

GOOD turpentine for a GOOD paint job!

NEWPORT pure Turpentine

- Crystal-clear, odorless.
- High bonding and penetrating quality.
- Makes paint spread evenly.
- Scientifically distilled, right from the heart of the pine wood.
- 16 and 32-ounce bottles, 128-ounce can, 46-imperial-gallon drums.

Coastal Asphalt Products Ltd.

The tiniest man in the world, Francesco Rizzi, who is just a shade over three feet tall, and who weighs not more than an oversized kewpie doll, arrived aboard the Polish liner Sobieski at New York recently.

Brilliant Performance SOLEX INCANDESCENT and FLUORESCENT

G. F. Hutcheson & Son OPTOMETRISTS

"Specialists in the fitting of glasses for the correction of ocular defects."

53 Grafton Street

BINGO Holy Redeemer Hall TONIGHT 8.30

The prizes are the same as those prevailing at other Bingos in the city

Freezout For Charitable Purposes

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

(By Thornton W. Burgess)

TURN AND TURN ABOUT

When two can split the work of one in fairness see that it is done. —Old Mother Nature.

Harrier the Marsh Hawk sat on a fence post. It was more by way of a change than because he was tired. He isn't as fond of sitting around as some of his family.

During the day he spends most of his time in the air for he flies so easily that he seldom knows what it is to be really tired. He was feeling in good spirits for he had dined well even though he had shared his morning catch with Mrs. Harrier as presently he would share the duty of keeping four precious eggs warm in their nest on the ground.

Reddy Fox came along and stopped to pass the time of day "That is a smart trick you and Mrs. Harrier do," said Reddy, sitting down at the foot of the post for a neighborly chat.

"What trick?" Harrier wanted to know. "Feeding Mrs. Harrier in the air, I saw you do it this morning. I saw you drop something and Mrs. Harrier turn almost upside down in the air and catch it," said Reddy.

"It was a Frog from the Smiling Pool. We like a change from Mice once in a while," said Harrier. "Doesn't she ever miss one that you drop?" asked Reddy.

"Once in a while," replied the trim-looking Hawk. "But we usually are so high that if she does it right she always catches it. She's clever at that."

"Both of you are clever if you ask me," said Reddy. "Do you do all the hunting for both?" Then Reddy grinned and added, "That is a foolish question for I often see her hunting over the Green Meadows. But when I see her hunting I never see you. I have heard that you and she takes turns on the nest, when there are eggs and that when these hatch both of you feed the babies. Is it so?"

"Of course," replied Harrier as if he thought that a foolish question. Home duties and family cares should be shared. While I hunt Mrs. Harrier sits on the eggs. I do that while she hunts. We take turns and turn about. Right now it is almost my turn to go on the nest."

"Does she feed you the way I saw you feed her?" Reddy asked slyly. "She does—not. Why should she?" retorted Harrier sharply.

Reddy chuckled. "You said you take turns," said he. "So we do in things that have to be done. I don't want her feeding me. She would if there was need. I don't have to feed her, but I like to," explained the trim Hawk.

Reddy nodded his agreement, grinning more broadly than ever. "I know all about it. I know just how you feel. I feel the same about Mrs. Reddy. I take things home to her so she doesn't have to leave the cubs too much while they are very small. It's part of having a home," he explained.

He didn't say that he often went hungry while he made sure that Mrs. Reddy and the babies had enough. There is no better mate and father among the wild folk than Reddy Fox.

"You look as if you are living well. I've never seen you look so well at this season of the year," said Harrier.

"Why shouldn't I look well?"

"Doesn't she ever miss one that you drop?" asked Reddy

I've never known a time when there were so many Mice to be had for the catching, and the catching so easy," replied Reddy. "That's what I said to Mrs. Harrier," declared Harrier. "If you and I and some others didn't keep their numbers down I don't know what would happen."

"I do. I know just what would happen," retorted Reddy. "By next fall there wouldn't be much grass left. Then the Mice would starve and the rest of us would starve. By catching all we need we are not only doing a good thing for ourselves and our children, but we are doing a good thing for other folks who eat grass and other things that grow. We are helping to keep them from starving next winter. We are doing a good thing for the Mice that will be left when winter comes, for there will still be enough food for them. We didn't catch a lot of them this summer there would be so little food left for so many eaters that most of them would starve to death. We are really doing them a kindness, but they don't know it," Reddy was right.

The next story: "Hear Trouble."

Contract Bridge

By Josephine Culbertson

A TRICKY PROBLEM

In todays deal a defender had to solve a tricky end position to defeat the redoubled contract.

South, dealer Both sides vulnerable

♠ 10 9 5 7	♥ Q 7 6 2	♦ J 5 4	♣ 6
♠ Q 6 4	♥ A K Q	♦ 9 8 3 2	♣ 7 5
♠ N	♥ W	♦ E	♣ S
♠ K 8 3	♥ A 8 5 4	♦ 10 7	♣ J 10 9 3
♠ A 7	♥ K J 10 3	♦ 6	♣ A K Q 5 4 1

The bidding

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♥	3♣	3♥	Pass
4♥	Pass	Pass	Double
Redbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the diamond king and continued with the queen. Declarer ruffed the second round and laid down the pack of hearts. East correctly held up with his ace and since West's nine, and since East's double had strongly indicated a 4-1 trump break in the first place, South stopped leading trumps in order to run the club suit.

The three top clubs were cashed dummy discarding a diamond and a spade, and a low club was ruffed with the heart six. Then the spade Jack was led from dummy. East and South played low, and West won. A spade return, with East ducking, would have made matters simple for the defense, but West chose to return a diamond.

This lead was ruffed in dummy with the seven of hearts—and East had to be very careful at this point! If he had discarded a spade, South would have discarded a club, then led to the spade ace and ruffed his last club with the heart queen. Nor would it have been any more effective for East to ruff high, with the trump ace. The winning play, which he made was to over-ruff the heart seven with the eight. Then, when South in turn over-ruffed East and trumped a club with the heart queen, East had to duck—not over-ruff! South now could not avoid giving East two trump tricks, for a one-trick penalty.

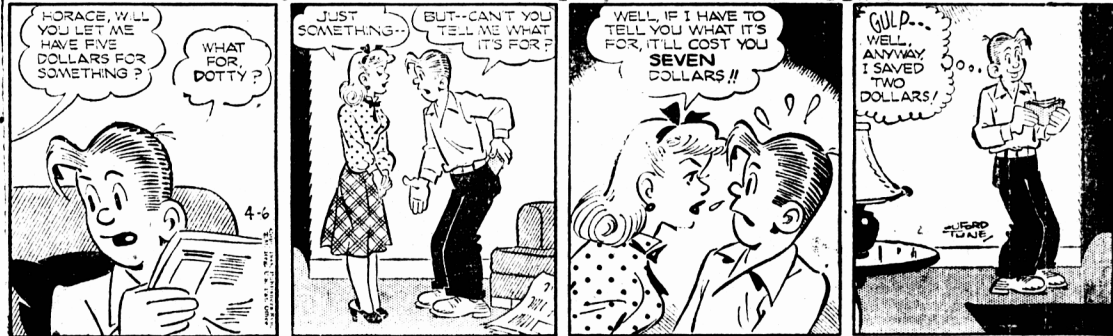

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTFD

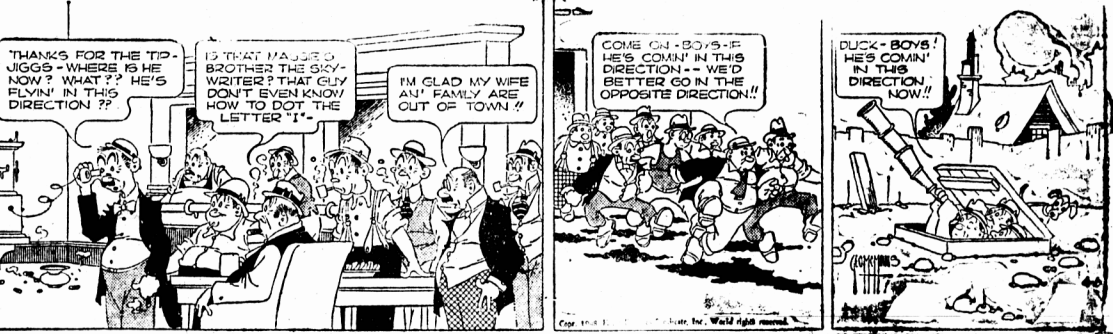

JOE PALOOKA

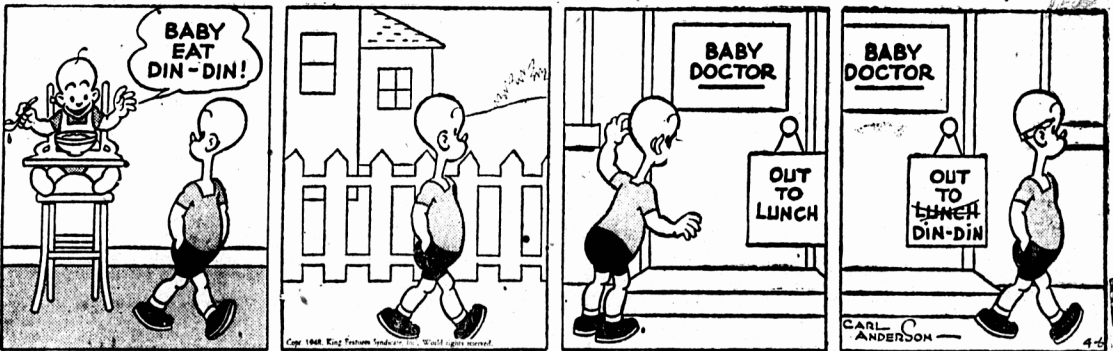

DOTTY DRIPPLE

BRINGING UP FATHER

HENRY

TIPPY AND "CAP" STUBBS

TILLIE THE TOILER

PENNY

By Fagaly and Shorten

RIP KIRBY

By Alex Raymond

By Ham Fittler

By Buford

By George McManis

By Carl Anderson

By Ewings

By Webster

By Harry Hoehnigen