 OTTAWA, March 30.—The delegation from the Dominion Executive of the G. V. V. The general exception is that nothing further will be done in line with their request this session.

It is estimated that the bonus asked by the Veterans, if granted, will cost the country $325,000,000.

The Woman Who Loved and Earned
 BY JANE PHELPS
 A Modern Story of Home and Business

JERRY PONDERS HER PROBLEM CHAPTER 91.

I wondered if I had given Robert more than he could do successfully in urging him to trim the windows. It was almost a business in itself, as he had said, as well as being an art.

"If the window trimming bothers you at all, could you do it after hours, until you get used to following my diagrams? Then I could come down and help you," I asked him.

"You would be too tired after selling hats all day," he told me.

"I'm not selling hats now," I had not failed to notice the change in his tone, as he referred to my work.

"Well, if you are a mind to, I'll tell Mr. Burch that I will do the windows late, after the others have gone."

"All right, I'll be down about six."

All day I thought of Robert. All day I accused myself because I had not found a way to help him before. After I finished my work, I picked up a late magazine and commenced to read a story. I read a few paragraphs when this sentence caught my thoughts and halted them:

"Business women make marriage an adjunct to business, instead business an adjunct to marriage." Then it went on: "Isn't that too so object to the idea of the business woman, as that the woman so obtrude their business, and make every thought and action subservient to it. For single women this may not be a fault. It may even be a virtue. But for a married woman to hold the attitude toward business is fatal to happiness. Her husband feels that he is relegated to a minor position, and if the wife is successful, especially monetarily, he loses all ambition in time—if, indeed, he does not go to pieces entirely."

I read this paragraph over and over.

Had I made Robert simply an adjunct to my business? And had my attitude really been fatal to his happiness? Was it I who was responsible for the change in him, his deterioration?

It was a disturbing thought, and yet I could not put it away. I went back over our lives together. Could I think of one thing I had done without believing it was for the best, and not one action but I had considered Robert's good as well as my own advancement. Yet I realized that I had done just exactly as that writer had said—I had made everything subservient to my business even Robert's happiness which of course also meant my own. For loving him as I did, I was not happy had not been for some time, knowing him miserable and fearing to lose him.

I thought of the garden. Kenyon that he had for a few short weeks appealed to me—not that I ever had a disloyal thought toward my husband, but I could see how Marlon might have appealed to Robert in the same way. Then by my being so absorbed in my own affairs, my thinking of business constantly, her influence had grown, perhaps imperceptibly at first, but because she had loved him, and had no outside interests, she almost won him from me.

I came to no conclusion with all this thinking. But things were gradually crystallizing in my mind, almost unconsciously. Just now I was bent upon helping Robert to get on. I had nearly two weeks of my vacation left. By the time I had to return to the shop, he would have become interested

Peel Charged With Manslaughter
 AMHERST, March 29.—The preliminary examination of M. A. Peel, who has been charged with manslaughter through negligence in causing fire, opened here on Saturday, when Drs. Miller and McCue testified again, that the late Lewis A. King of the Oxford tragedy came to his death by suffocation and that the injuries received were caused by some external source which caused a clot of blood at the back of his head and another on his chest which occurred before his death.

How the external blow was delivered to the deceased the doctors did not attempt to decide.

Mr. F. L. Milner, who is appearing for the accused, asked many questions, one as to whether the clots of blood would be sufficient to cause death. Dr. Miller answered "No," but that it might have some effect on consciousness. Also questioned as to whether an intoxicated man would become suffocated quicker than a man in good condition, the doctor said he could only make a guess which would be "Yes." Dr. McCue's evidence was on the same lines as that of Dr. Miller's. The preliminary examination will be continued on Monday afternoon at Oxford. A large crowd of people from Oxford and Amherst were present at the court opening.

What causes Indigestion
 An excess of acid in the stomach sours the food and starts fermentation. Distressing gases form. Your meals don't digest but lay like lumps of lead. Then you have heartburn, flatulence, fullness, belching, headache and real misery in the stomach and intestines.

A few tablets of "Pape's Diapepsin" bring relief almost as soon as they reach the stomach. "Pape's Diapepsin" costs little at drug stores.

THE JOY OF EASTERTIME
 BY M. J. FAIRCLOTH

O the joy of Eastertime
 When earth is robed anew
 In loneliness and sunshine,
 Sweet music fills the air—
 The song of birds, the humming
 bees,
 The sweet wild flowers, the budding
 trees,
 The singing brooks, the rippling
 streams,
 How they thrill us 'mid the days
 With their Easter-song of praise!

But the sweetest note in earth or heaven
 Is the glorious message "Christ is Risen!"

The crowning joy is the Living
 Christ!
 The Christ to human hearts so
 dear,
 So real, so very near
 That we can lean upon His arm
 And leaning, rest;
 Meanwhile, He reads our heart's
 deep longings,
 Unuttered, unexpressed.
 He shares our joys, He knows our sorrows,
 He understands the loneliness and pain
 That oft would fain oppress
 "I know it all," He whispers
 With deepest tenderness,
 And breathes into our hearts
 His peace and rest,
 And the sweet assurance—
 "Because I live you shall live also,
 In my Father's house await you
 Mansions bright and fair—
 And loved ones, too, await you there."

Life grows radiant with Christ and hopes
 Amid the glorious Eastertime,
 And hearts are filled with heavenly joy
 And God's own sunshine.

YOUNG WOMEN AVOID PAIN
 THIS ONE TELLS HOW SHE WAS BENEFITED BY TAKING LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Regina, Sask.—"For two years I suffered from periodic pains and nausea so I was unable to get around. My mother had me take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am much better and able to go about all the time, which I could not do before. I recommend Vegetable Compound to my friends if I know they suffer the same way and you may publish my letter if it will help any one, as I hope it will."—Miss Z. G. BLACKWELL, 2073 Oyster Place, Regina, Sask.

If every girl who suffers as Miss Blackwell did, or from irregularities, painful periods, backache, headache, dragging down pains, inflammation or ulceration would only give this famous root and herb remedy a trial they would soon find relief from suffering.

It hardly seems possible that there is a woman in this country who will continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, proving beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world.

For special advice women are asked to write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service. 224.

enough so that he would not fall back again.

So I planned, little knowing the hold certain ideas had upon him.

"Well here I am!" I said that night after waiting outside until I saw he was alone in the store.

"Now will you get to work," then I selected the things I thought would attract the most attention and at the same time make an artistic showing. We worked steadily for nearly two hours. When we finished, I was delighted. Sporting goods really lend themselves easily to decorative purposes.

"I guess the Old Man will open his eyes when he sees what we have done," Robert said, as we went home tired, but satisfied.

HINTS FOR The Motorist
 BY ALBERT L. CLOUGH

HANDY GREASING METHODS
 Less Lubricant On The Hands And More In The Bearings

The less burdensome lubrication can be made the more conscientiously and regularly the motorist will perform it and the longer his car will remain in good condition. Lubrication by means of ordinary grease-cups is a "messy" back-breaking process and is too often shirked and deferred, but fortunately considerable progress has recently been made in facilitating the lubrication of the so called minor parts to which grease-cups are generally applied. There are, upon the market, for example, greasing systems which do away with individual cups and which are applicable to any new or old car. One such system consists of a powerful grease-gun, the delivery of which is through a length of flexible metallic tubing carrying a special grease-tight locking fitting upon its end. All individual grease cups are removed from the car and a dust excluding fitting so devised as to lock to the end of the flexible tube, is screwed into the place of each. The gun is filled with grease, its tube end is applied to a bearing, by snapping the connecting parts together and lubrication is forced where needed by the screw action of the gun. There is thus only one handling of lubricant required in the greasing of a large number of bearings and the flexible tubing renders awkward positions unnecessary. There is, however, quite a sentiment to the effect that heavy oil is better for spring-bolts, steering-gear pins and other bearings that have a restricted movement and this has resulted in the development of improved oil feeding devices for use in places where grease cups have customarily been employed. These are small plunger-operated oil pumps, so designed as to be screwed into the threaded holes formerly occupied by grease cups. The little oil holds quite a quantity of feed a little of it, automatically, to the bearing, but the oil is not permitted to run through wastefully as is the case with the ordinary spring closed oiler. By operating the plunger a charge of lubricant is set into the bearing, the plunger given a stroke often enough to keep oil slightly oozing out from the end of the bushing. With these improvements, together with the oilless or self-lubricating bushings, the lubricating of running gear parts and the like should be robbed of most of its disagreeable features.

OXFORD WINS TRACK MEET
 LONDON, March 28.—Oxford defeated Cambridge Saturday afternoon in the first dual inter-varsity track and field games to be held by the rival universities since March, 1914. The final score was Oxford 5 1-2 events; Cambridge, 4 1-2 events, first places only counting in the meet.

H. S. White, formerly of Bowdoin College, won the running high jump for Oxford in easy fashion with a winning leap of 5 feet 7 inches and immediately followed with an exhibition jump in which he added two inches to his performance. L. J. Feather, also an American Rhodes scholar, won the hammer throw for the dark blue with a throw of 100 feet 11 inches.

This was the one upset of the meet, for Oxford had expected to win the place with Noakes, who had been throwing the hammer better than 110 feet in preliminary trials.

B. G. D. Rudd, from South Africa, was also a strong factor in the Oxford victory, winning the half-

BREVITY.
 We all need brevity. We need it even in action. Most of us make two movements where one would suffice. We waste muscle and nerve energy and live in doing things we do not need to do. We do not do anything else, especially in doing things in long and clumsy ways when a little thought would provide a simpler way to the same end.

But above all we need brevity in speech. It seems as if the world had never before been overwhelmed with such a flood of words. Every day in books and newspapers the press pours forth millions of them that no one can read, or wants to read, or ought to read. Every day public speakers deliver long volumes of words, which they have reflected very little beforehand and on which no one will reflect at all afterwards. The old saying was that speech was given us to conceal our thoughts, but it serves an even more useful purpose in concealing our lack of thoughts. For thought is difficult, and talk is easy.

It seems almost as if the wide diffusion of education had supplied chiefly words and enlarged our common, or uncommon, vocabulary without enlarging the thought behind it. It ought not to be so. The foremost, the only vital, function of education is to supply thoughts. And it may be taken for granted that the more we think the less we speak; for the more we think the plainer we see the huge significance and the danger of speaking. Especially is it true that the more exactly and carefully we think the less we speak. If we really have something to say, we try to say it with an exquisite and finished brevity.

Of course brevity can be carried too far, may be awkward and inarticulate and incomplete. We may be brief and tedious at the same time. Some one brought Voltaire, the master of brevity, an epigram in two lines. "Ah!" said Voltaire. "Very good, but it drags in spots." The old comic dramatist said of a dull oaf, "This laconic ass makes brevity ridiculous." We do not want to make brevity ridiculous or let it make us so.

Nevertheless, we should all do well to cultivate and practice brevity, and we may be sure that he should be much more listened to if we spoke less.—Ex.

Charlottetown on an Ocean Route

MONTREAL, March 27.—With the opening of navigation this year the Canadian government merchant marine will have in operation twenty-eight steamships on the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, and by the end of May, if promised deliveries of new ships are fulfilled, there will be five more put into commission, making thirty-three ships, and by mid summer the total is expected to reach 44 vessels. The preponderance of traffic will be from the St. Lawrence, and several new services from Montreal from lower down ports will be opened.

One benefit to the Atlantic ports they will enjoy their own summer traffic in this respect, for though Montreal will be the chief port for most of the St. Lawrence traffic there are to be some direct services from these Atlantic ports.

The new schedules now being drawn up provide for services from Sydney, Charlottetown, and Halifax to Liverpool. In addition, there will be occasional sailings from Charlottetown to St. John's, Newfoundland; a weekly service from St. John, N. B., to Cuba, and a fortnightly one from Halifax, bringing back raw sugar or rubber commodities is also likely to be established.

Last year the services of the C.G. M. M. were confined to Liverpool and London in Great Britain, and they did not touch Brazil, nor did they take in the coastal ports of the Maritime Provinces.

LIVE HOGS WANTED
 We are ready now to receive live hogs, paying as follows, delivered at our packing house, Charlottetown:—

150-275	18 cents
275 up,	16 cents

Brood sows, any weight, 14 cents all good quality, well fattened.

Delivery may be made on any day except Saturday.

Light hogs, under 150 lbs., are of very little use for packing purposes, and as the chief profit from feeding comes in the last few weeks of finishing, it is respectfully suggested that farmers hold any small hogs, under 150 lbs., until of weight and quality more profitable for all concerned. But should it be necessary to dispose of any such under-weights they will be received at market value, proportionate to above prices.

We also buy at various points throughout the Island and full information can be obtained from our local representatives.
