JOHN BARRYMORE TRIUMPHS IN "REUNION IN VIENNA"

Has Ideal Role as Dashing Hapsburg of Sparkling Comedy

John Barrymore cuts a wide swath to greater popularity as the mad, impulsive, irresistible and stormy Hapsburg who returns from banishment to renew the memory of kisses that lingered after Vienna's glory faded.

As the dashing hero of Robert E. Sherwood's "Reunion in Vienna," Barrymore gives the most engaging role of his entire career. In the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature, which opened . . . at the Prince Edward Theatre, Barrymore has an ideal characterization that matches his individual talents and personality as though tailored to his measure by the author, Robert E. Sherwood.

Diana Wynyard acquires herself one the less brilliantly as the lady whose kisses the exiled arch-dukens.

Football Epic At The Capitol

One of the most timely and most interesting motion pictures seen on a local screen for a long time is "The Last Goal," gripping football drama which opened an engagement at the Capitol Theatre yesterday.

Here is a picture which in its field is a veritable classic. It is a fast moving story which not only presents famous gridiron stars in thrilling football games, but tells a dramatic story of a young college man whose head is turned by the adulation of the multitude and how it was turned back again by a brother who had been in the same boat and realizes the terrible danger of a swelled head. This role is played by Richard Arlen—and incidentally, it is the best part of his career. Other important roles are played by Andy Devine, Gloria Stuart, James Gleason, Preston Foster, June Clyde, John Harron and a large number of other popular screen players.

The football atmosphere is of particular interest, and presents many of the country's most famous gridiron stars. The All American team of 1931 plays as a unit, for the first time in the history of such a squad, and there are a score of other outstanding players. Among the football stars in the picture are such famous figures as "Red" Cagle, Marcy Schwartz, Ernie Nevers, Albie Booth, Frank Carideo and Jerry Dalrymple.

Whether you are a football fan or not, you cannot fail to enjoy "The All American." If you are a follower of the game, the picture will fill you with wild-eyed excitement.

Kingsville Lions Club Honors Jack Miner

KINGSVILLE, Ont., Oct. 23.—It is written in the bible that "A prophet is without honor save in his own country," but such can't be said of Jack Miner the Canadian naturalist and his home town of Kingsville, Ontario, because the newly formed Lions Club of that town which consists of the officials of the town, the executive of the Board of Trade, local member of Parliament, and other prominent citizens sprang a surprise this week on their well known citizen Jack Miner in the form of a testimonial banquet which was one of the most exclusive affairs that ever took place in this the most southern town in Canada.

The citizens well realize that during the last twenty five years that the Jack Miner Bird Sanctuary has become well known all over the world and at the same time Jack Miner's home town of Kingsville has been put on the map because not only the citizens of the town are one hundred per cent behind him, but Ontario and Canada all well realize the value of his bird sanctuary not only from the conservation standpoint but also from the tourists standpoint because both the provincial and federal governments have rightly spent millions of dollars in national parks yet Jack Miner challenges any one to produce a picture showing more cars lined up in these public parks than he can show lined up along the roadside in front of his humble home. People from all parts of the world who have been attracted to his home town of Kingsville solely to visit his bird sanctuary during the spring and fall migration seasons of the year.

HOW IT FEELS TO BE MARRIED TO A PRINCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Mary McCormick, the opera singer who has a separation action pending against the Georgian prince, Serge Mdivani, yesterday gave an ex-parte version of how it feels to be a princess.

"It feels something like this," she said, biting on a stalk of celery. "I put on my hat and coat to go out. The prince says: 'What for?' I say: 'Fresh air.' He is insanely jealous. The prince says: 'Stick your head out of a window.'"

"And the prince goes out, and locks the hotel door, and I have to stay in all day, and if I want fresh air I have to stick my head out of the window."

HAS BULLET IN HEART

KANSAS CITY, Kas., October 23.—Periodically for nearly three years, Dr. Charles M. Stemen has examined a patient who has a bullet in his heart. He said today the patient, Virgil Bennett, 21, was in good health.

On November 27, 1930, at the family home near Halls Summit, Kas., where Bennett still lives, a rifle was accidentally discharged as Bennett, a brother, was taking it down from a wall. The bullet struck Virgil behind the left ear, pierced the mastoid cells there and was deflected downward through the esophagus, lodging in the pericardium or fibrous heart covering.

BOY DIES LITERALLY WITH SONG ON LIPS

FORT COLLINS, Colo., Oct. 23.—Robert Salaz, 16, died with a song on his lips.

Nurses at the Larimer County Hospital, in hushed voices told about it yesterday. They told how, ever since he had been brought seriously ill to the hospital last Friday, Robert had sung for them.

His illness grew worse, but still he sang on with all the strength he had. And the last words he uttered were the words of a song.

VISITS WORLD'S FAIR

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will see the World's Fair October 31 minus an official escort and incognito—at least that is her wish.

The United States President's wife had notified the Cook County League of Women's Clubs today she would be "delighted" to visit the fair on woman's day. She asked that she be permitted to inspect the fair without an escort, with only her secretary as a companion. Officials had planned to have Mrs. Roosevelt start her tour of the grounds at 1 p.m. She requested to be permitted to enter the grounds at 10.30 a.m. instead.

BLONDES AND REDHEADS HAVE TENDER SKINS

CLEVELAND, Oct. 23.—A gentle warning to the blondes and the redheads on care of the complexion issued today from the councils of the Interstate Postgraduate Medical Association of North America. This organization heard Dr. Frank O. Knowles, professor of dermatology at Jefferson Medical College, expound severally a few points in the treatment of skin diseases. Said Dr. Knowles to his fellow physicians, phenolphthalein is the cause of some skin troubles.

"This chemical term which cannot be reduced to simple English is the name of a substance used in many skin preparations to color them pink or red.

As dry as tinder, Mr. Knowles' humor cropped up in a backstage discussion of complexions just prior to his appearance before his colleagues.

"The blondes and the redheads have much more tender skins than the brunettes," he explained, "because they haven't as much coloring matter." His eyes twinkled. "Natural coloring matter in the skin, I mean."

Death was caused by their auto being crashed into broadside by a large and swiftly driven auto.

Four persons of these two cars lost their lives while two others were seriously injured. In charity we do not lay the whole blame on either driver; but we mourn in sympathy with the dear friends of all the deceased so sorely bereaved.

Mr. Milligan, the senior member of this partnership was born in Pictou, N. S., on July 31st, 1883. He was the son of the late Thomas Milligan and Mrs. Jane (McKendrick) Milligan.

In early life Edgar was not blessed with an abundance of earthly goods. His parents though industrious found it difficult to rear a family and keep square with the world. He was not "dolled" and nursed as some boys are until well up in their teens. The confines of school were too narrow for his enterprising spirit. He was more prone to get an education by actual contact with the world and its doings than from mere book-learning. He was frequently a truant from school—an explorer of the woods and streams. Thus he missed a qualifying education which, in the extensive business of his later life, he might have used to advantage; yet, from such an active outdoor life his vigorous youth was changed into a powerful manhood.

Mr. Milligan, was for many years a valued Director of the Canadian National Silver Fox Breeders' Association and was on one occasion commissioned to represent the Canadian Fox Breeders at the World's Fair at Buenos Aires in the Argentine Republic.

He took a lively interest in the workings of the Association and secured through it special recognition for ranch bred Alaska Silver Foxes and for these tabulations are officially registered by the Canadian National Live Stock Records, Ottawa. Mr. Milligan sold his furs through the Marketing Department of the Association and it was each year a really beautiful sight to see many hundreds of these large heavily-furred Alaska fox pelts as they were arranged on table after table in the grading and letting rooms of the Association building.

At the time of the regrettable accident with its deplorable fatalities, Mr. Milligan was carrying a card bearing his wife's name and address with a request that she be notified if he arose. Mrs. Milligan's address was given as Seattle, Wash., as she generally remained there a part of each year with their son James while he was attending Co'lege in that city. The message sent to her at the time of the accident could not be delivered to her at that address as she was, at that time, in Northam, P. E. I., and

A Tribute To The Late J. Edgar Milligan

"What is this Beauty Spot?" exclaims an American tourist as his chauffeur driving westward along the Northam Road lessens speed that his passenger may, to better advantage, admire the artificially perfected scenery of the Milligan & Morrison plant at Northam, Prince Edward Island. "Let us drive up on the grounds and learn what we can about this place." Turning northward they enter the highway of the estate leading to the main part of this commodious villa. Happily they are met by J. Edgar Milligan himself, as he is coming from the office to oversee operations in different parts of the plant. Mr. Milligan in a frank general manner extends to them his usual cordial greetings and in accordance with their wishes tells them a summarized story of the compass of the plant. With him they inspect the race track and its up-to-date equipment, including modern night-racing installations, the high class Holstein cattle and the barn of beautiful proportions built to accommodate these animals. They have a glimpse of the extensive fox ranches and follow his explanations attentively as he tells of fox-breeding to produce quality and demonstrates to them the operating of the ovens, dyers, mixers, etc., used in the preparation of the feed for the thousands of foxes reared on the estate. The visitors are unanimous in their estimations of the grandeur of this veritable villa—the like of which they had never seen and in parting with Mr. Milligan express the hope soon to return to see a Milligan-Morrison horse race and to learn more of the Silver Fox Industry.

A few weeks later the painful news of the sudden death of J. Edgar Milligan and George L. Morrison near Buffalo, New York, on September 1st, came as a shocking surprise to the wives and other intimate relatives of these mutually and generally esteemed partners of the widely-known firm of Milligan & Morrison.

Death was caused by their auto being crashed into broadside by a large and swiftly driven auto. Four persons of these two cars lost their lives while two others were seriously injured. In charity we do not lay the whole blame on either driver; but we mourn in sympathy with the dear friends of all the deceased so sorely bereaved.

Thus he missed a qualifying education which, in the extensive business of his later life, he might have used to advantage; yet, from such an active outdoor life his vigorous youth was changed into a powerful manhood.

In 1900 at the age of 17 years he went to the Klondyke gold fields to join his father who had gone over the Yukon trail two years earlier. He prospected and mined with his father on different creeks in the Klondyke mining district until 1903, when he accompanied his invalid father to their home in Freeland, P. E. I. Edgar returned to the gold fields, but Thomas Milligan died September 1903. Edgar took up mining operations on Quartz Creek with Gwinn Cummings and White. In 1904 he bought Gwinn and Cummings' half interest in claim No. 13 below "discovery." This claim produced about $50,000. After their clean-up in October 1905, Mr. Milligan returned to his native place and remained over winter. During this time he put on sports and entertainments for his friends that gave them a joy in life, and that were as forerunners to the big events of recent years in the Northam sports and entertainments.

In 1906 he again went to the gold fields. He and Cummings bought claim No. 14 below "discovery." They worked this claim which produced about $15,000.00.

He became acquainted with Miss Daisy Baker of Seattle, Washington, whom he married on September 26th, 1907, in Dawson, at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Rebecca P. Clark. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Dr. John Pringle, former erly of Charlottetown, P. E. I., but now of Sydney, N. S. Other Islanders present at the celebration were Hugh D. Smith of McNells and Chester Milligan of Sherbrooke, cousins of Mr. Milligan and James Fendergast of Kensington.

In 1908 Mr. and Mrs. Milligan moved to Cleary Creek in the Fairbanks Mining District. In making this trip, 400 miles north of Dawson, they passed within the Arctic circle. Here he prospected in quartz mining until June 1909 when Mrs. Milligan went (on a visit) to her old home in Seattle. Edgar seeing his old partners and Hugh Smith embarking later for Seattle to visit the World's Fair, could not resist the temptation and joined them on an eighteen-day trip down the Yukon River past St. Michaels at its mouth and then by a sail of about 1500 miles in a northwesterly direction on the Pacific Ocean to Seattle, where he rejoined Mrs. Milligan.

In August 1909 they returned to Edgar's old home in Freeland, Lot 11, P. E. I., and here their only son James E., was born.

In 1912, Edgar made a trip north in company with his old partner Bob Gwinn of Cape Breton Island—in fact, he made three trips to the Yukon with Gwinn and brought Alaska Foxes to P. E. I., on each return. It was on one of these trips that he met George L. Morrison. They became intimate friends and remained such to the very hour of death. Rarely is there formed a more compatible union or partnership than that of these two men. Both were talented and intelligent workers and the great Silver Fox Industry gave them ample scope for a diligent exercise of their abilities. One was a competent judge of fox values and a generous purchaser who usually paid greater than current prices. He did not buy any inferior stock and it came to be a good advertisement for a fox rancher truthfully to state "that he had sold his foxes to Milligan." He likewise was blessed with executive ability of a high order. The other was a great organizer and salesman, so that Mr. Morrison established ranches from east to west across the continent, from the Atlantic to the Pacific and as Mr. Milligan had engaged to buy the foxes, which were to stock these ranches, he could truthfully advertise the stock as of good quality. In this connection Milligan & Morrison founded schools and employed instructors who, under their guidance, taught ranchers and prospective ranchers the general art of caring for foxes giving them the results of various breeding and feeding experiments made and conducted at their Northam and other ranches.

The pure bred Alaska Fox, a large beautiful animal, is inseparably connected with the name Milligan & Morrison. These foxes whenever shown whether on United States or Canadian Shows, were winners of highest prizes and many hundreds of the improved Alaskas may now be seen in the Milligan & Morrison ranch at Northam.

Mr. Milligan, was for many years a valued Director of the Canadian National Silver Fox Breeders' Association and was on one occasion commissioned to represent the Canadian Fox Breeders at the World's Fair at Buenos Aires in the Argentine Republic. He took a lively interest in the workings of the Association and secured through it special recognition for ranch bred Alaska Silver Foxes and for these tabulations are officially registered by the Canadian National Live Stock Records, Ottawa. The message sent to her at the time of the accident could not be delivered to her at that address as she was, at that time, in Northam, P. E. I., and through incident delays the sad news did not reach her until 6.00 p. m. September 2nd. It was only a few days previously that she had accompanied him by auto to Borden to embark on his trip to Ohio ago where he and Mr. Morrison had extensive business engagements, and one can barely imagine the awful shock that came to her and son James E., on receipt of the tragic tidings. Sorrow became general as the report of Edgar Milligan's death flashed over the Province. Friends and acquaintances met on streets, in shops, hotels everywhere to exchange words of condolence and many people connected only in a business way, expressed feelings of a real personal loss. It was even pitiable to note the sorrow of his employees with whom he was on the best of terms and who felt that by his death they had lost, not only an employer and friend, but, even a protector.

The death of J. Edgar Milligan scarcely past the prime of life has stricken a loving wife and son with cruel and sudden affliction brought bereavement to his sister and other near relatives, saddened the lives of his employees and called forth the sincere sympathy of thousands of friends.

Edgar was a man of wonderful personality and an ideal host—joyful, generous and considerate. His like we may not meet again.

The funeral of the late Mr. Milligan was the largest and most impressive ever seen in these parts made more impressive no doubt by the grandeur of the place which he had built and from which his earthly remains were taken for interment. The solemnity of the occasion as the funeral service was conducted from the verandah of the house and the evident sadness of the throngs of people there assembled to do a last honor to one of Prince Edward Island's benefactors, will be memorable for a generation.

Things will remain unsettled for some time" as the young husband who furnished on the hire-purchase system remarked.
