

DAILY SELECTIONS FOR GUARDIAN READERS

Furnished by W. S. Louson

THE LAST DAY.

When the last hour of youth is gone, with its opportunities for preparation neglected and unimproved, there is nothing that can be done to repair the harm. "Some things God gives often. The seasons return again and again, and the flowers change with the months; but youth comes twice to none." Thus each period of life has its own closing, its last hour, in which work is ended, whether well done or neglected.

Indeed, we may say the same of each day; its end is the closing of a definite season through which we can never pass again. We may think of each single day as a miniature life. It comes to us new; it goes from us finished. There are three hundred and sixty-five days in a year.

The only way to have a well-finished year is to finish the tasks and duties of each day as it passes. A married or a lost day anywhere along the years may lead to loss or even sore misfortune afterward.—J. R. Miller.

Days and moments quickly flying, Blend the living with the dead; Soon will you and I be lying Each within our narrow bed.

Soon our souls to God who gave them Will have sped their rapid flight; Able now by grace to save them, Oh, that while we can we might!

PRICE OF PAPER.

A friend of The Guardian in Marshall has handed us part of a copy of the American Phrenological Journal of December 1862. Each page contains but three columns nine inches long. The following extract from the Journal will give an idea of one of the troubles of publishers at that time:

A new fiber wanted; in the absence of cotton and rags, out of which our printing and writing papers have been made, prices have increased enormously. Indeed, paper mills and newspapers are stopping for the want of materials. Booksellers are putting up prices to correspond with the cost of paper, and we are in a fair way to enjoy a paper famine, as factory operatives do the cotton famine. The question arises, What is to be done? We can make clothes out of wool, but not paper.

Where are our inventors? They promised us paper to be made from basswood, hemp, flax, straw, and other materials. Old paper-makers insist that cotton can be grown cheapest, and makes the best paper. They are averse to "new-fangled notions," and will wake up some day and find themselves distanced away back "behind the light-house." A new fiber will be found, cotton or no cotton. We must, we will have paper. Children must be educated. Books are a prime necessity in a civilized country. So are newspapers, magazines, and especially the Phrenological Journal.

Boys, Here's What You Want --- Just the Things You Need While You're Under Canvas

Away back in the early spring, boys, I had your needs in view—knew just what you'd require—the grade you preferred and the price you wanted to pay—and I know I've just the things you want here. I've spent some time under canvas myself and so can meet you half way with suggestions—and good goods at bargain prices.

Note the suit snap it's a dandy—then the shirt special is extra good, while the officers' gloves and uniforms and officers' and men's hats are exclusive.

Now all you recruits what's drafted today You shut up your rag-box and 'ark to my lay, An' I'll sing you a soldier as far as I may, A soldier what's fit for a soldier. Fit, fit, fit for a soldier, So-older of the (King) Kingling logical Journal. We can do without liquors, tea, coffee, tobacco, silks, satins, and fine laces, but we can not do without paper. Ladies, save the rags, save old newspapers, save everything to feed the paper mills. And you can sell for good prices. In Egypt the English are stripping the wrappers from the old mummies—two or three thousand years old—to get materials out of which to make paper. And we presume the London Times—that great English abolition journal, the paper which so ably advocates the cause of republican and democratic institutions—is printed on wicked! But our hope is in our inventors. Our countrymen can do something in this line, and we appeal to them. Cotton will come some time, but we can not wait the movements of politicians any longer. We want paper.

This isn't a sale—it's just a few bargains that stand wide open for the boys in red, blue and khaki. Come in—I want to see you.—H. H. Brown.

"What is the use of roasting in that heavy, uncomfortable underwear? All the best makes are ready for you here, and no store in Canada sells them cheaper than we. Special attention is directed to "Porosknit" Combinations. The acme of perfect summer comfort is found in combination—these are made with short sleeves and knee length drawers, and sell for $1.00. Moore & McLeod. 6-29M11.

"You can make a big saving in linens by visiting our midsummer sale of linens, towellings and the like. Just see the handsome cloths, with border all round, offered at heavy reductions on account of a small flaw in each. Moore & McLeod. 6-29M11 will soon be here and you will likely spend the day fishing. Are you sure your tackle is in good shape. We have every thing you need in this line and would be pleased to have you look it over. Our casting lines, flies, gut, hooks, etc., are all of the best quality. Liberal discounts given on rods and baskets—Our $1.00 split bamboo rods are the best we have ever offered at that price.

The First of July

2 Pointed Question

When Your Clothes line breaks and your wash falls in the MUD what do you say? To put it mildly it's unpleasant. It means extra labor, extra time, extra soap and coal house all messed up another day.

To avoid all such let us do your flat work. Your goods are carefully handled, cleaned, washed, nicely ironed promptly returned if intrusted to us. Telephone 151 and our team will call.

Clothing Sale

Our great clothing sale has been the chief topic of conversation for the past week. $6500.00 worth offered now for $4333.00.

P. E. Island's Greatest Clothing House

As we are the largest clothing dealers in this Province it always places us in a position to handle any quantity. None too large for us to handle. Quantities which small dealers here have to pass along to us.

For years past this store has been recognized as P. E. Island's greatest clothing house, which title we have won by being the largest dealers in men's and boys' clothing on this Island. This great clothing opportunity came to us, we now pass it along to you.

Where Practical Appearance Counts

In our clothing business we give you the benefit of our [20] years experience in the Custom Tailoring Business. It enables us to intelligently inspect every little detail of make, finish and value. It is sometimes really amusing to note what others call a clothing bargain. But we are charitable enough to believe that it erimates from a want of knowledge and not a desire to mislead.
