Colonel Gooderham
Colonel Albert Edward Gooderham, who was born in Toronto, June 2, 1861, built up a great fortune through his many business activities and has spent a great portion of it in patriotic and philanthropic enterprises. He entered his father's distillery business as a junior and subsequently played a large part in several other Canadian business enterprises.

In his early twenties Colonel Gooderham entered the 10th Royal Grenadiers as a sub-lieutenant. He quickly rose to command and took the regiment to Quebec for the Tercentenary celebration in 1908.

An outstanding act of philanthropy was the establishment by Colonel Gooderham of the "Prevention" an institution of 108 beds for the treatment of children pre-disposed to tuberculosis. He also established and presented the anti-toxine farm to the Toronto University, with 80 acres of land, stables, laboratories, and animal houses, which provided all the anti-toxine for the Second British Army during the last two years of the war.

Also, during the war, Colonel Gooderham gave up the distilling plant of Gooderham and Worts to the British Government without reward, asking only that the government pay taxes and insurance. The plant was used for the manufacture of "acetone," used as a solvent in the manufacture of cordite. The plant produced 75 percent of all the acetone made in Canada and the Dominion turned out 75 percent of all that chemical made in the British Empire. Colonel Gooderham also established two other plants in the United States at Terre Haute, Indiana.

A hospital in Hyde Park Place, London, was established and equipped by Colonel Gooderham.

Chief Justice Chisholm
Apart from his high legal attainments, Chief Justice Joseph Andrew Chisholm of Nova Scotia became prominent through his contributions to the literature of his native province, particularly through his volumes on the life of Joseph Howe.

Born in the village of St. Andrews, Antigonish County, in January, 1868, he was educated at St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, and Dalhousie Law School, Halifax. Called to the bar in 1896 he was created King's Counsel of the supreme court of Nova Scotia in 1916. In June, 1931, he was made chief justice.

While practicing law in Antigonish, Mr. Chisholm unsuccessfully contested his native county in the Dominion elections in 1895 and 1896. He was mayor of Antigonish from 1909 to 1912, and president of the Union of Canadian Municipalities 1910 and 1911. He removed to Halifax on his elevation to the supreme court bench. He was married in 1891 to Frances Alice Affleck, who died in 1908.

Traces History Of Glengarry At Rotary
An interesting historical sketch of Glengarry, from which Ralph Connor drew inspiration and material for his well known book, "The Man from Glengarry" was given at the Rotary luncheon Monday by another man from Glengarry, Rotarian Stuart D. Irvine, of the Federal Live Stock Department.

He said that among the first settlers were many of Scottish descent, who came there about the same time as a number came to the eastern part of Prince Edward Island. In this province, said Mr. Irvine, I found during my trips east of Charlottetown a similarity between the people of this section and of my native country.

He described the work of the pioneers in Glengarry and the customs and characteristics of the present generation.

The Scotch names were so predominant that on one occasion, when in the course of his duties, he had to deliver brood sows in the name of the order, he found that with the exception of three, all the names began with the letter M. In one case, sows had been purchased by two Donald J. MacLeods, but after investigation he was able to deliver one to Donald Alexander William MacLeod, and the other to Donald "Big Duncan" MacLeod.

Rotarian F. M. Stewart was in the chair. The guests were Mr. Frank Sales of St. John and Barrie Corney of Summerside.

It was announced that the net proceeds of the Rotary auction including 70 pairs of dental plates, contributed by the dentists amounted to $1,426.29. Rotarian Neil MacLean, chairman of the committee, who made the announcement, appointed as fellow members of his committee for next year Walter S. Grant, Al Fisher, E. E. Mutch, C. N. Bisset, Roy Quigley, George J. Tweedy, and the incoming President.

Rotarian W. M. Rowe treated his fellow members to cigars.

Secretary Harris read a letter from Miss Earle acknowledging the donation of $100 from the Rotarians towards the Free Dispensary.

President W. A. Stewart extended New Year's greetings and the meeting closed with Amen, Lang Syne and God Save the King.

Chas. Wm. Lindsay

A little more than half a century ago Charles William Lindsay came to Canada, a youthful Scottish immigrant seeking his fortune in the new land. He was in Canada only a short time when, at the age of 20, he became totally blind. Unaided by this almost overwhelming setback the young man became a piano tuner and was soon self-supporting.

Young Lindsay was no ordinary piano tuner—he was the best in his adopted city, Montreal. Soon he had so much work that he was able to take on assistants. These he brought from the Old Country, preferring those who were like himself, sightless. He personally bonded these immigrants guaranteeing to the Canadian government that they would not become public charges.

Seeking the possibilities in the piano business young Lindsay soon branched out into the manufacture of these instruments and built up the biggest business of that type in Canada. The erstwhile immigrant boy became a millionaire and one of the leading philanthropists of his day.

Dr. J. C. Webster

After a brilliant medical and surgical career which took him abroad for study and to the United States for some of his most prominent hospital posts, and to the leading colleges of his native land, Dr. J. Clarence Webster retired some 20 years ago to his birthplace, Shediac, N. B. He devoted his time to historical research and literary works.

Showered with honors from universities and countries in which he has served, Dr. Webster won new prominence in recent years from his study of early Canadian history and his collections of historic relics which he has generously loaned and donated to various museums.

Dr. Webster is one of the most active members of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada, and has been in much demand as a lecturer on the subjects of which he has made a hobby. His literary production has been largely along medical and surgical lines, but in late years he has produced many valuable papers on pioneer life in Canada. He was born in 1863.

Mayor Kennedy

Mayor Samuel Kennedy of Charlottetown, has been prominently identified with the industrial development of Prince Edward Island for many years. Born in 1881 at Brudenay, he first started business as a general merchant at Kensington, later he moved to Charlottetown, where he has been in the machinery agency business for 20 years. He has been actively engaged in the silver fox industry for a quarter of a century and is a director of the recently organized Charlottetown Fur Sales. After serving four two-year terms in the city council he was elected mayor last February.

A YEAR OF ECONOMIC ADJUSTMENTS

Government Activities to Speed Recovery Reviewed by Canadian Press.

By Frank Fishery, Canadian Press Staff Writer (By Guardian's Special Wire)

OTTAWA, Jan. 1.—A year of economic adjustments and experiments has just come to an end and all political signs for the year 1935 point to more to come. At the direct instigation of the Dominion Government innovations which would have been denounced by many as sheer radicalism a few years ago have come into being.

As the new year comes on the scene bringing with it a new session of Parliament and a general election Prime Minister R. B. Bennett sends out the word that more and more governmental regulation of private business is to come. While last year saw at least three important measures affecting the economic life of Canada, this year through Parliament the coming session will have at least one, perhaps more far-reaching than the others, before it, unemployment insurance.

Marketing Act
Of last year's measures the Natural Products Marketing Act has advanced further towards its goal than the others. It was designed to regulate marketing in order to bring a fairer return to the producer and if the number of groups of producers who have sought to take advantage of its provisions is an indication it gives promise of success.

Since midsummer when it came into operation a wide variety of products including tree fruits, red cedar shingles and salt fish in British Columbia, hay in the Prairie Provinces, tobacco in Ontario, lumber in Quebec and the export of apples from all of Canada have come under the regulation of marketing schemes sanctioned by the Dominion Marketing Board.

As the year ends schemes dealing with potatoes in Ontario and livestock and poultry in the Prairie Provinces, Nova Scotia apples, butter, cheese, onions and celery are either formally before the Board or in an advanced stage of preparation.

Central Bank
Canada's first Central Bank came into being in 1934 and will begin functioning in 1935. Early in January the shareholders of the new bank met to elect directors and after that the machinery of the bank will be about ready to start moving. Already a governor and a deputy governor have been appointed by the government.

The setting up of the bank into Canada's banking system which has gone little change over a long period of years. Control of the country's credit resources and gold stocks will rest with the bank and will thus be centred in one agency permitting of a consistent credit policy. Hitherto this control has been distributed among the chartered banks with important powers also exercised by the Finance Department.

New Money
Early in the new year Canadians will gradually be supplied with new money. The old large-size Dominion one and two-dollar bills will disappear and new and smaller bills of the Bank of Canada will take their place. Silver dollars will make their appearance for those who like to jingle money in their pockets and over a period of several years the bank notes issued by various banks for sums of five dollars and upwards will also disappear to be replaced by Bank of Canada notes.

Price Spreads Probe
As the new year dawns farmers in the nine provinces of Canada are taking advantage of the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act in order to get their debt burdens straightened out and narrowed down. This was the third of the major economic innovations brought into effect in 1934.

The past year too saw the launching of a sweeping inquiry into Canadian business and industry through the Parliamentary Committee and its successor, the Royal Commission on Price Spreads and Mass Buying. The probe resulted in the resignation of Hon. H. H. Stevens as Minister of Trade and Commerce and chairman of the commission following a dispute with the rest of the Cabinet.

The inquiry is not yet completed but will bear fruit in new legislation designed to deal with the evils disclosed in the new year. Prime Minister Bennett has declared the government will take such action as Parliament is competent to take.

Other Activities
A move towards a revision of the British North America Act, the Canadian Constitution, was launched by the Federal Government during the past year but came to nothing when the heads of the provincial governments found themselves unable to assemble in conference at Ottawa. It may be renewed in 1935 but the excitement of election campaigning may push it into the background until late in the year.

Although born of the depression all these measures are of a permanent character. They are designed to reduce in some degree the hazards and injustices worked by the natural play of economic forces.

Economic conditions generally show signs of improving. Official statistics for 1934 record increased trade, increased employment, greater industrial activity and higher government revenues than a year ago.

Should these trends continue to that indefinite point where the depression will end Canada will be sending into action such preventative measures as unemployment insurance, regulated marketing, farm debt adjustment and centralized control of credit, not to mention other possible regulations of business.

In another country a similar but more spectacular collection of measures has been described as a "new deal." In Canada it goes without a name.

FIVE AGED

they were crazy. Working frantically, the convicts made every effort to lessen the new year's tragedy but the raging swiftly-spreading fire, hampered their activities. Partially dazed themselves and choking from the smoke, the convicts worked side by side with prison camp guards to carry the semi-conscious county home inmates to safety.

The smoke was so dense they could scarcely see and many of the old men were so feeble or stricken with terror they could not aid themselves.

Police said none of the prisoners was estimated to escape.

ST. PETER'S CHURCH
At 7.45 a. m. yesterday a celebration of the Holy Eucharist was held in the Feast of Circumcision.

ST. DUNSTON'S BASILICA
Yesterday the feast of the Circumcision of our Lord was a holy day of obligation and the Messe at St. Dunstan's Basilica were at the same hours as on Sunday with an extra Mass at 5.30.

Rev. Dr. McMahon, rector of Basilica preached at all the Masses and extended his good wishes for the New Year to all the parishioners. The year 1935 will be a year of special devotion to the Sacred Heart and following to the wish of the Bishop, every family is asked to consecrate themselves to the Sacred Heart.

In the evening at 7 o'clock St. Basilica was filled with the mothers and fathers of families for their children, to assist at a Holy Hour preached by Dr. McMahon. At this service the parish as a body consecrated itself to the Sacred Heart of Jesus. Solemn Benediction was given by Rev. Dr. McMahon assisted by Rev. E. Murray, deacon and Rev. M. E. Francis, St. Deacon.

The music was rendered by the Corpus Christi Choir, Mr. W. Brown director and Miss Beaud Blanchard organist.

HOLY REDEEMER CHURCH
Monday evening at the Church of the Most Holy Redeemer, 730, Solomons, Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament was given by Rev. Fr. Fleming, C.S.B., assisted by Rev. Fr. Enright, C.S.B., and Rev. Fr. O'Hara, C.S.B. A Te Deum was also given in the afternoon at 4 o'clock. The church was again decorated for the past year.

Yesterday morning, Masses were at the usual Sunday hours. At 10.30 Solemn High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Fleming, with Rev. Fr. O'Hara as deacon and Rev. Fr. Enright as choir director. An eloquent and appropriate sermon was preached by Rev. Fr. Enright. The mixed choir, augmented by an orchestra, and under the direction of Rev. Fr. O'Hara, C.S.B., rendered Mass's Mass very creditably.

The afternoon at 4 o'clock services consisted of reading petitions and reciting of the Our Mother's Perpetual Help, after which Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament was given by Rev. Fr. Fleming, with Rev. Fr. Enright as choir director. The singing.

Soviet Claims 1934 Year Of Progress
(C. F. by Guardian's Special Wire) MOSCOW, Jan. 1.—Publication of the economic balance sheet of the Soviet Union for 1934 prompted the newspapers to stress that the industries surpassed the market fixed for them in the Soviet's economic plan.

The steel and iron industry delivered their 10,000,000-ton quota before the time limit. The Bank of Industry also exceeded its quota by producing 19,000,000 tons and the Donetz basin coal mines delivered 60,000,000 tons ahead of schedule. The automobile, tractor, chemical and rubber industries also accomplished the tasks set for them.

The newspapers also reported a striking improvement in those industries which have been lagging behind, citing the railway and transport industries.

The livestock industry is growing. Retail trade rose considerably and reached 61,000,000 rubles which is 24 percent higher than in 1933. National revenue amounted to 59,000,000 rubles, an increase over last year.

ARCHDEACON'S PACT WITH HIS WIFE
LONDON, Jan. 1.—When Archdeacon E. Powell, of Carlisle, opened a sale of work today his wife sat beside him. "You may wonder," he said, "why I am opening this sale and not my wife. When we were married many years ago my wife and I made a solemn pact which we have kept. 'It was that I should do all the talking outside the house and she should do it all inside. 'That is the way we have managed things—and having told you that I have no doubt that there will be some talking when I get home again.'
