Can You Prove You're Single?

What would YOU do if you found a little beauty eating at your table and asserting she was your wife? Well, neither did Denny. See this bachelor's nightmare, it's full of new laugh wrinkles.

Never has man had greater comic tribulations than Denny in this mad mix-up with a fiancée and a would-be wife.

It's mad, it's merry, it's sparkling.

SUPER LAUGHTER SCORED AT PRINCE EDWARD

Denny in "Where Was I?" Makes New Mirth Mark.

It is only just that when an unusually good picture is available to theatre goers of Ch'town that the reviewer should advise the fact—else why the review?

It is equally true that when a picture does not merit attention due to carelessness in production that the reviewer should caution the public away.

Sticking to this principle, "Where Was I?" a Universal-Jewel starring Reginald Denny which is now playing at The Strand today is deserving of the heartiest endorsement. It is the most amusing comedy-drama that has been shown at local theatres for many months.

Credit goes not alone to Denny but to the director, the author, the members of the supporting cast. William Selter, director of many of Laura LaPlante's successes, had charge of this production.

The story is from the clever magazine serial by Edgar Franklin and was adapted by Mel Brown and Rex Taylor. The supporting cast was admirably chosen for its respective notes. Prominent are Marian Nixon, Pauline Garon, Tyrone Power, Lee Moran, Chester Conklin, Otis Harlan, William H. Turner, Tom Lingham, Arthur Lake and James Corrigan.

The plot rotates around the efforts of a shy, staid young business man to discover where he was on a certain past date. He loves one girl and another claims that she is married to him. The young man feels that to convince his fiancée in time for the wedding the next day that he must refute the charge by proving an iron-clad alibi.

It is good entertainment all the way through.

The Fox news Aumalee Aesops Fables and excellent music by the orchestra, will make this a program well worth seeing.

WORLD SERIES AGAIN EVENED WHEN YANKS DEFEAT ST. LOUIS

By Defeating the Cardinals in the Fourth Game of the World Series Yesterday 10 to 5 The Yanks Come on Even Terms With the St. Louis Team.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—New York Yankees again evened the world series with the Cardinals this afternoon by winning the fourth game by a score of 10 to 5.

Three home runs by Babe Ruth featured the game and smashing a half dozen world records by his performance.

Both teams were free with the bat, each securing fourteen hits throughout the game.

Hoyt pitched six tight ball in the pinches for the New York team and saved the day when runs looked sure.

The Babe connected for his circuit clouts in the first, third and sixth innings.

St. Louis were forced to use three moundmen in an effort to keep the keen eyed Yanks from rolling up the score.

In the first innings both teams secured a lone tally and it looked like a great struggle.

In the second, each side had a goose egg chalked up for them.

In the third the Yanks jumped into the lead by one run and their hopes began to soar when the St. Louis failed to score.

Coming up in the fourth the Yanks increased their lead in their half and their hopes went still higher, but this was short-lived as the Cardinals in their turn started to bat and sent in three runs to leap into the lead.

The fourth inning was the unfortunate inning for the Cardinals when the Yanks in their turn at bat launched hits and drove four runs across the home plate and again went into the lead with three runs to the good, while St. Louis were retired without a score.

In the sixth the Yanks increased their lead to five runs, securing two and once again Hoyt proved too much for the Cardinals sluggers.

The seventh again saw the Yanks draw a lone tally to further add to their almost sure lead while the Cardinals again went scoreless.

In the eighth neither team got a man across the home plate and things looked rosy for the Yanks.

The nine and final inning the Yanks were retired without a run, while the Cardinals made a big bid to cut down the lead, but Hoyt was right on the job and the Cardinals were only able to get a lone tally and thus the fourth game ended 10 to 5 for the New York Yankees.

The breaks are now about even and it looks as if the series would go the full seven games to decide the issue.

Bootlegger Gets Maximum Penalty

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 6.—"This is a British community and we should not tolerate such outlaws," flouting the law in its face," declared His Honor Judge Stubbs in refusing an appeal of a local cafe owner convicted of an infraction of the Manitoba Temperance Act.

Judge Stubbs not only refused the appeal, but increased the fine from six months in jail. This is the first time the maximum fine of $1,000 has been imposed on an individual. Judge Stubbs declared prison sentences were necessary to curb the illicit selling of liquor and he said: "Every bootlegger should be in jail."

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Despite details by the commander of the Potsdam regiment that Prince Wilhelm, eldest son of former Crown Prince Frederick William had enlisted in the regiment, the newspapers insist that Wilhelm participated in recent manoeuvres at Wurttemberg.

Minister of Defense Geesler has ordered a close investigation of the Prince's activities to determine whether he actually had a part in the manoeuvres.

DOG SO MISERABLE IS TAKEN BY QUEEN

BELGRADE, Oct. 6.—A cat may look at a queen, but even a greater privilege today was granted the black spaniel that is one of the favored pets of Queen Marie of Rumania.

The dog appeared so miserable after his mistress, leave-taking at the Sinaia station, from where she started yesterday on her journey to America, that the queen took pity and decided to take him along as far as Paris, by the time the train reached here, however, the dog had become such a favorite of the royal party that it stood a good chance of being taken all the way to America.

ADVISES THEM NEVER TO SMOKE, DRINK OR TELL NASTY STORIES

KING LAYS CORNER-STONE

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Oct. 6.—"Never smoke, drink or tell dirty stories," was the formula for an active old age, which the Right Hon. and Right Rev. Arthur Polley Winnington-Ingram, D. D., Bishop of London left with a group of University of Iowa students last night before leaving for Chicago.

The bishop said his belief in Christianity had kept him sound. The self-centered interests of the average student, the tendency to forsake standards of personal purity, and the operation of great universities on a quantity rather than quality basis, were some of the evils that the bishop pointed out.

"Many campuses turn out 80 many finished products a year," he said. "These products too often have but one purpose in mind, that of promoting their own welfare, neglecting all thoughts of other people, and their own after life."

Today in both Britain and the United States young people have a tendency to regard treachery as not in contrast with moral standards, he said. "Personal purity and heredity are absolutely necessary," he continued. "As soon as any nation loses its ideals it falls into the slough of immortality."
