how he finally got to the woods I don't know, but it must have been in an interval between the attacks.

(A London dispatch from Moscow said that for the second successive day the Russian war communiqué made no claims of gains in Finland and reported only minor fighting.)
The aerial attack on the He's hospital zone started at 11:58 a.m. (5:58 a.m. AST), following earlier raids on towns within a 25-mile radius of the capital.
Pinnish officials said that not all the bombs dropped exploded, but the hospital dormitory, a five-story brick structure, suffered a direct hit. The bomb riddled through the two upper floors and tearing out the front windows was broken over an area of a square mile.
Most of the hospital patients had been removed but 10 were too ill to leave their beds. One of these was seriously injured.

Funeral Of Graf Spee Captain

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 21—(AP)—Seamen of the sunken pocket battleship Graf Spee paid a hero's tribute to Capt. Hans Langsdorff today as their first commander was buried in the German cemetery here with full naval honors.

So great was the crush of a crowd, estimated by officials at 100,000, that the burial was delayed a full hour.

Three hundred crewmen from the German vessel formed a guard of honor as the funeral procession left the naval arsenal where Langsdorff had committed suicide yesterday and marched solemnly through crowd-lined streets to the cemetery.

"The German sailors stood at attention as a battalion of Argentine sailors fired a volley over the grave.

Covering the coffin was the German flag which once waved proudly over the Graf Spee, destroyed by Adolf Hitler's orders while British cruisers waited outside Montevideo to challenge the battle-scarred warship.

Approximately 700 members of the Graf Spee crew, denied permission by Argentine authorities, to visit the cemetery, previously had paid their last respects to their commander in ceremonies in the arsenal, from which outsiders were excluded.

Hundreds of members of the German colony, many giving the Nazi salute, crowded the cemetery.

The secret of Capt. Langsdorff's last thoughts before he died by his own hand went to the grave with him. An Argentine naval commission investigating his death, recommended that the farewell letter he wrote to the German embassy be impounded and kept from the public.

Shortly after the death an application for a widow's pension signed "Mary Agnes Martin" was received at Ottawa, he said, and the accused had been receiving $40 a month for several years and later $60 a month until the complaint was preferred two weeks ago.

Hitler-Stalin Accord

No Surprise To French Government

PARIS, Dec. 21—The French Government disclosed today that France was aware of Adolf Hitler's attempt to conclude an alliance with Soviet Russia more than eight months before the startling Hitler-Stalin accord was broadcast to a surprised world last August.

The disclosure was contained in a Government "yellow book" outlining step by step France's part in the fruitless diplomatic struggle to prevent Germany from plunging the world anew into war.

Great Britain's part has already been told in the now-famous blue book published last autumn, containing in particular Sir Neville Henderson's reports of his various conversations with German leaders during the days that preceded the British Ambassadors' departure from the Reich.

Diplomatic Drama

Like its French counterpart the French "yellow book" is filled with diplomatic drama—it contains an account of the tragic Berlin "conference" at which Adolf Hitler browbeat President Emil Hacha of dismembered Czechoslovakia and of the desperate 11th-hour effort to stave off the war by the Italian Foreign Minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Ciano's efforts, like those of French and British statesmen, collapsed because Hitler was determined to restore Danzig and the Polish Corridor to the Reich and would not swerve from this demand even though he was warned that carrying it out would mean war, the yellow book revealed.

The document is divided into six parts. The first deals with the Munich agreement partitioning Czechoslovakia, the second with the Franco-German 1938, and the third with the absorption of Czechoslovakia last March by the Reich.

The fourth part tells of the beginning of the Polish-German crisis, the fifth recounts subsequent developments in Danzig, and the last part traces the international crisis during the two weeks immediately preceding the German declaration of war on Germany, Sept. 3.

huling their single motors over few hours due to their tremendous horsepower.

It has been estimated that Germany's annual wartime requirements of gasoline are between 15,000 and 20,000,000 short tons.

Except for what she can smuggle through the Allied naval blockade, Germany is shut off from all world markets with the exception of Rumania and Soviet Russia.

It is considered extremely doubtful that Germany is getting much gasoline from Russia.

In 1938 the Soviets had less than 1,000,000 tons for export.

This figure probably is reduced now because of war with Finland, even taking into consideration the former Polish wells seized by Russia.

There is no reason to believe, Germany is getting any more gasoline from Rumania than before the war. It cannot be shipped by sea and transportation up the Danube or by rail is complicated by shortage of barges and tank cars.

Another factor is Germany's difficulty in finding free currency. Finally it should be considered Rumanian oil cannot be refined into high octane gasoline essential for aviation purposes.

Even if Rumania placed all her production at Germany's disposal it would not meet German requirements.

(After many delays a new German-Rumanian trade agreement was signed at Bucharest tonight, doubling Germany's share of Rumanian oil exports.)

Ambitious Plan

It is known that Germany has an ambitious plan to obtain substitutes on a home production basis. The chief process is hydro-generation to extract synthetic gasoline from coal.

It is estimated that this process will produce 1,500,000 tons this year but the full scheme will not be in operation until 1941. This process is said to be costly and it means a great use of manpower in digging coal.

It has been claimed the gasoline situation is the gravest of German problems. The Nazis used much of their gasoline reserve when they overran Poland and it is quite clear they have been unable to replenish to any appreciable extent.

Parliamentarian Served Under 12 Prime Ministers

LONDON, Dec. 21—(P)—Lord Shuttleworth, a member of parliament under 12 prime ministers, died Wednesday, two days after his 85th birthday.

He became a member of parliament 70 years ago, held his first ministerial post 53 years ago and was Privy Councillor for half a century.

He was a friend of Prime Minister William E. Gladstone and left the House of Commons when he received a barony in the promotion honors of 1897.

He was Under-Secretary of the Interior and subsequently Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in 1886.

His grandson, Richard Ughtred Kay-Shuttleworth, succeeds to the title.

Indian Slang Confounds Whites

MONTREAL, Dec. 21—(CP)—A white man made a funny impression on the Indian language. The redman still says "yeah" when he means "no" and pronounces something like "maw" to signify "yes." The court learned to its confusion today.

The apparent contrariness crept up during a hearing of an appeal of Mayor Joseph Delisle of the Coughnawaga reservation near here against a conviction on a charge of giving "firewater" to Indians.

Witness after witness seemed to be giving an opposite answer to the interpreter's version and finally defence counsel James Crankshaw complained. Mr. Justice Wilfred Lazure also admitted his confusion and called for an explanation.

It was simple, the interpreter said, and all a result of the Indian having only 16 letters in his alphabet. His word for "no" is "hah" pronounced "yeah" while his affirmative "yes" comes out "maw."

Remainder of the evidence in Delisle's appeal against a fine of $25 and costs for allegedly serving liquor to Indians was heard before an enlightened court and a decision rendered.

The judge said "no"—pronounced "maw" and meaning "no"—to the appeal, knocked off the costs and doubled the fine to $50.

Widow Sent To Prison

MONTREAL, Dec. 21—(CP)—Mrs. Margaret Kuhn, 55-year-old widow, was sentenced today to six months in prison for obtaining $14,836 by false pretences from the department of pensions and national health during the past 20 years.

According to prosecuting counsel, the woman obtained the money in the name of her dead sister, Mary Agnes Martin whose husband, Alfred George Spriggs was killed in action in 1918. Mrs. Spriggs died two weeks after her husband, counsel told the court.

Shortly after the death an application for a widow's pension signed "Mary Agnes Martin" was received at Ottawa, he said, and the accused had been receiving $40 a month for several years and later $60 a month until the complaint was preferred two weeks ago.
