"Prisoner, you are getting ahead of the proceedings," he said. "Gentlemen under the circumstances hadn't we better let this lady stay?" There was silence. He paused a moment. "Very well, if no one objects. Clerk, book the lady," he did not look at Constance, and neither did the clerk, as she answered to the formal inquiries:
"Constance Deane—Mrs. Martin Rosier Deane—of Providence, Rhode Island."
His name! I had never heard it before. Odd that I should hear it first in such circumstances! Everything was odd; even comically odd. Never have I been able to reconstruct in memory the events of the next few minutes. They were handing me a book. I was being sworn. Constance Deane sitting so quiet. I had kissed her once. Should I ask to kiss her again—before—?
I was talking, I must remember not to say that I gave him my hat and horse. They might identify him by my hat and horse. "Shorty—he seemed to be prosecutor—was asking me about that. I must dodge I was saying that it was some horse which stood by the jail. And saying it badly. They would never believe me. Marcus was talking. About my previous reputation. A strange court! They let advocates testify. Buck was talking. About my squareness. And:
"We will hear now—from the lady!" said Major Brown. I came conscious, wide awake, every sense preternaturally acute. A drawing of many breaths agitated the room; then, Constance rose, absolute silence even outside. Her lips parted once or twice; then she was speaking in that low, lovely voice with its dripping pause between syllables—and fluently.
"In the first place, gentlemen, the man who escaped a few minutes ago was my husband—Martin R. Deane. I married him in Providence five years ago."
A shuffle of feet changing position; a composite aspiration of breath like one long sigh.
"I think you will allow that a wife in any circumstances should do what she can to save her husband's life. Of course, you intended to kill him. I did not know until this morning what happened in town last night. Then I learned—I suspected—that you had my husband in jail. I reached the jail while—while you were—killing—the other man. I felt my husband had no chance. I saw an opportunity. And I realised him."
Major Brown sat with his eyes on the cover of Judge Cowan's law book. Without looking up, he asked:
"Mrs. Deane, will you explain how you accomplished this? The jail was guarded, and Gilson had the keys."
"How does a woman make a man do anything? He was alone in front of the jail. The other guards were watching—what you were doing." Here she paused and drew a breath so deep, held it so long, that I thought she would never release it. Then, as though realizing that she must shrink from nothing, she went on. "The hanging, I mean Mr. Gilson had captured my husband. He didn't know it was my husband. I told him. He is my friend. He did not want to break my heart. I begged him. I entreated him. I made him feel that if you—hanged—my husband, it would kill me. He unlocked the door. My husband got on Mr. Gilson's horse. He has told you differently. But if you believe him, you must believe that he was at least an accomplice in stealing a horse." How quick was her intelligence! I hadn't thought of that! "When he says it was some unknown horse, he is only trying to make my husband's escape more certain—trying to save me and mine. I cannot let him do that. He has done enough. He took his life

SMILES

Father: You want to marry my son?
Daughter: Why, Pa, I didn't know he was a ball player.
Father: Oh, I didn't mean that. How many days per month is he on the bench?

First Critic: That performance was pretty raw.
Other Critic: It wasn't well done but it will be thoroughly roasted in the morning.

BEYOND HIS SKILL

No doctor since the world began Though skilled in each disease, Has found a way to cure a man Who was but ill at ease.

"I shall not wed until I can marry a hero."
"Well, you show the first man who proposes to you a schedule of the cost of living and if he still asks you to take him for your meal ticket, he is a hero."

"Don't you find that rising in the army is very slow?"
"Not in my case. I belong to the aviation corps."

in his hands like the gallant gentleman he is. But I made him do it. If I had asked—" She stopped there. What she had intended to say, what she had cut off with a little intake in her breath, I could supply. So, I think, could the rest. It was a boast of the power of her sex. "I had asked any one of you—I with these eyes, I with the appeal of my youth and womanhood and goodness and grief—what would you have done?" Any man in the room must have read that in her silence.
Major Brown cut in with his dry, unemotional tone:
"Mrs. Deane, how much have you had to do with your husband's operations in this camp?"
For the first time her smooth pallor broke into color. As from a sudden, intense flame, a spot burned instantly on either cheek, was instantly gone.
"Allowing that my husband's business here was criminal—which I do not allow—I had nothing whatever to do with that. I have not communicated with him in any way—except as I have told you. When we talked, it was only about coming home with me. I cannot prove this, of course. But you cannot prove the contrary." Again her cheeks grew vivid, melted to pallor. "Gentlemen, I acted this morning on impulse; but if you hang anyone, you should hang me. I did not see the end of what I was doing. did not know that I was putting in danger a fine, brave, good man, worth ten times—" Her voice broke a little here, but she caught back her sob.
"And if you hang him, you must hang me. I do not care to live and realize what I have done. That is all." Firmly Constance sat down.
Major Brown lifted his face to the crowd, opened his mouth to speak. But Buck, showing past Marcus, stood before the table.
"Gentlemen," he said without the formality of addressing the court, "before we do any votin' I've got a few brief remarks to make concerning where we are at. This vigilance committee wasn't formed just to give the boys a treat. We was after somethin'. We wanted to make this here a decent camp. And we took the only way there was. Some day, I suppose, this here imperial state is goin' to come snoopin' round inquirin' into these proceedings. What'll they find? That we cashed in five tarantulas that was better dead anyhow. No kick. Everybody satisfied. We've had that bunch looked up. Goin' on any law that ever was, they all would 'a' got a long term, an' most of 'em the rope. We've saved the state a heap of board. But you've struck a different question with the kid here. He's—his good. He's helped make this here camp. He was in on the carbonate discovery. He's been workin' on the paper fightin' the bunch of crooks that was runnin' us. He's got nerve. I know. It's all right to go up against a man with a gun in your hand. But I don't see myself tackling a bandit barehanded like he done. I dunno why he turned this here Deane, alias Maxwell loose. Maybe I'm guessin', as maybe you all are, but I don't know. Anyhow, if he did it, I'm bankin' he had a good reason a d—n—" Buck checked himself here, vainly tried to bite off the profane word he had dropped in the presence of a lady.

No one answered him at first. Then Shorty gave a growl, preliminary to speech.
"Shut up, Shorty!" snapped Buck. If anyone wanted to know why it was called Hayden hill, not Croly's hill, the answer was here. For Shorty did shut up; and Buck continued:
"I ain't goin' to let it happen. Not if I can stop it. The vigilance committee has worked harmonious so far. If you go on with these proceedings, there's two of us will take objection, strong. Marcus Handy and me, his partners. And I guess there'll be others. Boys, let's call this thing off. Of course, nobody expects to do anything to the lady. While we're at it, I don't see any sense in chasing that husband of her's—unless the boys have rounded him up already. We've got five out of six of the men we wanted. That's don't de—mighty well." Buck paused as though searching his vocabulary for the proper parliamentary expression before he finished: "I make that in the form of a motion." (To Be Continued)

CHIGNECTO CANAL COMMISSION
PUBLIC notice is hereby given that the Royal Commission appointed by the Government of Canada to inquire into the project of a canal between the waters of Cumberland Basin, an extension of the Bay of Fundy, and Bate Verte, an arm of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, across the Isthmus of Chignecto, will sit at Charlottetown, P.E.I., on Wednesday, November 4th, 1931 for the purpose of hearing such representations as public bodies, commercial organizations, industrial concerns, railway and steamship companies, and trade and transportation interests generally may desire to make as to the economic and national advantages or disadvantages that may be expected to accrue from the construction of such a canal, and its importance to the trade of Canada in general, and of the Maritime Provinces in particular. The sessions of the Commission will be held at the offices of the Board of Trade, commencing at 10 a. m. Representations from points not visited by the Commission may be submitted orally by delegates or presented in written form either through the Secretary of the Charlottetown Board of Trade, or direct to the Secretary of the Commission.

Public Notice As To Applications For Oyster Farming Leases

Applications for leases of Prince Edward Island areas for oyster farming purposes will now be received by the Department of Fisheries, Ottawa.
Leases will be granted in Malpeque Bay and its tributary rivers and in such other areas as are not now public commercial oyster beds and are approved by the Department as suitable for oyster farming. A plan showing the lots available for leasing in the Malpeque Bay area may be consulted, without charge, at the office of the Supervisor of Fisheries, Charlottetown, or at the Biological Station at Ellerslie or the office of any Inspector of Fisheries in the province.
Summary of Major Leasing Conditions
Areas that are most suitable for spat collecting will be reserved from leasing and will be available to all lessees for this purpose.
If there are conflicting applications for an area preference will be given in the following order: (1) To the owner of foreshore opposite the area sought, up to a reasonable limit; (2) To a resident of the immediate district; (3) To a person or company in the province; (4) To a person or company outside the province.
Any further information desired as to leasing conditions may be obtained on application to the Supervisor of Fisheries, Charlottetown, or the Department at Ottawa.
Information as to the most effective methods of oyster farming, obtained by the Department through the investigation which it has been conducting in the Malpeque Bay area, will be made available to applicants for leases, or intending applicants, upon request.

The ambitious wife of a millionaire gave a big dinner party. Her husband, who had made his money as the inventor of a patent rat poison, was silent during the dinner.
As the ladies left the room, his wife found an opportunity to whisper to him: "Why on earth don't you talk?"
"Talk?" he replied. "Why, what's the use of it? Not a single person here knows anything about rats."
