

$5,000 Loss In Garage Fire Yesterday

Fire of unknown origin destroyed a service station operated by Mr. Arthur Duvar, Prince Street, early yesterday morning, causing damage estimated at $5,000.

Of the eight automobiles which were stored in the building, only one car, belonging to Lloyd Welton of Charlottetown, was damaged by the fire.

The loss, which included most of the shop's equipment, was covered by insurance. An hydraulic hoist and air compressor in the building were not seriously damaged.

The alarm was turned in by Miss Duvar at 4:45 a. m. Last night Mr. Duvar announced he would re-open his garage business today in the T. M. T. garage on Lombard Avenue.

Major Robertson Special Speaker Before Fox Club

At the Charlottetown Fox Club last night the speaker was Major Robertson of Mermaid. In the course of his address he advised the members of the club that they should be as much as possible.

He expressed himself as wholly in favour of the fox club for the club field days to be held at the Exhibition Grounds in the Eaton Pavilion on December 5 and 6.

Through the kindness of Col. D. A. MacKinnon whose willingness to have the fox club members placed in this building at the disposal of the clubs alone will assure its success.

All fox ranchers and clubs from any district are invited to attend, especially those adjoining, namely Clyde River, Hunter River, Johnson's River and Pownal. It is proposed to deal with adults on Monday, Dec. 5 and pups Tuesday, Dec. 6.

Fear Revival Of Republican Army BELFAST, Nov. 30 (AP)—Fears of a possible organized resurgence of the banned Irish Republican Army were raised last night in the wake of a series of bomb explosions along the border between Northern Ireland and Eire.

The fears were based chiefly on disclosure that the bombs, which wrecked six customs houses on the Northern Ireland side of the border, were delivered by bus along the 100-mile frontier.

Bus drivers from various points innocently handed in at the customs posts suitcases which were given to them to deliver with instructions that they would be called for. The suit cases contained time bombs, most of which were set to go off about midnight.

SHOCKED AT PASSING OF SIR JOHN AIRD

"Grand Old Man Of Canadian Banking" Succumbs To Heart Attack.

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) TORONTO, Nov. 30—Friends and former business associates of Sir John Aird expressed shock and regret tonight at the sudden death of the former President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, known throughout Canada as the "grand old man of Canadian banking."

Sir John, who celebrated his 83rd birthday Nov. 15, suffered a heart attack and died at his home, 150 St. George Street, at 11:30 p. m. He was 82 years of age and had been in excellent health and a good night's rest. A few minutes later he complained of a pain in the chest and collapsed.

"Only yesterday I saw him, apparently in his usual good health and cheerful spirits," said Sir John Aird's close friend, Mr. J. W. Macdonald, president of the Board of Directors of the Bank of Commerce. "I am deeply grieved and shocked at the sudden death of my old friend and colleague. His genial presence will be greatly missed."

A banker with an international reputation, Sir John began his career in 1878 at the age of 23 when he entered the Bank of Commerce here to ask for a typist's position. His career as clerk, secretary, branch manager, assistant general manager and general manager was climaxed in 1924 when he became president of the bank. He retired in 1937 and was succeeded by S. H. Logan, then president of the bank. Sir John was a member of the Church of England in Canada. He once said this was because there was no Presbyterian Church in his native Scotland. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church in St. James' Cemetery here.

HON. MR. LEPAGE (Continued from page 1) The toast "Our Province" was responded to by Hon. B. W. Lepage, President of the Executive Council in the absence of Premier Campbell who was the guest speaker last night at the St. Andrew Society dinner in Halifax.

Mr. Lepage said he wondered if the present generation of boys and girls realize the heritage they have in this beautiful Province, which has been favoured down through the years and has kept abreast of the times while holding fast to the great traditions of the past.

95 per cent of our population he emphasized, are native born. The Island's special advantages as a tourist resort were noted. The speaker believed it was to our young people not to be seeking government jobs or otherwise depending on the Government, but taking an interest in the tourist traffic, in which a good deal of money is likely to be made.

He regretted to see so many of our farming population leaving the land today. Our soil if properly cultivated should produce continuously. Mr. Lepage knew of farms in the province which have been producing for the last seventy years and are just as good as ever today.

The Province's financial standing, he said, is the best in the Dominion. Thanks to governments in the past which have not gone as extravagantly as they have done in the West. We also have the lowest per capita debt and our credit standing is second only to that of the Dominion Government.

MAYOR FOSTER Extending greetings and best wishes on behalf of the citizens of Charlottetown, Mayor F. E. Foster said there was little he could say about the City which would be new to his audience. Recent improvements, including a new Park Roadway, beautification of Government Pond, rebuilding of Fort Edward and the Park breastwork and last but not least the civic airport now under construction. These projects had been made possible through the medium of unemployment grants.

Without venturing to anticipate the civic financial statement, Mr. Wyrsh said he trusted the improvement of the city would be a good account of its stewardship at the end of the fiscal year.

The speechmaking was preceded by a toast to the King of Great Britain and the National Anthem.

French Premier Thousands Requisitioned

Thousands of public service workers were requisitioned under their military service obligations to continue at their appointed posts. Mobile guards, police and in many cases army units supervised industry and services. Few requisitioned workers chose to risk the drastic military punishment for disobedience.

Leon Jouhaux, leader of the General Confederation of Labor, issued an implied concession of defeat. Parliamentary supporters of Daladier called it a labor fiasco and a triumph for the Premier.

Little Disorder There was little disorder. About 500 arrests were made in Paris and several dozen elsewhere in France. Jouhaux acknowledged Paris bus and subway services were halted only for two hours and said, "The requisition order and the use of military force do not deny we have brought a resumption of work."

He declared all dock workers struck in the large ports and asserted that although workers in nationalized industries and Government ministries responded to the requisition they did not work when they reached their posts.

The General Confederation of Labor, an organization of 5,000,000 workers, had called on about 4,000 members to strike. Exceptions had been made for vital services.

The protest was directed especially at Daladier's suspension of the 40-hour week by one of the decrees issued by the Government under parliamentary authority to restore France to financial and economic equilibrium.

Will Seek Support Members of the Chamber of Deputies predicted Daladier probably would start at once to line up a definite number of votes upon which he could depend when his decree came up for ratification. He is opposed by Socialists and Communist, once allied with his Radical Socialist party in the popular front.

The Chamber circles already knew that the Premier had a plan formulated which pointed toward dissolution of the Chamber if Government should run into such difficulties as might threaten downfall of the cabinet.

The Socialist invitation to convoke deputies in an extra-parliamentary session on Friday to discuss the Daladier program met with blunt refusals from centre and right groups in the Chamber lobby.

Leon Blum Socialist leader and his advisers, however, carried on their campaign to gather as many legislators as possible.

Socialist sources said the meeting would centre around methods whereby to assemble parliament as soon as possible. They said frankly that all they wanted was to pass a resolution to that effect.

Residents of Paris' found life nearly normal Thursday on the day subways and buses operated on schedule after a slight delay in the morning. Markets and stores did business as usual.

Concentrations of soldiers and mobile guards on the streets and in railway and subway stations attracted attention of travellers.

A few minor incidents were reported late today from several places in France. Several hundred strikers at Sochaux broke through a line of mobile guards at an automobile factory and a sputtered work by singing "The Internationale."
