The New Issue of the Island Telephone Directory
Is Now Being Prepared

A new issue of the Island Telephone Directory is scheduled for publication on the 15th of October. Listings will be closed on August 22nd.

Persons who intend to become Telephone subscribers at this time, and subscribers who wish changes to be made in their listings, are urged to send their requests to the nearest Business Office at once, and in any event, not later than September 8th.

The Telephone Directory . . . because of the extensive field which it covers and the frequency of its use by the public . . . has long been recognized as an ideal medium for advertising. Limited space in the new Directory is now available for this purpose.

Please note carefully the closing date.

What the Gray
House Hid
The Mystery of a Haunted Mansion
by Woodham Martyn

A shadow came out of nothingness, and Leslie looked up into the bland face of Mr. Appleton. Since young Barron had not shared the Hanby's confidences, he assumed that their former guest was still in good odor, a friend of the family, and now most certainly a friend in need.

Quickly Leslie explained what had happened. He did not want the little plump man to be frightened. At the moment, he regarded himself in rather a heroic light and Mr. Appleton warmly commended his courage.

"Ah, youth, youth!" apostrophized the little man, whose years had long bereft him of it. "Magnificent." He stooped down almost timidly. "We must not alarm our good hostess," he said. "Let us carry him to the garage and awake a chauffeur. I will take the ruffian's feet. You, as the stronger take his head. I will satisfy myself that he has no weapon concealed."

From the stranger's pocket Mr. Appleton drew a short, heavy bullet of wood. He balanced it in hand, frowning.

"I think this is what is termed a life preserver. It stamps its owner as a criminal by profession. You will probably be entitled to a reward, Mr. Barron. Now, if you will kindly take your end, we will remove him."

Obediently young Barron put his arms under the shoulders of the wild faun. When Appleton remained standing, Leslie looked up staring down at him, the little man might have been his uncle Russell. Too late, Leslie saw his danger. The life preserver caught him squarely on the head, and he pitched forward over the other unconscious man.

Mr. Appleton smiled happily. "Very neat!" he murmured. "For a first attempt, very neat indeed—oh, dear, me, yes!"

Mr. Appleton gave a skillful imitation of the cry of an owl. From afar came the call of another night-flying bird. The owl that was Mr. Appleton hooted again. Gradually the other cry came nearer. Presently there was a rustling in the thicket, and a bullet head was thrust through.

"Luigi?" called Mr. Appleton softly. "Come at once!"

The man who wriggled out of the bushes was short, but of tremendous breath. His exclamations and gestures when he saw what seemed to be a pair of dead men were stayed at a word from the other.

"Carry Jim below, and come back for this."

Luigi shouldered the two hundred and twenty pounds that was Jim with ease. He had been gone no more than five minutes when he returned and picked up the lighter man.

The bird sanctuary received Leslie Barron, heir to a great fortune Luigi Bartoli, in whom the police were interested, and last of all, Mr. Appleton, who breathed more easily as a heavy shower began. It would smooth out the trampled earth and make tracking impossible.

CHAPTER VII

When Leslie Barron came again to consciousness, he thought he was in a prison cell. It was a small stone room, electrically lighted. He had placed on an iron cot. A bandage was about his head and his crumpled shirt front was blood-stained. Except for bruises and a throbbing head however, he found that he was unharmed.

He reconstructed what had happened since he went in search of the wild faun, and was forced to admit that the event which stood out most vividly was the inexplicable knavery of Frederick Appleton. The little man had always been so courteous, so respectful, so flattering. He had expressed his regard for the Barron family repeatedly. He had once embarrassed Leslie by comparing his head with that of the Hermes of Praxiteles; and then, incontinently he had brought a loaded bludgeon down upon it with such force that death had not been very far away. What was the wild faun to Mr. Appleton, that he had sprung thus amazingly to avenge the unknown intruder?

Leslie rose from his cot and walked to the door. It was of heavy wood, metal covered. He could not escape. No one answered his shouts. Leslie sat down again on the bed.

In his career as a somewhat reckless driver, he had more than once had to wait in a jail cell until he paid his fine. In every instance there had been a penetrating and unpleasant odor about these places. This cell had no such effluvium; nor, as he examined it more closely, had it the appearance of the regular jail. Yet it was plain that it had been constructed for no other purpose than to imprison.

Leslie called to mind his talks with junior as to the threatened dangers surrounding the Gray house. In the beginning they had thrilled him; but then, as pleasant day succeeded pleasant day, junior and he began to feel annoyed that

Put Down the Telescope
Here's a Chart to the Port of Happiness

SURELY El Dorado contained no treasures as priceless as the treasures of human Success and Happiness. No wonder so many of us can be likened to a man with telescope to eye . . . scanning the horizon for the Port of the Future where lies these treasures for us.

But put down the telescope. There is a chart that points the way to your future. It is the chart of your daily menu.

The foods on your table play a tremendously important part in moulding your future. Good health is one of the greatest aids to success and happiness. And eating food which gives your body the varied nourishment it needs every day is the important secret in gaining good health.

Here's a wonderful food of this kind for breakfast . . . Grape-Nuts. Its golden, nut-like kernels flake into back at you from their bowl of rich milk or cream.

Millions love Grape-Nuts famous flavour. Millions attest to the healthfulness captured by the secret process by which Grape-Nuts is made. And added to all this is a delightful crispness that tempts you to chew—for good teeth and digestion.

Chart your course to brighter days with Grape-Nuts for breakfast beginning tomorrow. Your grocer has it. 19 servings to a package. Grape-Nuts is made in Canada from Canadian wheat.
