IN FUTURE TREATIES, BRITAIN SIGNS FOR SELF AND NOT FOR DOMINIONS

LONDON, Nov. 25.—In future treaties, British ministers shall sign for Great Britain instead of for the empire, says a report adopted by the imperial conference today.

In foreign relations, neither Great Britain nor the dominions should be committed to acceptance of active obligations without the definite assent of their own governments, the report says. Future treaties are to be signed by each dominion for itself, Canada signing immediately after Great Britain.

While Queen Marie was a guest of the city it was not unusual to see traffic halted when automobiles of her party raced down a thoroughfare. Cartoonists, now crediting traffic policemen with addressing the question, "Who do you think you are, the queen of Rumania?" to drivers who disregard signals.

A subwayite gave a new excuse for walking sticks. He said he preferred leaning on a cane to hanging from a strap. However, the straps still bear the brunt of the traffic.

The Grove that gave Grove street in Greenwich village its name has disappeared. Originally a group of trees, the ravages of time reduced them gradually in numbers until in the last year only one tree remained. A recent storm swept that away and now the grove is only another village memory.

Watson Barratt, Shubert's theatrical scenery designer, says the bedroom farce scenes of recent years have surfeited him with beds. "I have done bedrooms for the revues and the farces until I feel like King Solomon's chambermaid," he said. "The shows have kept me busy turning out every kind from that of the adventuress or the emperor to that of the ordinary mortal." Incidentally, a bedroom is among the scenes for which he has just made impressionistic designs.

AN UNSWEEPERABLE PRAYER.

"Please, Lord, make me white like other children," prayed little black Pansy one night. "What you mean, child?" exclaimed her mother, shocked. "How come you want to be white?" "Yes, so I can get good and dirty once, ma'my," replied small Pansy.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. HARRIOT LOCKE

There passed peacefully away at New London, Nov. 15th, Mrs. Harriot Locke, aged 77 years. She leaves to mourn one son Charles and three grand sons. The funeral service took place from the home of her son on Nov. 17th which was largely attended. At home and church the funeral service was conducted by her pastor, the Rev. G. T. Spriggs. (Patriot please copy.)

MR. EDWARD E. McDONALD

The death of Edward E. McDonald occurred at his late residence Kingsboro, on the afternoon of Nov. 15th in the 38 year of his age. The deceased had been in declining health for about 18 years but was able to be about until about the last two weeks of his life. "Teddie" as he was known by his loved ones, and the community was highly respected and loved by all, a splendid Christian character, and devoted to his Lord. Truly his life was refined and beautiful, as gold is refined by fire. During his protracted illness when operations of his young manhood were gradually becoming extinguished and one affection followed another until he was then deprived of the enjoyment of the beauties of the world, around him, yet he never complained, his patience and endurance was most Christlike as he waited for the time when the boatman would come to bear him over the tide to be forever with his Lord.

The deceased was a loyal member of the South Lake Church of Christ, having accepted Christ as his Saviour about 14 years ago. He leaves besides a loving mother to whom he was most wonderfully devoted, also four sisters: Mrs. J. H. Baker, North Lake, Mrs. Salden McLeon, Kingsboro, Mrs. Percy Williams, Richardson, Sask., and Mrs. Charles Newman of Chippewa, Sask. Interment took place in South Lake Cemetery. (Patriot please copy.)

HUGH J. CAMPBELL

The death of Hugh J. Campbell, Elmira on Friday, November 12th, removes a familiar figure from the community in which he lived for over 84 years.

It is recalled that only a few years ago, a prominent surgeon pronounced him the finest specimen of physical manhood he had ever examined.

His cheerful disposition, coupled with his ability to look on the sunny and jocose side of most every situation, made Mr. Campbell very popular with young and old. He was especially fond of children and his greatest delight was when they flocked to greet him. In spite of his advancing age, he retained all his faculties of mind and body, and had never been seriously ill, until a few days before his demise, when he contracted pneumonia, and while every care and assistance was given, the great summons could not be stayed.

His Pastor, Rev. R. J. MacDonald, was frequently at his bedside, administering the Sacraments of Holy Church, which consoled and fortified him for a happy death. The funeral, at St. Columba's Church on Sunday afternoon, 14th inst, was one of the largest seen here for some time, the respect and sympathy of all classes and creeds being shown by their words and presence.

Services at the church and grave were conducted by the pastor, Father Macdonald, assisted by Rev. A. L. Sinnott. The pall bearers were: Francis E. P. Conroy, Bernard Creamer, Wm. Harlan, D. J. Harris, Stephen Keefe and George J. Morrow. Deceased who had never married made his home with his brother, John J., who with one sister, Teresa, reside on the old homestead. A brother Neil of Dorchester, Mass., and a number of nieces and nephews are left to mourn.

JOHN DUNCAN MCKINNON.

May 3, 1851 — Oct. 20, 1926.

"Home is the sailor, home from the sea,
And the hunter from the hill."
—R. L. Stevenson.

It would need the pen of an Ian MacLaren to sketch the eventful life that breathed itself out in the Royal Columbian Hospital, New Westminster, B.C., on Oct. 20th. Long before Prince Edward Island had a railroad, or consented to join Canada, a robust lad of nineteen, winsome in form, feature and manner, was lured to the Michigan and Wisconsin lumber woods by the reports of other red blooded young men who had been there. So he bade good-bye to home and kindred. Loving friends sang, "When Shall We All Meet Again?" But few thought of sad Jeremiah's words: "He shall return no more nor see his native country." A little over a year passed away and the great city of Chicago and the forests of the adjacent States were ruined by fire. The elder residents of the Atlantic coast will remember the heavy pall of smoke that hung over our heads, and the heavier dread in our hearts as we thought of loved ones in the stricken area. John narrowly escaped with his life, but with nothing else. This was but one of many, many times when kind Providence seemed to be watching over him and leading him safely through dreadful dangers. After some years he drifted to the Black Hills, S. Dakota, and became a miner. Later he worked at construction and bridge work on the Union Pacific. But in those days the silver-tongued Ingersoll was leading thousands into the desert of doubt and unbelief, and for many years he seemed to be under that evil spell. His generous and sociable nature led him into the drink habit which clung to him till he fell in with the Salvation Army at Rossland, in 1897. He became an earnest and consistent Christian, and for the past 29 years strove to lead others in the same course. But few that saw the rich fruitage on the Pacific Coast, thought or knew of the long earnest seed sowing on the Atlantic Coast. The one who taught him "The chief end of man" could truly say, "I gave you to God in your cradle, my boy, I taught you the best that I knew, and as long as God's mercy permits me to live, I will never cease praying for you."

His funeral at Ocean View was conducted by the Salvation Army, assisted by Rev. D. Munro of Strawberry Hill, who felt it a privilege for two years to have known such a true Christian gentleman as John McKinnon.

He leaves to fondly cherish his memory his loving wife, Minnie, their daughter Joy, and his youngest brother, Charles M., at Vanarsdol, B. C. His eldest brother, the late George W., has many descendants, to the fourth generation, in different parts of Canada, several in Vancouver.

A continent lies between his grave at Ocean View and the old Presbyterian churchyard at New London South, P. E. I., where the rest of the family lie beside their forefathers.

"Asleep in Jesus, far from thee,
Thy kindred and their graves may be,
But there is still a blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."

Mount Stewart And Vicinity

Mrs John A. McAulay returned last Saturday from a visit to the North Side.

Mrs R. C. Clark returned Thursday evening from a pleasant visit to Minnesota, U. S.

Mrs. Mont McKay returned from Ottawa, Can., where she has been visiting her daughter Miss Ida.

James Palmer, K. C., and K. M. Martin, K. C., visited Mount Stewart Tuesday the 16th inst.

We regret to learn that it has been found necessary to have Mrs. M. A. Egan removed to the hospital for treatment.

We are pleased to learn that Mrs. Fred Jardine has returned much improved in health from the P. E. I. hospital where she has been undergoing treatment.

Regular services were held in the United Church at the usual hours of 11 a. m. and 7 p. m., conducted by the pastor Rev. M. K. Charman.

A number of our citizens are busily engaged in having their smelt bag-nets in shape and others buying new ones, preparatory to the season which opens December first.

As this is a rush season on the R. R. extra trains running at all hours, H. W. McKay, station agent here has Mr. Henry Martell, Georgetown, assisting him.

Signs of winter. Citizens putting on their storm windows, having their houses banked, etc. and last but not least the East River freezing across, one night last week.

The Misses Ellie and Alice Douglas Head of Hillsboro, returned Saturday evening from a pleasant visit to Suffolk where they were the guests of their uncle Mr. David Birt.

Due to recent rains and neglect, some of those who are compelled to haul their produce etc. across the bridge here will find it necessary to have their horses wear snow shoes or some other such contrivance to keep them from sinking through it.—F.

A meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. was held Sunday evening at the home of Mr and Mrs William McKenzie, Mt. Stewart and was well attended. The meeting was led by Arthur McLaughlin, Head of Hillsboro in a very capable manner and was interesting and instructive from beginning to end. Some present spoke briefly on the topic. "How to promote interdenominational fellowship" while others nicely selected readings. A number of hymns and psalm selections were sung all pointing with one accord which made the evening pass all too quickly.

IN HONOR OF BRAVE MEN.

South Africans in all parts of the world have described to the Devilville Wood memorial to the men of the South African Expeditionary Force who died in the Great War. This memorial was unveiled by Gen. Herzog.

It consists of an archway, flanked by walls that connect it with two pavilions. One of the latter will house a Book of Remembrance containing the names of the fallen.

A double avenue of oak trees, leading from the Longueval-Glency road to the archway, is a feature of the memorial. At present the trees are two feet high. They have been grown from acorns which were taken to South Africa from Holland a century and a half ago.
