formerly of Tryon.

A Story of the Northland. Also NEWS AND SERIAL

Montague - SATURDAY
Souris - MONDAY

The Male Octette from Charlottetown rendered a service of song before a large and appreciative congregation in Tryon United Church last Sunday evening. The members of the octette were Messrs. Harry Craswell, Jack Taylor, Harry Yorston, Lyle Robson, Malcolm MacKinnon, Brent Howatt, Peter Small and Gordon MacMillan. The service was under the auspices of the Women's Mission, Aisy Society and was conducted by Miss Elma Inman.

Miss Isabel Newsome, who is on furlough from the United Church Mission in Sydney, gave a deeply interesting talk on her work, which is largely among new Canadians helping the needy and teaching the little ones in the kindergarten.

The octette sang the following numbers with pleasing harmony. The softer passages being especially impressive: Lord, for tomorrow and its needs. The Lord's my Shepherd. He died of a broken heart. Peace, Peace, wonderful Peace. I have heard of a land. Steal away. A solo. Why should I feel discouraged, by Mr. Craswell and a duet. I've tried in vain, by Messrs Craswell and Small, were also much appreciated.-D.

This Family Is Buying Bargains!

They're smart, these Island people. They have a moderate income, wear nice clothes, drive a good car and live well. They're one of hundreds of Island families in similar circumstances.

Since they aren't wealthy, these people have to be thrifty. And that's where the Guardian comes in. With the aid of Guardian ads, people can be thrifty without being penny pinchers, spenders without being spendthrifts. The procedure is simple and it's based on the fact that merchants who advertise are selling good merchandise at a price. This family plans shopping at home with a copy of the Guardian. Then all they have to do is go directly to the store and get their merchandise. No fuss, no bother, no loss of time. They rely on the Guardian ads. YOU CAN TOO! Read the ads daily!
