reconstruction of an empire."
Non-Intervention and the 27-nation Non-Intervention Committee were condemned by the white-haired Welsh Statesman.
He predicted a decisive battle was probably approaching in Spain and declared it "may decide the fate of Europe; it may decide the issue whether Europe is going to be controlled by democracy or dictatorship."
He complained that in the Far East as well as in Europe Britain's strategic position no longer is what it has been in the past.
Viscount Cranborne, foreign undersecretary, acted as Government spokesman.
He said the League of Nations is, and remains, the foundation stone of British foreign policy.
The great majority of the Non-Intervention powers desire continuation of the policy thus far maintained by the Committee, he continued.

British Legion Official To Visit Canada

Will Look Into Problems Of Men Who Served In Imperial Army.

A meeting of the Executive Council of the Provincial Council of the Canadian Legion, E. E. L., was held at the Legion Home last evening with Chairman Conrade MacDonald of Montague presiding, the President, Conrade Brewer Robinson and other officials also being present.
It was announced that an official of the British Legion would be in Canada in November to look into the problems of men who served with the Imperial Army. Any members of that force now residing in the Province, who have problems to be considered are requested to get in touch with the Secretary of the nearest Legion Branch, or with the Provincial Secretary, Mr. G. E. Sherren.

Letters were read from the Hon. Mr. Dunning and the Hon. Mr. A. E. McLean regarding the resolution passed at the provincial convention in regard to the enlistments from P. E. I. not being credited to the province. The letters stated that P. E. I. was not treated differently from the other Provinces, and that in all cases the names would be entered alphabetically showing also name and name of unit in the Book of Remembrance to be placed on the Altar in the Memorial Chamber in the Peace Tower at Ottawa.

Considerable business was transacted, and the hope was expressed that every school in the Province would purchase a wreath and Popples for the pupils. Not so much for the financial aid to the Legion, which will be gladly received and used for those in need, but also to impress the pupil with the remembrance of those who fell and of the sacrifices made that they might enjoy freedom.

After adjournment a visit was then paid to a very largely attended meeting of the Charlottetown Branch, at which five new members had been accepted into membership. President James Walker presided.
President Robinson then made a splendid address during which he stressed the high aims and objects of the Legion—one of them being the harmony and peace of the nations. The members of the Legion, which exist in all parts of the world where the Union Jack flies.

It was announced that at 9.30 on the evening of the 5th of November, His Excellency the Governor General and the Ministers of Pensions and National Defence would broadcast throughout Canada in the interests of the poppy campaign. The same evening His Honour Lieutenant Governor De Blois will also broadcast at an hour to be named later, as will also the Mayors of Summerside and Charlottetown on the Monday and Tuesday nights following.

It was also announced that tickets are now on sale for the picture "You're in the Army Now" which will be shown at the Prince Edward Theatre during Armistice week.

After adjournment refreshments were served which enabled all to get together.

CALLS FOR

"Use and abuse of that word has been made in the bleating sheepfolds of the so-called great democracies. But when we pronounce this word, we who have fought and are ready to fight again, it regains its profound, solemn and human meaning."
He described the Italians as a rejuvenated people with which it would be extremely dangerous for anyone to cross arms.
The banners of Fascism, Mussolini declared, "do not represent merely the banners of an idea, of a doctrine, of a revolution; they are the banners of a century, this century, the century of Fascism!"
Mussolini's reference to the Spanish civil war came as citations published in memory of 85 Italians killed in Spain disclosed details of widespread military operations there in which Italians participated in the highest ranks.
Mussolini will bestow medals of valor in their honor tomorrow on 1,000,000 men mobilize throughout Italy in tribute to all Italian volunteers who have fallen in Spain. The mobilization tomorrow will serve a second purpose of showing how quickly Italy can muster an army of citizen-soldiers.

Fascist commentators summed up Mussolini's announcement of his program for the 16th year of Fascism as:
1. Acceptance of Germany's colonial claims.
2. Recognition of the elementary rights and needs of nations, and revision, before it is too late, of the peace treaties.
3. Respect for Fascist Italy and the prominence of her empire, which Mussolini said was created "without touching a single corner of the empires of others."
4. A peace abroad that reflects the internal peace in Italy.
5. A fight to the end against Communism.

NOTED JURIST

Hon. D. A. MacDonald, LL. D., Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench, Manitoba, had passed away in Winnipeg yesterday morning.
He had been in failing health for some time.
His wife (nee Helen St. Luke Rogers) who died about a year ago, was a daughter of the late David Rogers of Summerside.
The late Hon. Mr. MacDonald is survived by one son and three daughters residing in the west and two sisters, Mrs. C. A. Hyndman, in Charlottetown, and Mrs. Ronald MacDonald in Darlington, Prince Edward Island.

Mr. Justice J. D. Hyndman of Ottawa and Charles A. Hyndman of Edmonton are nephews of the late Hon. Mr. MacDonald. The following biographical sketch is by the Canadian Press:
Lawyer, jurist and farmer, Daniel Alexander MacDonald became chief justice of the Court of King's Bench just 44 years after being admitted to the Manitoba bar in 1883. His kindly manner and solemn wit made him one of the most interesting personalities in Manitoba's judiciary.

He was born at Point Prim Aug. 17, 1868, son of Captain Alexander MacDonald, who lost his life a few years later when his ship foundered in a gale.
Educated in his native province, young MacDonald early in life decided to fit himself for a legal career. He studied law in Charlottetown and was admitted to the Prince Edward Island bar in 1883.

Almost at once he set out for the West, about which he had heard so much, and for a short period practised in Winnipeg. "It was a toss-up," he once said, "whether Winnipeg or Portage la Prairie, founded the firm of MacDonald and McPherson and remained there until his appointment to the Court of King's Bench brought him to Winnipeg in 1904."

On the death of Hon. T. G. Mathers in 1927 the government named Judge MacDonald his successor as chief justice of the Court of King's Bench. Soon after being appointed to this high office he was obliged to go to Rochester, Minn., to undergo two critical operations for a malady which had afflicted him for many years. He resumed his duties three months later.

In 1929 Chief Justice MacDonald was a member of the Royal Commission which investigated charges of campaign fund irregularities made against the government of Premier John Brecken by Lieutenant Col. Fawcett G. Taylor, then Conservative party leader. Serving with him on the commission were Mr. Justice A. K. Dwyer and Mr. Justice J. F. Kilgour. The charges concerned granting of power rights at Seven Sisters Falls, on the Winnipeg River, 70 miles north of Winnipeg, to the Winnipeg Electric Railway Company. The finding exonerated the government and dismissed all charges. During the course of the hearing the commissioner travelled to Los Angeles to examine a witness, A. W. McLinton, former president of the Winnipeg Electric Company.

Always deeply interested in agricultural problems, he operated a large farm in the Portage la Prairie district. He was a member of the Portage town council, served as Crown prosecutor, and was preparing for entry into the political field when first called to the bench.

In 1883 he was married to Marie Helen St. Luke Rogers, in Winnipeg. There were four children.
Chief Justice MacDonald was a member of the Church of England and of the Masonic Order.
Gentle and courteous, Mr. Justice MacDonald endeared himself particularly to young men trying to get a start in the legal profession. No matter how humble or inexperienced the novice, when he appeared before the court he was assured of an attentive and considerate hearing.

Speaking of interesting cases which had come before him, he mentioned particularly two linked together.
"Police found a valise at Portage la Prairie one day in the war years. It had been shipped from Edmonton and was filled with dynamite caps all ready to set off. Three men were later arrested. Two I sentenced to the penitentiary. The third I allowed him to go to bed. He was a member of the Patriarchal and his name was R. Holmes. I took pity on him and gave him only three years. The joke was on me for when his beard was shaved off he was a tougher looking customer than the others."

"But Holmes was later to save a life. A laborer named A. Spain at Stonewall, Man., murdered his farmer-employer and his wife and made off with $2,500. He was arrested and I sentenced him to life imprisonment. He went to Stony Mountain Penitentiary where Holmes was incarcerated.
"Later Spain organized a prison break and was beating a guard with a crow-bar when Holmes leaped to the rescue. He knocked Spain and aided guards in capturing him. He was later sentenced to life imprisonment for preventing the escape of other prisoners. Soon paroled, Holmes died of tuberculosis a few years later."

Chief Justice MacDonald was an enthusiastic golfer and curler up to a few years ago. He also liked to play billiards. "But I have had to drop these forms of recreation in recent years," he remarked. (He was a former student of Prince of Wales College. He received the degree of LL.D. from Manitoba University in 1922.)

FUNERAL OF MR. N. R. BECK YESTERDAY

The funeral of Mr. Nestor R. Beck, 59, who died unexpectedly Wednesday morning at his Little Sands home, was held yesterday afternoon. Services at his late residence and at the graveside in Murray River Cemetery were conducted by the Rev. Lawrence Ray, pastor of the Montague Church of Christ, assisted by the Rev. H. Mannigan, pastor of the Montague Baptist Church. The funeral was very largely attended. Pallbearers were Messrs. Artemus MacSwain, Neil MacSwain, John D. MacLean, Louis Herring, Daniel MacPherson and Edwin MacKenzie.

The death of the late Mr. Beck came as a great shock to his family and to a wide circle of friends. They good health apparently he was working about his farm as usual Wednesday morning. About 10 o'clock he was suddenly stricken ill and died a short time after being medical aid could reach him. Death was due to heart disease.

The late Mr. Beck was born at Summerside, Prince Edward Island in 1878 and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Vere Beck.
Mr. Beck spent a number of years in the United States and also carried on farming operations at Alliston, P. E. I., before taking up residence at Little Sands, where he farmed also, about 12 years ago. Quiet and unassuming in his manner, but with a rare sense of humor, but with a deep sympathy for the troubles of his fellowmen he had the sincere friendship of a large number of people. His unexpected passing has left deep sorrow.

Besides his wife, formerly Catherine MacLean of Little Sands, there survive two sons, Preston in Charlottetown and Russell in Montague. A step-mother, Mrs. Margaret Beck, Alliston and four brothers and two sisters also survive. They are: James in Alliston; Hazel, Mrs. Iva Tully, Cloverdale, Saskatchewan; Grace, Mrs. Otis Jackson, Peter's Road; Robert in Montague; and John and Tyler in Alliston.

To the bereaved family the Guardian extends sincere sympathies.

CRITICISM OF COMMISSION

Liberals. They believe in the possibility of using debt-free money for public purposes, including social services under provincial control. However judicially-minded the chairman of the Royal Commission, Hon. N. W. Rowell, may be, he would regard any proposal to establish a national credit account of debt-free money—much less provincial accounts—as a form of sacrilege against the golden standard. Nor is any other member of the Commission known to be less orthodox. The gold mentality is in complete control.

Criticism Warranted

"Provincial debts, subsidies from the Dominion treasury to the provinces, more centralized control of public credit—the proposed federal loan board—are directly related to monetary policy. The doctrines of sound money would have been in no danger by including at least one economic heretic on the Rowell Commission—the Macmillan Committee, of the United Kingdom in 1931, included representatives of commerce against the gold standard, of Labor, Liberal and Conservative politics, even a former Communist M.P. The unrepresentative character of the Rowell Commission to deal with the subject of Constitutional Reform in Canada would fully warrant Mr. Bennett's criticism.

"The Conservative Leader is doubtless right in saying that the Commission's report will become an election issue. It is Canada's misfortune to be periodically distracted from the unifying urge to improve living conditions for everybody, by just such tricks of politics as an election fight over constitutional relations. So long as the people can be kept divided, under the sway of electioneering eloquence on the British North America Act, the political parties can sidestep the demand to produce better results in the economic state of the country. It is already being arranged to start the electorate on a B.N.A. wild goose chase—unless public opinion can be mobilized to demand results before another period of depression is fastened upon the country."
