CHAPTER 22

TORTURING DOUBT
Norma never knew how long she sat motionless at the wheel of her car in front of the tea-shop, with Sydney Stokes's strange parting words echoing in her ears. Traffic flowed unceasingly past her; pedestrians hurried along on their homeward way.

"Ask your husband where he got the thirty thousand dollars..."
Sinister words! A sinister insinuation!

A passing acquaintance called her back to reality.
"Anything wrong with your motor, Mrs. Kendall?"

She managed her pretty smile.
"Oh, no, I was just thinking," and she added with a flush, "I was wondering whether I'd finished all my errands down-town."

"The man was a friend of her father's, and he laughed.
"Oh, a pretty girl can always think up an additional expensive trick to buy."

She laughed, too, but her car in motion, and lifted a gay hand in adieu. All the way home, she passed other acquaintances, and she smiled

MORSES TEAS

ALWAYS PLEASE

They have done so for 56 Years

As she looked back, trying carefully to recall every detail of that memorable afternoon of their hasty marriage, she told herself that it was all very simple and natural.

Somewhere, Philip had obtained money unexpectedly—probably a bequeathed inheritance—and, feeling himself at last in a position to marry, had hastened to propose to the girl he loved.

But, striving for the truth, her mind rejected this simple explanation. It didn't hold water. She recalled only too vividly the curious shadow that had marred her happiness in the first days of the honeymoon. Philip had not been happy—she was sure of it now. Something had troubled him, had made him remote and distant.

Would he have been like that, if her first explanation was correct?

that insinuation. Of this she was confident. She had made an appointment to meet him after the bank closed that afternoon.

A Doctor's Praise

A Noted Doctor Strongly Endorses Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

The test of any remedy lies in its acceptance and employment by a qualified medical practitioner. No less an authority than Dr. Andrea Amici, physician to the Papal household, writing on the subject of anaemia, impoverishment of the nervous system and disorders attributable thereto, strongly endorses Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, recommending them as superior to other tonics.

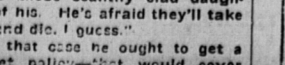

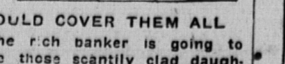

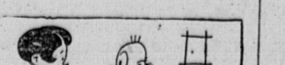

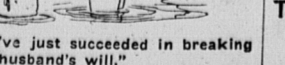

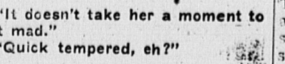

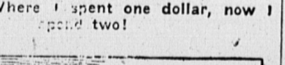

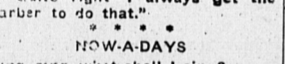

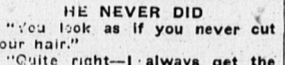

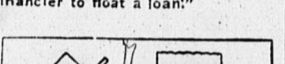

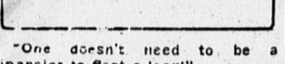

Dr. Amici's testimony reads as follows:—"For several years I have made use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in my work and have always found them efficacious in the treatment of disorders due to impoverishment of the nervous system, anaemia and nervousness, stomach weakness, retarded development in young women and irregularities. There is no lack of tonic remedies, but in my experience none of them manifests a superior efficacy to that of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

No more conclusive evidence of the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills could be asked for or given, than is found in the above endorsement of this noted European physician. Besides this, however, this medicine has enjoyed a world-wide public confidence for more than a third of a century and has brought relief to thousands and thousands of weak and suffering people.

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness and stomach trouble. Take them as a tonic if you are not in the best physical condition and cultivate a resistance that will keep you well and strong. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SMILES

GABBY GERTIE

Norma never knew how long she sat motionless at the wheel of her car... with Sydney Stokes's strange parting words echoing in her ears.

and bowed to them, forcing back the disquieting reminder of Sydney Stokes's words, refusing to allow herself to think about them.

And yet, why had that parting speech been so disquieting? she asked herself—and she could find no answer.

Philip was home when she arrived. She dined with him and her father in the vulgar ornate dining-room, and her mood seemed light and happy, as usual. They played three-handed bridge after dinner.

It was only when she was in bed and staring into the darkness that she permitted herself to face the ugly thing that had lurked in the back of her mind all evening.

What had Stokes meant by that curious challenge: "Ask your husband where he got the thirty thousand dollars..." on the afternoon of your marriage...?"

Philip had never confided his business affairs to her. She had neither asked, nor had she wanted to know about them. Her awe of him and her confidence in him forbade questions. She hadn't known that he was in financial distress, that he needed thirty thousand dollars to pay off notes.

Would any man who had just come into a fortune, who had been put on his feet, financially, and who had just married the girl he professed to love, be as Philip had been in those first days?

She knew the answer only too well. Philip had been troubled. He had tried unsuccessfully to hide his worry. What had been the cause? The thirty thousand dollars of which Sydney Stokes had hinted—or herself?

The last thought turned her sick and giddy. Had Philip, the moment after he had married her, regretted it? Yet how was that possible, when he had had two years to decide whether he wanted to ask her to be his unless he wouldn't have asked her. It was nearly sure he wanted her.

It was in mind and body, she knew, weary and troubled sleep. But her first waking moment brought the old, unsolved question vividly to her consciousness. She rose dispiritedly, had her bath, and dressed. In the sunny breakfast room, she poured the coffee for her father and her husband, and forced herself to eat, thankful for the newspapers that kept both men's eyes from her pale face and troubled eyes.

All day long, while she was alone, except for the servants, she pondered the question. Try as she would, she couldn't forget it. Yet, she told herself, she was undoubtedly making a mountain out of a spiteful little molehill erected by a man who of late had been rejecting her badly and had a desire for revenge against the successful sufferer.

She wished she dared confide in Philip. But her awe of him, her fear of making herself ridiculous in his eyes, held her back. For two days she suffered in silence. Then she knew that she must find out the truth—or have her whole married happiness poisoned with doubt.

Feeling like a traitor to the man she loved with all her heart, yet telling herself that only in this way would she be able to dispel forever the sinister thing that was threatening her, she went to the phone and called Sydney Stokes.

His voice sounded complacent, not at all surprised, and as if he had expected her call. The knowledge made her bite her lips vexedly, but she left the phone feeling more at peace. When she had talked to him she would discover the absurdity of

A Perfect Medicine For Little Ones

Baby's Own Tablets Should be in Every Home Where There Are Children.

The perfect medicine for little ones is found in Baby's Own Tablets. They are a gentle but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach; drive out constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and promote healthful refreshing sleep. It is impossible for Baby's Own Tablets to harm even the new-born babe, as they are absolutely guaranteed free from opiates or any other injurious drug.

Concerning the Tablets, Mrs. Alex. J. Perry, Atlantic N. E., writes:—"I always keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house for the children, as I have found them a perfect medicine for little ones."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE BEDTIME STRIP—

"I'll fix him. I'll wear my colors. Indeed, wait till I get my needle teeth into him!"

"It's funny this stranger Mr. Fox told me about has never left any tracks around here."

"Here's where you told me the stranger hunted but I haven't seen a sign of him. If you've been pulling one of your smart tricks and there isn't any black and white stranger, I'll get even on you!"

"You wait here. He's coming now. Watch right along the ground by the wall. The fur will fly—oh, ho! That's good."

Mr. Weasel is Suspicious

"Where are you going my pretty maid?"

"To buy Perfection Ice Cream!" she said.

"A very wise plan, my pretty maid. That's what mama says, kind sir," she said.

Winter Highways To Be Discussed

With the fourteenth annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association set for September 27th, 28th and 29th, at such a centrally located and attractive spot as Niagara Falls, Ont., the indications are for the largest attendance which has yet been recorded at any meeting of this non-partisan and non-commercial body, working solely for the advancement of the cause of improved highways.

Requests for reservations and programmes are reaching the head offices here daily, and the accommodations of the Clifton Hotel, the convention headquarters, are likely to be fully taken up.

Several additions to the programme as previously published have been announced by G. A. McNamee, the secretary-treasurer. An added speaker will be C. A. Davidson, chairman of the Good Roads Board, Alberta, who will deal with the maintenance of natural earth roads.

A topic of unusual importance will be winter roads for motorists, as several western provinces have been studying the matter with a view to early action, while the Quebec Highways Department has intimated that some of the main highways of that province will be kept open this winter.

Ontario has had more experience than any other province in this modern road development, and A. A. Smith, acting chief engineer of the provincial roads department will talk on methods equipment, cost data and the economic aspect of winter motor highways.

The discussion which will follow an address by J. A. Begin, of Quebec on traffic regulations and safety on the highways, will be opened by William Findlay, Toronto, a director of the C.G.R.A., Col. Paul R. Hansden, vice-president of the Royal Automobile Club of Canada, Montreal, and W. G. Robertson, Secretary of the Ontario Motor League. H. Rose, chief engineer of York county, Ontario, will lead the discussion on a paper by D. Noonan deputy highway commissioner of New York state, on bituminous surfacing of macadam roads, and the discussion on commercial vehicles and their effects upon the highways will be led by H. S. Carpenter, deputy Minister of Highways, Saskatchewan. The compilers have succeeded in including in the programme experts representative of all phases of road activity and of all the provinces and many important states of the union.

The issue of a renewal of federal aid for provincial road systems will again be to the fore. The Canada Highways Act of 1919 appropriated $20,000,000 to supplement the expenditures of the various provinces, the apportionment being according to population. Practically all of this sum was used, although several provinces had to secure an extension of the time limit originally set, but requests for further grants were refused. At each succeeding convention resolutions urging further federal aid have been passed and the directing minds of the association believe that Canada's improved financial situation now justifies a strong demand upon the Ottawa Government for a new grant to be applied to a purpose which serves the people of the whole Dominion—the construction or improvement of main traffic arteries linking up all the provinces with each other and with the United States.

A request sent to the secretary-treasurer, C.G.R.A., New Bliss Building, Montreal, will bring the official programme and other information.

Colman's Famous PICKLE Recipes

Pickle Tins! Tomatoes, cucumbers, gherkins, cauliflowers, beets, onions, celery, cabbages and peppers—are ready.

Home-made chow; chutneys; relishes; catsups and all kinds of delicious pickles—how they do enhance a meal.

Here are six of a series of Colman's famous pickle recipes—so enticingly different from the regular run of recipes. Clip them for future reference.

APPLE CHUTNEY

4 lb. sour apples; 2 lbs. white onions; 2 quarts cider vinegar; 2 lbs. seedless raisins; 1 lb. celery; 4 large red peppers; 1 1/2 lb. sugar; 2 tablespoons Colman's Mustard; 2 teaspoons salt; 1 teaspoon turmeric (optional).

Soak the onions in brine (1 tablespoon salt to 1 quart water) over night. Drain them and put them through the food chopper. Pare the apples and put them through the food chopper. Pour 1 pint vinegar over the apples and raisins and let them stand through the night. Add the onions and other ingredients, and cook the mixture until the vegetables are clear and tender. Seal it in sterilized bottles or jars.

A GOOD CROCK PICKLE

1 gal. white wine vinegar; 9 level cups brown sugar; 1 level cup Colman's Mustard; 1 cup salt; 1 tablespoon turmeric powder; 1 tablespoon cured powder; 1 oz. ground mixed allspice; small piece of alum.

Heat enough vinegar to dissolve sugar, then put ingredients in covered crock, stir well and continue to stir each morning for two weeks. Add cucumbers, onions, small carrots, beans or any vegetable desired any time. This will keep well all winter.

TOMATO MUSTARD CATSUP

3 gals. cooked tomatoes; 2 qts. vinegar; 2 lbs. brown sugar; 1/2 lb. salt; 3 red peppers; 2 oz. allspice; 1 oz. cloves; 2 oz. black pepper; 1 oz. ginger; 1 lb. Colman's Mustard.

Boil tomatoes and strain; add all the other ingredients except the mustard and cook well; then add the mustard and cook stirring. Strain and bottle. Use whole spice so that it will come out when straining.

MUSTARD PICKLES

1 quart small onions; 1 quart cucumbers; 1 large cauliflower; 2 heads celery; 2 red peppers.

Peel onions, cut vegetables in small pieces, cover with weak brine and let stand overnight. In the morning bring to a boil and drain off.

Take two cups brown sugar; 1 cup flour; 6 tablespoons Colman's Mustard; 1 tablespoonful turmeric and 2 qu
