Excellent reports were given from the various committees on the work during the past month. Mayor Campbell complimented the committees on their good showing.

MARATHON SPEAKER GOING STRONG

Curtain Rings Down On Hot Election Contest

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 —(AP)— The curtain rang down tonight on one of the hottest election contests for control of the United States House of Representatives in the history of the country.

The outcome might have a profound effect on national policy during the coming two years. If, for instance, house control should go to the party that loses the presidency a system of dual government control would result, such as has occurred only a few times.

As last-minute oratory stilled to await tomorrow's election returns, both Democrats and Republicans claimed victory.

Democratic campaign headquarters predicted that "we will maintain control by our present or a larger majority." Republicans replied that 52 additional Republican seats are "in the bag" and their gain might run to 80. The Republicans need a net gain of 48 to take over the House, which they last organized in 1929.

The Democrats, meanwhile, were almost certain to retain rule of the Senate. Under the constitution, only one-third of that chamber's membership —now 96 —is elected every two years; the Democrats now hold 69 seats, of which 25 are at stake this year. Five of the latter, however, are in the "solid south."

Less noticed than the Congressional races is the fact that 33 states are electing governors tomorrow. The Democrats hold 30 of the 48 gubernatorial positions. Those at stake in tomorrow's election are now held by 19 Democrats and 14 Republicans. Maine already has elected Sumner Sewall, a Republican, and 11 Democratic and three Republican governors are not up for re-election.

The present composition of the House is 258 Democrats, 167 Republicans, 2 Progressives, 1 Farmer-Labor and 1 American-Labor. There also are three Democratic and three Republican vacancies, all to be filled in tomorrow's election. The total house membership is 435.

A checkup showed that 979 candidates are seeking 432 House seats —Maine already has chosen three Republicans in its September election.

Sixty-five seats are uncontested, of which 58 are Democratic and 7 Republican. Seven of the uncontested Democratic places are in Mississippi, 6 in Alabama, 6 in Arkansas, 4 in Georgia, 5 in Tennessee, 2 in California, 2 in Florida, 2 in Kentucky 7 in Louisiana, 1 in North Carolina, 13 in Texas and 3 in Virginia. Seven Republicans in California have no contests.

Tells Experiences While Flying North Of '53

MONCTON, N.B., Nov. 4.— Outlining his experiences when flying north of '53 as a wireless operator attached to the Royal Canadian Signal Corps, Jack Ross, station manager of the Trans-Canada Air Lines here, gave a very interesting address before the Moncton Rotary Club at their regular weekly meeting today.

Mr. Ross joined the Canadian Signal Corps in 1927, and his first assignment was at Norway House in Northern Manitoba, while radio at that time was rather crude compared to modern apparatus, yet it was very efficient, Mr. Ross stated. Long wave was used as at that time short wave was only in its infancy. He also referred to the great part that the airplane has played in opening up otherwise inaccessible places in the North Country and stated that the airplane united distant communities and kept them in touch with civilization, the pilot acting as a communication channel for messages from one community to another. At that time, Mr. Ross continued, there were no weather reports, and a pilot flew in "by the seat of his pants." He recounted several instances of some remarkable navigating feats where the pilot was able to local his base even when clouds obscured landmarks. It was in the North Country, Mr. Ross said, where the foundation of Canada civil aviation were laid and he paid a great tribute to the worthy pioneers for their resourcefulness and courage. Contrasting conditions then with operations by the Trans-Canada Air Lines, he stated that pilots now have knowledge of the weather they are likely to encounter on a trip between Moncton, Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto ten hours in advance.

A radio "beam" enables a pilot to follow his course with unerring accuracy and in addition, planes have advanced tremendously in speed, airworthiness and comfort. Prior to his coming to Moncton as station manager for the TCA, Mr. Ross was located at St. Hubert, Que., airport.

Canadians Turning Out 'Master Gauges'

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—(CP) —Canadian craftsmen and engineers in 50 shops are turning out highly-complicated "master gauges" for guns, shells, tanks, aircraft and other essentials of the Dominion's wartime program, Munitions Minister Howe said tonight.

The Minister's statement said this number compared with "only two or three shops" capable of turning out gauges to a precision of 1-10,000 inch before the war began.

"The highly satisfactory output of these precision gauges is a tribute to the skill, ingenuity and spirit of Canadian craftsmen and engineers" Mr. Howe said.

"No one realized that we possessed in this country such a large number of workers capable of doing this extremely precise work.

"We are finding that Canadians are highly adaptable, and that young men and women can be trained for the most exacting work and can attain astounding skill."

The council postponed action on Chief Walker's request until he learns definitely if he will be going overseas.

50 Million U. S. Citizens Flock To Polls Today

By H. M. PETERS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(CP) — A re-arming United States, alarmed over its future in a warring world, goes to the polls tomorrow to decide whether Franklin D. Roosevelt or Wendell L. Willkie will be its President for the four years just ahead.

Out of the long and at times extremely bitter campaign, the great central issue upon which an expected 50,000,000 or more citizens will vote emerged as:—

Do President Roosevelt's seven-year leadership, his knowledge of and experience with foreign affairs, and his social reforms at home, justify him in asking the nation to end his historic record of never giving the president more than two terms in the White House?

The President says "yes." He asks a "vote of confidence" and a mandate to lead the United States for one more term during which, he has said, he hopes peace will return to the world. In any event he has stated that at the end of the term there will be a new President."

Willkie says "no." "There is no indispensable man," he has cried. He charges the President with seeking to perpetuate one-man rule and asks if the new promise of no fourth term can be accepted.

On the major policies of full aid for Britain, defence of the western hemisphere, and, at home, the New Deal's accomplishments in creating social security, minimum wages, old age pensions, banking reform, and similar matters there is no quarrel.

Willkie has stated that these things are "national policies" and his administration would not change them, although it would seek more economical means of dealing with the social problems.

Both candidates have pledged themselves not to lead the United States into war except in national or hemisphere defence. Mr. Roosevelt says his record of having steered a non-belligerent course amid all the wars of his term in office while at the same time backing up friendly nations makes it clear he is not "quick on the trigger." Mr. Willkie and his supporters have declared the President is "headed for war" against the totalitarian states and that his promises in this regard will go the way they claim some of his other declarations have gone.

N. S. Exhibition Assn. Rejects Gov't. Offer

HALIFAX, Nov. 4.—(CP) — An offer of $150,000 by the Defence Department for the Provincial Exhibition buildings and grounds—to be used by the army for barracks and offices—was rejected here today by the Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition Commission.

The Commission appointed Agriculture Minister John A. McDonald and Mayor W. E. Donovan, of Halifax, to take the matter to Ottawa. The Defence Department offer was $730,000 below the $888,000 price placed on the buildings and grounds by the Commission.

While in Ottawa, the delegation will also register the Commission's disapproval of a proposed plan to erect permanent military buildings on the Halifax North Commons if the Exhibition facilities could not be purchased

Historic Memoirs Are Published

OTTAWA, Nov. 4—(CP)—Another piece has been added to the mosaic of Canada's early history by discovery of documents written by Baron de Lahontan about 1696. The documents, presented to Canada by Lady Oakes, wife of Sir Harry Oakes of Bermuda, have been published by the national archives.

The publication, with an introduction by dominion archivist Gustave Lanctot, is bilingual. It contains two memoirs, a transcript of the Baron's will, a letter he sent to French authorities from Hamburg in 1698 and the official census of New France in 1692.

There are several plates showing early views of Quebec and military maps for use in the planned siege of the city by British ships.

Baron de Lahontan, a Frenchman, turned to Britain when jealousy of Governor Brouillan of the French colony of Newfoundland brought a warrant for his arrest from the King of France.

A comprehensive survey of New France in the 17th century, from first hand information on military and civil affairs, is contained in the two memoirs.

The first—written to convince Britain of the value of Canada—explains the possibilities in agriculture, manufacturing, shipbuilding and the colossal profits made in the fur trade.

"Canada would make the finest empire and the greatest state in the world were it possible to unite New France and New England," he wrote.

The second memoir, "outline of a project to capture Quebec and Placentia," details the manpower and defences of Quebec and Placentia (capital of French-held territory in Newfoundland) and suggests how these places might be captured.

Baron de Lahontan came to Canada in 1683 at the age of 17. At Montreal in winter of 1684-85, made his will, leaving his goods to his mother after pyament of "the sum of 365 livres Canadian money to the parish church of Montreal and 200 more livres to the hospital."

"Canada returns nothing to the King of France," he wrote in one memoir, "since the sums accruing from the beaver lease, import and export trade is used to maintain 40 companies of marines, a governor-general, four local governors, an intendant, a sovereign council and a hundred other officers of justice, a bishop and all his clergy, two or three seminaries, as many hospitals, seven or eight convents of either sex, and 30 missions, besides the cost of large amounts of munitions."

The census of New France in 1692 shows a population of 11,075. There were 99 towns and villages, Quebec being the largest with 1,570 inhabitants.

Catholic Bible Society Formed

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—(CP) — A Catholic Bible Society has been formed here to supply a Bible to every Roman Catholic it can reach.

Organizers of the society — "The Catholic Society of the Bible"—say that its work will be "greatly stimulated" by a need for the "diffusion of Christian truth in order to offset the insidious propaganda emanating from Communist and Nazi sources."

Such propaganda has been "secretly seeping into our western civilization, threatening to corrupt the morals of the oppressed and less-privileged classes of our people," they added.

Operating under a Dominion charter, the organization aims first of all to place a copy of the Bible in every Roman Catholic home in Canada. The Bible will be sold as near cost price as possible.

The Bible will be given free to any who cannot afford to pay for it, to hospitals, homes for the destitute, penal institutions and foreign missions. Copies will also be placed in hotels.

For financial support, the society will depend on annual dues to be paid by members in Canada, on donations, bequests and periodical appeals to Catholics at large, and its scope will be extended as far as finances permit.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Dissension Within C. B. C. Due For Public Airing

(Financial Post)

OTTAWA—Acute differences of opinion among the governors of the CBC are almost certain to be aired in public during the coming session of Parliament.

Gladstone Murray, CBC general manager, appears to be the storm centre. As the attack develops it will become increasingly plain that the critics aim chiefly at a change in management.

The dispute, which erupted into the daily press last week, has been going on for the better part of two years. Undoubtedly it would have been aired publicly long ago had it not been for the outbreak of war.

The resignation of Alan Plaunt from the Board of Governors, and Mr. Plaunt's letter to Hon. C. D. Howe, the Minister in charge of radio, seem bound to bring on an investigation, probably by a special committee of the House of Commons.

Governors vs. Manager

The story back of these developments is one of conflict between some of the governors (though not a majority) and Mr. Murray. The conflict concerned the administration of the CBC and the policies of Mr. Murray.

In the spring of 1939, when the conflict first came to a head, the Board of Governors unanimously authorized Mr. Plaunt to make an investigation into the CBC. The board hired J. C. Thompson, chartered accountant, to help him.

A report was completed and ready for submission about the time war broke out. Indeed, it was submitted to the board at the first meeting held after the outbreak of war.

Meantime, an important though unofficial change had occurred in the status of the CBC. The general manager is an employee of the Board of Governors. Mr. Howe, the Minister, had no direct responsibility for him; the board stood between the CBC and the minister.

But with the war ministerial control became more direct. The board of governors became and has continued to be, less active in day to day control of policy.

The Plaunt-Thompson report has never been made public. There has never been a word said about it by anyone in authority. Mr. Plaunt now says, in his letter to Mr. Howe, that the report discloses "serious defects." He says further that, "as a public trustee, I should not continue to accept responsibility for the internal organization and executive direction of the Corporation when I have long ceased to have confidence in it."

Mr. Plaunt goes farther. He says it is his "considered view" that the corporation is seriously hampered in doing its job now and that its survival as an "effective instrument" is prejudiced.

The reason for Mr. Plaunt's resignation is that the report, duly filed with the board, has not been acted upon. It has been pigeon-holed.

The next step will be to try and have the report made public. A motion to this effect, it is learned, will be made early in the new session and thereafter will come the demand for a full investigation.

BABY GIVEN UNUSUAL NAME

JUNEAU, Alaska, Nov. 4 —(AP)— North Sea Meridian is the name of the new daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stako. The baby received her name at a christening at Holy Trinity Cathedral yesterday. The child, the Stakos' ninth, was born Oct. 9, aboard their home-made cruiser, the Ark of Juneau.

Interpreting The War News

(By Kirke L. Simpson, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Italy is learning in Greece, as Russia discovered in Finland and Germany found out at the English Channel, that mechanized warfare has definite limitations.

"Blitzkrieg" methods and battle equipment demand a favorable terrain. Against wide waters, tortuous mountain barriers or shifting desert sands, rumbling tank legions lose much of their menace. War reverts to the age old business of man-to-man fighting.

Greek valor has held Italy's mechanized power at bay for eight days in the rugged mountains of the Greek-Albanian frontier. Fascist failure to achieve in that time a "lightning rhythm" of attack is ascribed by Italian commentators to bad weather, lack of roads and Greek resistance.

Lack of roads in the Epirus sector probably is the major military factor in holding up the Italian push. Mule trails are the normal means of communication on that front and Ioannina (Janina), the first Italian major objective in Epirus, is surrounded by a terrain so wild and rugged that the Greek poet, Homer, depicted the region as not only the "bad lands" of Greece, but as the probable site of Hades. In the 3,000 years since Homer's time neither highways nor railroads have substantially improved the terrain for blitzkrieg military use.

The grim fight being made by the Greek mountain troops where they are familiar with every inch of the ground, however, has much to do with Italian ill success. It does not seem possible that the Greeks can, even with British air force help, definitely halt the Italian drive in view of the numerical and equipment odds against them. Yet they have already baulked the Fascist thrust long enough for British forces to establish themselves firmly on the Island of Crete.

It took Russia from Nov. 30, 1939, to March 13, 1940 to break Finnish resistance on the Karelian Isthmus. If the Greeks can hold for only a fraction of that time, it will afford Britain opportunity to set up naval and air bases in southern Greece, thus extending British control of the eastern Mediterranean and making the status of the Italian army in Egypt doubtful.

Peace For U. S. Willkie Says Is Work If Elected

NEW YORK, Nov. 4. — (AP) — Wendell L. Willkie, determined to keep campaigning into the very morning of election day, declared late today that "my every act as President will be to keep this country out of foreign wars, and to keep it at peace."

In the waning hours of his drive for the Presidency, Willkie rested at his apartment during the morning, and then made a broadcast talk to women of the country from his headquarters.

The candidate and Mrs. Willkie will vote tomorrow at a polling place near their apartment. In a statement today, Willkie called on all citizens to cast their ballots, adding:—

"Failure to vote is not only an abdication of the high privilege of American citizenship but is an acquiescence in whatever loss of liberty may come if the power of the bosses be not outvoted."
