FOR THE WOMAN READER

SEVEN AGES All the world's a stage, And all the men and women merely players; They have their exits and their entrances; And one man in his time plays many parts, His acts being seven ages. —Shakespeare

PROSPERITY Oh, be humble, my mother in your prosperity! Be gentle with those who are less lucky, if not more deserving. Think what right have you to be scornful, whose virtue is a deficiency of temptation... whose prosperity... a satire? —Thackeray

Why is a crying baby in church like a good resolution?—Because the sooner it is carried out the better.

When is a candle angry?—When it is put out.

BRIEFS Follow up advantages.—Napoleon. The use of character is to be a shield against calumny.—Burke. Each one sees what he carries in his heart.—Goethe. You will find poetry nowhere, unless you bring some with you.—Joubert.

When a man seeks your advice, he generally wants your praise.—Chesterfield.

The best thing one can do is to cultivate one's own garden.—Voltaire.

He who has most of heart knows most of sorrow.—Bacon. Roses have thorns and silver fountains mud.—Shakespeare.

GIFTS You never know what child in rags and pitiful squalor that meets you in the street may have in him the germ of gifts that might add new treasures to the storehouse of beautiful things or noble acts.—John Morley.

AN X-RAY SCOPE These are the instructions given by a reader of this page to make an "X-ray scope," that will be appreciated by all boys readers who are keen on improvising toys of their own. All you require for constructing the "scope" are a small piece of cardboard about the size of a postcard, and a small white feather from a duck or fowl. Fold the cardboard lengthwise, and about an inch from one end pierce a hole about one-eighth of an inch in diameter through both pieces of card. Fix the feather between the bent card so that it is visible through the two holes, and gum up the folded card while in this position. If you hold this up before a strong artificial light, pass your finger between the card and the light, and look through the holes you will be surprised to see the shadow of the bones.

THE BAMBOO IN A TEAPOT

A curious little story was told by Mr. P. D. Williams in opening a flower show at Falmouth, England. One day a lady was looking round a curiosity shop in Falmouth and espied a pretty teapot, which she bought. She discovered some seeds inside it, and planted them, as Jack planted the magic beans. If they did not spring up to the clouds in an hour they certainly provided the planter with a great surprise, for one of them grew into a most beautiful bamboo.

The teapot must have been brought to England by some sailor, but we shall never know why he also brought bamboo seeds. Perhaps he had been told they were good for toothache or kept off the Evil. At any rate, many people who have enjoyed the beauty of the fine foreign tree are grateful to him.

The quiet man had listened with great patience, but at last the worm turned.

"I do not doubt anything you say," he said, "but you haven't got all the big things in America. In our works we have just completed an engine. What the weight of the flywheel is I won't say, but the hole for the shaft weighs two and a half tons!"

Pure glycerines will remove most stains from materials. Apply to the affected parts with a pad of soft cloth, leave for a few minutes, then wash the article or garment in the usual way. If water is too hard for washing delicate fabrics, add a few drops of glycerine. This also helps to remove dirt.

When washing valuable china or glassware, place Turkish towel at the bottom of the bowl, draping the edges over the sides. This lessens the risk of chipping.

Apply powdered starch to fruit stains on linen. Allow to remain until the discoloration has been absorbed by the starch; then brush off and wash in the usual way.

Chamois leather gloves, if very soiled, will wash more easily if a few drops of salad oil are added to the suds. This also helps to keep the gloves soft.

Sheets and towels which are too worn to be mended and further make excellent cloths for removing cream and make-up. They are also useful for protecting the hair while the face is being cleaned.

SUNBURN?

End pain instantly as Beach Hospitals do

In his 28 years of service, John McMonigle—head of Cony Island's 85 Life-guard—has tested sunburn remedies by the dozen. "But we haven't found one yet to compare with Noxzema," he declares, "for relieving sunburn instantly and healing quickly."

Other big beaches say the very same. They, too, have adopted Noxzema as official sunburn remedy after testing it on their worst cases. If you are sunburned and want relief, get Noxzema—end pain instantly. Greaseless—won't soil clothing or bedclothes. At all drug and department stores. Get a jar today.

THE COOK'S CORNER

Butterscotch Pudding

4 tablespoons butter 3/4 tablespoons cornstarch 1 cup brown sugar 2 1/2 cups milk 1 egg Or 2 egg yolks 1/2 teaspoon salt 1 1/2 tablespoons caramel Melt butter and add cornstarch. Combine well. Add sugar then the scalded milk, and cook over hot water, and stir constantly until thick. Cook 45 minutes; stir every 10 minutes. Add well beaten egg, caramel and salt. Cook five minutes longer, pour into serving dish and serve with cream and sugar.

Butterscotch

2 cups corn syrup 2 cups granulated sugar 4 tablespoons butter 2 tablespoons cream or top milk 1-3 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon vanilla Combine syrup, sugar, butter and cream and boil, stirring frequently until a little of the mixture dropped in cold water becomes brittle (258 degrees F). Add vanilla and salt, pour into shallow oiled pan, and cut in squares while still warm.

Butterscotch Sauce

1 cup corn syrup 1/2 cup granulated sugar 1 tablespoon top milk 1 tablespoon butter 1/2 teaspoon vanilla Few grains salt Combine all ingredients except vanilla, and boil until it forms a short thread (238 degrees F), then add 2 tablespoons boiling water and the vanilla. Use hot or cold.

BLESSING

Our blessings do not come along the narrow highway of our poor understanding; the children taken up into the Stranger's arms did not understand that that Stranger was the Saviour, and that that Saviour was God.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

Advises Against Marrying Man Out Of Gratitude—Would Be Desperately Unhappy If Fiancee Broke Engagement, Married Another.

Dear Miss Dix—The girl I am engaged to has incipient T. B., and the doctor has ordered her to the west for a year to save her. She hasn't the money to go, neither have I to give her. Another man has offered to send her and pay all of her expenses. He wants to marry her. He doesn't ask her to love him. All he asks is that she be loyal. She has asked me to release her from her promise so she can marry this man in return for his saving her life. She thinks she can find contentment, but no happiness.—Is there any way out for us? Undecided.

Answer: I think the girl would make her sacrifice in vain if she married a man she didn't love while she still loves you in order to get the money to go West, because one of the factors in the curing of any disease is peace of mind and happiness, and certainly any woman would be in a most upset mental state and most depressed if she was battling with the blighted love affair and trying to school her heart to forget one man and turn toward another because it was her duty.

Any way, most doctors now do not put much stress in climate in T. B. cases. They say that any fairly good climate will do, provided the patient lives in the open air, keeps quiet and has the proper nourishing diet, and that it is better for those afflicted with this malady to be at home with friends and family and be happy and satisfied than it is for them to be in a better climate where they are homesick and lonely.

A woman who is heart whole and fancy free may take a chance on marrying a man out of gratitude and for whom she has no affection, but the woman who is in love with some other man is bound to be desperate unhappy herself and make the man she marries miserable. It is always a disastrous thing to do for all concerned. Dorothy Dix.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a widow very much in love with a man. Do you think if it is my fate I will get him or had I better go after him? Mrs. X.

Answer: We make our own luck. Heaven helps those who help themselves to a husband. Go after your man if you want him. Dorothy Dix.

LOVELY HANDS GO WITH DAINY SUMMER FROCKS

Don't neglect your hands this summer! Give them as much, if not more, attention than you did in the winter when you were in constant dread of their becoming red and chapped.

Hands that are rough, too tanned or calloused from golf clubs, look pretty incongruous with delicate filmy afternoon and evening frocks for summer. Do something daily to keep yours in excellent condition.

Housework stains fingers. Why not keep a piece of pumice and a half lemon near your kitchen sink? When you have finished washing the dishes use a little pumice on the tips of your fingers and some lemon on your hands. A hand lotion will also help keep them looking nice. You'll be surprised at the wonders these two simple treatments will create.

Don't let your hands get brownier than the rest of you. Hands have a tendency to become more tanned than your arms, face and shoulders. They are exposed often when the rest of your body is covered. You should wear gloves when you play golf or work in your garden. And apply a bleaching lotion going round and round in a circle, Dennis thought savagely when they were back again in Barbara's flat and she was telling him it was time to go. He looked at her as she took off her wrap, and suddenly he said, "Are you ever going to choose between us all, Barbara?"

"She turned. "What do you mean?" He laughed unhappily. "Well—there is Barnet and your husband and myself—we all want you." The delicate colour tinged the whiteness of her face. "But I only want one of you, Dennis. You know which one."

"He answered doggedly that she could have him if she wished. "You have bewitched me, Barbara. I seem to be nothing but desire for you. I can't—God forgive me stay. Barbara. Something seems to want close to her and looked down at her with passionate eyes. "Let me stay, Barbara. Something seems to tell me that if you send me away tonight I shall never come back. Oh, my dear—don't you love me well enough?—If I'm willing to throw everything away for you—"

"But—are you willing?" she whispered. "Isn't it only just for tonight, because we are alone? And tomorrow—"

"Tomorrow may never come." She turned away, and for a moment there was a breathless silence. Why did she hesitate? Barbara asked herself desperately. She was not generally scrupulous; as a rule she took what she wanted of life and let to-morrow take care of itself, but now, when Dennis would have touched her, she gently repulsed him.

"Wait—let me think." He moved away from her impatiently and began pacing the room. Barbara stood very still, looking

GARDENING

Garden makers who are away much of the summer but want flowers for autumn blooming will like the Santa Barbara poppy with the difficult botanical name Hunnemannia fumarifolia. The blooms much resemble those of the common California poppy except that they are larger and heavier in texture. Moreover, they have long stems, which fact makes them particularly good for house decoration. They are rather slow to start, however, and the seeds should be soaked before they are planted. One advantage this western poppy has is its ability to endure hot dry weather. It will thrive under conditions which would kill many annuals, and that is also a good reason for having it in a garden which cannot be given very much attention during summer months. The yellow evening primrose, Afterglow, may well be used as a companion because it also thrives without a great amount of water. The blossoms are yellow, set off with a red calyx.

THE IDEAL TREE

In selecting a tree for planting the ideal tree is one that has a straight whip-stem or fishing pole trunk and leader, and ranges from 1-2 to 2 inches at the butt. If the trees are to be obtained from wooded lands, those growing in open places rather than those in the interior of woods should be selected. Such trees are not only more symmetrical in crown but, having grown more or less in the open, are better able to withstand the exposure they must endure when set out as shade or ornamental trees. The trunks of young trees which have been much shaded are frequently subject to sun-scald when planted in the open.

FLOWER VASE HYGIENE

Expert gardening knowledge is widespread, but how many people know the varying treatment needed by different cut flowers if they are to last and look their best? Enlightenment is on the way. "My florist showed me (writes the London correspondent of the Yorkshire Post) an admirable leaflet, copies of which are to be sent to florists.

Save the Rootlets

In taking up a tree, do not partially dig it up and then drag it free of the soil, thereby sacrificing many of the feeding rootlets. It is important to retain not only the thicker roots but also the smaller fibrous roots. Start about 18 inches or more away from the trunk and pushing the spade straight down,

VACATIONS and HEALTH

By Dr. ERNEST H. LINES Business Authority and Chief Medical Director New York Life Insurance Company

PLANNING YOUR VACATION

Vacations and holidays are magic words that conjure up in our minds all the pleasures of travel and change, all the excitements of new places and strange faces, and all the rest and relaxation that come from temporary release from the drudgery and cares that are the lot of all of us in one way or another.

But they should also be planned with an eye towards the fact that they are intended to build us up for the next year's work. Too often people work so hard having a good time that they come home all played-out, needing the rest they should have had on their vacation.

Even worse is the idea that we must forget everything but fun and pleasure. Of course banishing business worries and spending your vacation in the proper mental attitude to getting the most out of your holidays. But it is also wise to use a little forethought to prevent the accidents and illnesses that can so easily spoil a vacation and turn a good time into a tragedy.

Change and Moderation

In planning your vacation, remember that in many respects "a change is as good as a rest." Don't spend your holidays like the sailor who went boating, or the mail-carrier who took a long walk. If possible, do just the opposite from your usual round of activities.

For example, if your occupation is a sedentary one demanding great expenditure of mental energy, plan a vacation of mild physical activity free from all strain. Golf, tennis, swimming, baseball, hiking, and similar physical pursuits in moderation are suggested. Don't begin too vigorously. Exercise should leave a feeling of pleasant fatigue, rather than exhaustion, which is dangerous to health.

Or, if you do physical work the year round, then seek a holiday of relaxation, and perhaps study and read a bit to exercise the mental processes. Some men enjoy the quiet out a circle completely around the tree. Then gradually work under the root system until the tree is freed and can be lifted out with the ball of earth attached. Do not remove this ball of earth unless the conditions are such that it cannot be retained on the roots. Wrap the roots and ball in old canvas or some other material, taking care that the roots are protected from being dried or exposed to the air. Carelessness in this regard is responsible for many failures in transplanting.

The Other Man

By RUBY M. AYRES

"If I were an honest man I should go to Pauline and tell her the truth. It would not hurt her as much as it will if some day she finds out that I love you and that I think of you every moment and want you—"

"It's because you are an honest man that you can't tell her," Barbara said, and then, as she did not answer, she took up her cloak and held it to him.

"Let us go, Dennis—Dr. Stornaway will be waiting." He took the cloak from her, but as he laid it over her shoulders he suddenly enfolded her with his arms, pressing her head back against his breast. "Barbara—kiss me—"

Her lips moved to say no, but Dennis silenced the word with his own, and so for a long time they stood while Barbara gave herself up wholly to the intoxication of the moment.

FOURTEENTH INSTALLMENT

It was a happy evening, and yet—nothing was settled. It was like
