Mr. Harry Alchorn was driven clear through the wind shield in the accident but fortunately escaped serious injury. A lady driving alone with a horse and wagon barely escaped being run into by the car. Latest inquiries at the hospital bring the report that Mr. Alchorn's condition is improving. parently originated in Northern Illinois, where farmers decided to augment their slender incomes by converting barns into dance halls for Saturday night affairs. Society, hearing of the affairs, looked in and returned each time such a party was scheduled.

A well-known society girl took a party of week-end guests to one of the affairs recently. One of her guests waltzed with a blacksmith, another learned the stomp from a farmer's daughter, and the hostess herself danced the quadrille, one of the most popular of numbers at barn dances.

At first the farmers turned out the cattle, engaged a piano player, and a drummer, and began to dance. Business improved so rapidly that a new floor was laid in the barn and a six-piece orchestra hired to furnish music.

Several other Illinois towns have reported success in the revival of barn dances, with their quadrilles, square sets, and round dances.

Aged Recluse Worth $60,000 Dies As Charity Patient

(St. Petersburg, Florida, Exchange). Investigation into the affairs of George W. Clark, 86, who died at Mound Park hospital, Thursday, August 11, has revealed that the aged man, who had been living in extreme poverty, was worth between $60,000 and $70,000.

Clark, seriously ill from under-nourishment, had requested admittance to the hospital as a charity patient. In the investigation that followed, Crysus S. Myers, hospital superintendent, asked to see an envelope which Clark possessed.

It was then discovered that Clark owned stocks, bonds, postal savings certificates, and cashiers' checks worth between $60,000 and $70,000. The old man was taken to the hospital, but not as a charity patient. He died later.

Neighbors, who took care of him at times, declared that he seldom had food in his home nor equipment with which to cook it.

This much is definitely known about Clark: He had lived in Florida since the Civil war, a great deal of that period spent here; he came here from Canada, and has two brothers living in Canada.

Meanwhile, since the size of Clark's estate has become known, many persons have asked payment of bills.

Seven years ago Clark arranged with the Endicott Funeral home to take care of his funeral arrangements.

The securities which were left by Clark included stock in an automobile manufacturing company, a telephone company, government bonds and others. The cashiers' checks were on Canadian banks.

Every possible attempt is being made to find his relatives. Neighbors disclosed that Clark was well-educated and almost a "wizard" with figures. It is believed that he was a bookkeeper before he came to Florida.

(A resident in Florida, in sending the clippings above, thinks the deceased may have had relatives in Prince Edward Island).

No Autographs From Marie Corelli

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(C.P.)—In an article in Overseas by S. L. Picard on an autograph-hunting the writer says that Marie Corelli, literary not approve of giving away literary property, and even when writing to friends took care to stamp across her signature "Personal, not for sale."

The exact value of an autograph is always difficult to determine and often in the desire to add one more signature to their collection people forget that a whole document would be even more precious. Not long ago a lady offered the organizers of a charity bazaar a dozen Walter Scott signatures. When asked where she got them, she replied that she had that morning cut off the ends of a heap of old letters she was burning. When told that each letter was probably worth $500, while the signatures by themselves would hardly fetch $2.50 a piece, she regretted her haste.

From time to time such gems for the autograph collector are found in the hands of people equally ignorant of their value. A letter from Dickens, relating to his domestic trials was discovered in the possession of a public house keeper who could not read. An important letter from Nelson spent years pasted on the back of a mirror in a Yarmouth hotel, and a dear old lady who could not distinguish one word from another was discovered cherishing an unpublished Byron poem in the belief that it was an effusion from her dead sweetheart.

Not long ago as much as $825 was paid for a letter from Thackeray to Charles Kingsley, complaining of attacks made on him and adding that his enemies thought remarks on the shape of his nose made him more furious than any other criticism.

"What your name?" the grocery store manager asked the young applicant for a job.

"Scott," replied the lad.

"And your first name?"

"Walter."

"That's a pretty well-known name," remarked the manager, with a smile.

The boy looked pleased.

"It ought to be," he replied. "I've been delivering groceries around here for two years."
