Queen of The Yukon Takes Third Husband

By F. H. McArthur

Surviving sourdoughs who marched over the trail of '98 to the famous Klondike gold fields will learn with interest that Klondike Kate, old time glamor girl of the Northland, married her third husband last April.

The latest man is W. L. Van Buren, a retired accountant. The couple will make their home on a small farm about 12 miles from Salem, Ore.

Kate Rockwell, the daughter of Spokane, Wash. judge journeyed to the north country with a vaudeville troupe when she was twenty. This girl, who often entertained Robert Service as well as a bearded sourdough, was the undisputed Queen of the Yukon, often earning as much as $700 for a single night's performance. A miner who struck the jackpot gave Kate $1,000 to do a special number.

In those good old bad days, the dancing girls got a 25% take off the money earned by the house plus tips. For a gal like Kate Rockwell it was the rainbow's end and the pot of gold. The Yukon gave Kate its Aladdin's Lamp and the golden haired entertainer became Klondike's leading star almost overnight.

The bells of the Northland are credited with financing Alexander Panfili's first venture in the theatre business, a venture which in later years resulted in his becoming a successful west coast theatre owner and producer.

Kate used to do a lot of her numbers in Panfili's theatre, and the sourdoughs simply adored her.

The Queen of the Yukon was first married to a handsome cow puncher named Floyd Warren. Later they were divorced.

Her second venture into the matrimonial field was back in 1900 when she married Johnny Mattson on Christmas eve.

Johnny fell in love with the Klondike beauty during the time of the hectic gold rush but it took the shy miner 33 years to muster enough courage to pop the question. Johnny and Kate were married in Vancouver, B.C., July 14, 1933. It turned out to be the strangest marriage in Canadian

Mount Albion And Vicinity

Mrs. Fred Trousdale, Mount Albion, was a visitor to Charlottetown on Thursday.

Mr. Austin MacDonald was a guest at the home of Allan Jenkins on Sunday.

The produce buyer, Robertson, is loading a car of potatoes at Mount Albion station this week.

Supervisor G. Rice of Charlottetown made his official visit to the schools of Mount Albion and those of surrounding districts.

Many friends of Bethel and surrounding districts are indeed sorry to learn of the illness of Errol Lund, thus necessitating the closing of their school.—M. A.

Mount Albion School re-opened on Monday after the fall holidays and reported favourable progress by the efficient teacher, Mrs. Earl Link of York.

Mrs. Hedley Jenkins of Mount Albion is having an extended visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. L. A. Ramsay, Halifax. Her condition is reported much improved.

Mrs. Alfred MacLean and little son, Alfred, dated Sandra, daughter of Mount Albion after spending some time in Charlottetown at the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Gaudet.

The many friends of Mr. Lawrence Myers were sorry to hear of his accident on the highway, causing the truck in which he was riding to overturn. He was rushed to the P. E. I. Hospital where he received medical treatment for a slight wound on his head, and a long gash in his arm requiring four stitches. He was able to return to his home in Mount Albion.

The activities of the re-organized Women's Institute of Mount Albion since January, 1948, have been very busy. It is their efforts that have secured for the school has been ordered, new individual plastic drinking cups presented to the school children, sanitary towels and water fountain, clothes hooks and water closet. It has also placed a large amount for repairs to the community hall.

Mr. Chester Jenkins, Mt. Albion, was a passenger on the Wood Islands Ferry enroute, to new Glasgow on Wednesday. He was accompanied on the boat by his nephew, Mrs. Lawson MacEachern, Mrs. Jack MacEachern, Mrs. Cheryl Valley, and Mrs. Boswell Jenkins, MacKenzie Corner, who spent the past week at the guest house of Mrs. M. J. Morron St. New Glasgow.

The ladies of Hazelbrook Women's Institute entertained a group of ladies of Mount Albion Women's Institute at the home of Mrs. James and Carl Wood to a most enjoyable evening. Several contests of special interest were conducted and prizes were given to some of the winners. A lively question-box caused much merriment. A delicious lunch of sandwiches, cake and ice cream was served. A welcome was extended to the visiting members. A vote of thanks tendered by Mrs. Jack MacPhail on behalf of Mount Albion Institute for the enjoyable evening and for the return of the compliment at some future date.

Ankle-high booties ornamented with scrolls of braid or cuffs of fur.

Spats, five buttons high and edged with fur.

Low-heel girth boots of black suede with cuffs of black seal.

Scores of buckles, a la Pilgrim Fathers, with wide, flaring tongues to set them off.

Strictly modern were low, V-throated pumps, some of them with sunburst motifs of narrow straps that tie at the instep.

PLEASE REMIT

The principal cause of merchants' ills is found in the people who won't pay.

It's surely surprising how many you'll find

Who'll laugh at a statement—who's always behind,

They think that a merchant, for-should carry them on without asking for pay.

And if you should write them, "Please remit."

My goodness! They nearly fly into a fit.

The very ideal! The nerve of that dunc!

To ask for money (They have owed him for months).

They ask him for credit—and he, like a friend,

Says, "Yes, that is something I'm glad to extend."

He means it, for credit, as all of you know.

Is something all merchants are glad to bestow

On folks who are honest—to folks he can trust.

But yet there are many who cling to the thought,

They shouldn't be dunned for the goods they have bought.

Who'll owe the poor merchant for months at a time

Without even paying so much as a dime.

They'll put on their parties, with splendor and show.

But haven't (?) the money to pay what they owe.

They'll put up a front for the man on the street,

And who pays the adder? The merchant, they "best."

LET'S PAY UP!

PIONEER GLASS-MAKING

England was the first country to use coal in the making of glass.

With Canada's Naturalists

(Written for The Canadian Press by Percy Ghent)

Fifteen thousand red, white and Scotch pine trees were planted by Col. Roscoe Vanderwater at his farm near Foxboro, Hastings County, Ont.

Today 14,850 of the trees are thriving. The average diameter of the pines is 10 inches and the average height, 45 feet.

The reforestation project was made on a hillside, subject to erosion and too steep for cultivation. Planting was carried out as the frost was leaving the ground and the usual farm help and a few neighbors were enlisted in the job because other work was not pressing.

Besides the steady growth which has given years of satisfaction in watching the once barren and dusty hillside become a thing of beauty and an excellent wind-break, Col. Vanderwater urges other farmers to lose no time in reforestation enterprises of this nature, but the value of their farms by planting young trees, which can be secured without cost, on otherwise useless and unsightly acreage.

Such projects are exempt also from municipal taxes up to 10 per cent of any farm holding; the maximum exemption, however, must not be pastured. If they are, the trees will not thrive and the tax exemption does not apply.

Hyde Park, now a national shrine of the United States has a garden feature of growing fame. It is a beautiful hemlock hedge, now about 16 feet high, which was planted by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and it surrounds an irregular area of lawns and flower beds which he selected as his last resting place.

Hemlocks, most graceful of evergreens, and once among the commonest of Canadian trees, have now reached the scarce list because of the enormous demand for this tree both as timber and for its bark for tanning purposes. Stumpage price of the hemlock (Tsuga canadensis) now is at an all-time high.

At Pennsylvania estate named "Far Country" not far from Germantown, there is a hemlock arborium of such beauty and interest that naturalists and foresters from many lands spend days of study there.

Leading to the hemlock plantings, which is undoubtedly the most interesting stepping-stone path in all America has just been completed. It is known as "The Signers Walk," and every stone in the path is directly associated with one of the original signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Stones have been collected from the birthplaces, business offices, as well as the favorite haunts of the men who signed that historic document—56 of them. First of the stones in this path is the doorstep of Independence Hall. Some of the stones are so worn that it had to be replaced. It came into the possession of Charles F. Jenkins who then conceived and carried out the idea of the Signers Walk.

Appreciated Vacation In Island Province

A visitor from Regina, Sask., has written from his home to tell how much he enjoyed the vacation he spent in the Province this summer.

Writing to J. B. Jay of Morell, he says in part:

"I want to express my sincere thanks for the many courtesies you extended to me on my recent visit to P. E. Island.

"It was one of the most interesting and pleasant trips I have ever had and will remain a bright spot in my memory, particularly the people who were so hospitable and kind to me, a stranger in their midst, and I was made to feel at home always."

"It is no wonder that when people once visit your Island paradise they they always want to go there again. You know there is another thing that struck me very forcibly, that he never you do not see any of the "No Trespassing" signs on property down there, which are so common in other parts of our country. This gives one a feeling of freedom, the people there really mean it when they bid you 'Welcome to P. E. Island.'"

"Since I have got home we had two days of rain but it was well completed and the rain was well welcomed for next year. You know out here we are a 'next year' people, always looking forward to next year's crop."

The visitor, Mr. G. H. Merlin, noted that the fall season is very short in his Province and added that he was enclosing a copy of a letter of appreciation which he sent to the Postmaster General "as a small tribute to all you have done to make my visit to the Island the pleasant and profitable one it was." (Mr. Jay is the postmaster at Morell.)

In closing Mr. Merlin said: "I sincerely trust that some time in the future I may be able to renew our acquaintance and again visit the scenic paradise of P. E. I."

Polish Egg Exports

During the first six months of 1948 Poland exported 55 million eggs compared with 35 million during the same period of 1947, and only 3 million in 1946. The main outlets for Polish eggs are Great Britain, Switzerland and Czechoslovakia.

Save The Machinery

An important late fall and early winter job which is in danger of neglect on many farms is the overhauling and repair of machinery, not only for the next season's work, but in order that it may withstand the deterioration of winter. An increasing number of western farmers believe that it pays to put all machinery under cover at least for the winter months if not for any part of the year when it is not in use.
