The Examiner and Patriot have for months past been doing a great stroke of the "scissors act," clipping news items from the Guardian—and even from the Pioneer. The Guardian correspondent through modesty, refrains from asking for credit for such items, but surely the Pioneer should not be slighted in this way.

MANY will learn with sorrow of the death of Mrs. Pickering, wife of William Pickering, of Back Road, which occurred about 3 o'clock Sunday morning, in the 62nd year of her age. Deceased was of a kindly disposition and much loved by a large circle of friends. Her husband, three sons and four daughters are left to mourn. Wm. Tanton, Summerside, is the only surviving brother. Funeral takes place today at 2 p. m.

WHILE in Summerside a few days ago W. S. LOUSON, Charlottetown, who has become noted for his photographic art, selected a large number of views taken in and about Summerside. These pictures we may expect to see reproduced in some of the leading magazines or shown on canvas by magic lantern, as Mr. Louison through interest in the beauties of our Province, has done and is doing much at his own expense to advertise the attractiveness of our Island scenery in this way.

SIMON SOMER a farmer and laborer in the employ of Hon. H. C. McLeod of Summerside for past twenty years, dropped dead about five o'clock Saturday evening. He with another man, had just returned to Mr. McLeod's farm immediately north of the town with some cattle which they had been weighing and were in the act of putting them in their places in the barn when he suddenly fell on the floor a corpse. Deceased had always enjoyed good health. The cause was heart failure. He was about forty years of age and leaves a wife and nine children.

Most of the schooners in Summerside harbor are about ready for sea. The Joseph McGill, owned by B. D. and E. S. Sharp, and captained by James Walsh, is the first to sail, leaving at an early hour this morning for Picton with a cargo of oats. The Lois, Capt. Dunn, will likely leave for Picton to-day. The Terridon, owned by R. Campbell, will also leave to-day or to-morrow for Picton. The Restive, Capt. Cain, will probably go to Picton tomorrow. The Ida M., Captain Mallett will leave tomorrow or Thursday for Picton with a cargo of oats. The Telephone, Captain Albert Gady, will be ready to sail to Picton the latter part of the week. The Malabar recently purchased from Joseph Read & Co., by Captain James Gady will be ready to sail in a few days. The Jennie Armstrong recently sold by Captain James Gady to a party in Newfoundland, lies waiting delivery to purchaser. The Western Light owned by Mr. Pineau, Miminalgash, has not yet been fitted for sea. The above differs considerably from the Pioneer statement. But the information given here is correct.

WAS CRUSHED TO DEATH IN CABIN

How Harry G. Wadman Met His Fate in the Yukon

A Dawson Newspaper Tells the Story—Was Tearing Down an Old Building—Roof Caved in—His Companions Warned.

The following particulars clipped from a Dawson paper have been received by O. B. Wadman, Crapaud concerning the death of his brother.

Harry G. Wadman, a miner of French hill, was crushed to death in a cabin on Eldorado this morning by the sudden collapse of the roof. He heard the roof timbers crack and called to a companion to save himself. Before Wadman could follow his friend the roof fell with a crash and he was buried beneath the debris.

His breast bone was crushed, but he lived some time after the accident. J. Hawkins the friend, made heroic efforts to rescue the unfortunate miner. He was encouraged by Wadman, but Hawkins was unable to move the heavy timbers which were crushing his friend to death. One heavy beam lay across his stomach. On it were piled logs and debris. Wadman's strength rapidly left him and with a moan of agony he died. He was literally squeezed to death.

TEARING DOWN CABIN.

Wadman and Hawkins were tearing down the cabin when the roof gave way. The accident occurred shortly before 9 o'clock this morning. The cabin stands on No. 16 Eldorado. It is an ordinary structure, its dimensions being about 14x16.

Wadman and Hawkins were getting wood and for that purpose began pulling down the building. They started about 8 o'clock and were making fair progress when Wadman heard an ominous crack from the roof timbers. Both men were inside the cabin. Hawkins was nearest the door.

"Jump," yelled Wadman as he heard the crack. "Jump." With a single bound Hawkins sprang through the door into safety. Even as he sprang the roof gave way with a grinding noise and fell with terrific force on the ill-fated miner. He was in the act of jumping for the door.

CAUGHT IN TRAP.

From under the heavy timbers and the debris, Wadman called to Hawkins and the latter began a heroic attempt to rescue his friend. Wadman spoke to him several times, but his voice grew fainter. Hawkins renewed his attack on the mass of timber, but his efforts were fruitless, and Wadman expired.

Still Hawkins removed timber after timber until he came to the crushed body of the dead miner. He picked it up and carried it to the sled. Then, broken hearted by the catastrophe, he took the remains to French gulch. They are being brought to Dawson and will arrive here this afternoon.

Wadman was a member of the firm of Hansen, Wadman & Tretton, who own and operate claim No. 21, French gulch. He was a single man and about 35 years old and one of the most popular men in that part of the country. He had been in the north several years. About a month ago the three partners stopped work on their claim. When they shut down the claim Wadman commenced hauling wood to French gulch.

WANTED THE TIMBERS.

With Hawkins he secured the cabin on Eldorado which had been abandoned and intended taking the timbers to the gulch.

Wadman was a native of Prince Edward Island. There he was a schoolmate of Rev. Mr. Barreclough, of the Methodist church of Dawson; Percy H. Palmer, Russell A. Palmer and A. B. Palmer. He was also a friend of Dr. McLeod, of Grand Forks.

After leaving Prince Edward Island Wadman resided for some time in the states. Before coming here he lived at San Francisco California where he joined the Odd Fellows. It is believed that he is still a member in good standing.

The dead miner had lived on French hill for the past two winters. From a cursory examination his only injury seems to be the crushing of the breast bone, but he probably received other internal injuries of a fatal nature.

THE FUNERAL SERVICES.

In the course of a letter from Percy H. Palmer to O. B. Wadman he speaks thus of the funeral.

"We have just returned from paying the last sad tribute to poor Harry. We laid him at rest on the slope of a hill overlooking the Yukon. The funeral was very largely attended and was from the Methodist Church whose minister, Mr. Barreclough, a friend of Harry's presided. He was very kind and good in the matter. Harry was well thought of here and had many friends who assisted in paying their respects. He leaves to mourn his parents four sisters and one brother on the Island and another brother Rev. J. W. Wadman in Japan. Whose grief at the loss of their noble, manly son and brother can never be blotted out."
