WHY COMPLAIN?

Season of snows and season of flowers. Seasons of loss and gain. Since grief and joy must alike be ours. Why do we still complain?

Ever our falling from sun to sun. O my intolant brother. We want just a little too little of one. And much too much of the other. —James Whitcomb Riley

A collar button in the box is worth two under the bureau. A stitch in time is sometimes better than a whole spool of thread in the sewing-machine drawer. A little wax on the iron saves wear and tear on the temper. The first fardillon on the lawn is the forerunner of an army with banners. Kill one fly in the spring and you kill tens of thousands. A Johnnycake for supper is better than it sounds. Serve it with fresh maple syrup and listen to the paeans of praise. Synthetic syrup is only fortieth cousin to the real backwoods brand. They have never even met. Plymouth Rock eggs blush when you look at them. A strictly new-laid egg has a bloom like a plum, but it gets rubbed off in transit. Look a fish in the eye when you go to buy. If he gives you a sullen, sunken look, pass him by. It will be a while before those crinkled rhubarb sprouts begin to uncurl themselves in the backyard. Meanwhile, do not despise the lowly prune. Prunes combined with raisins and tucked into a pie crust topped off with whipped cream make something to dream about. A robin sings just as well in the rain as when the sun is shining. Enjoy every minute of this spring. It's the only one we'll get this year.

What's What in Honeymoons

A new fashion in honeymoons was set by a young couple, who began their married life by taking part in the Eastbourne motor rally in England. The bride wore black leather coat, pullover, grey flannel trousers, and white knitted helmet. The bridegroom wore oilskins.

It is wise to have the heels of all your daytime shoes the same height. Then you are not dead tired after an hour's wearing of your best shoes.

SPARKLING EYES

If you want to have eyes which sparkle, as do those in the well-known song, you must give them the care that they need. First and foremost then it is absolutely important to avoid all unnecessary strain. Precious as our sight is to most of us, it is a sad fact to think of the way our eyes are overworked and ill-treated every day of our lives.

The care of the eyes should begin right away in the morning, when they should be bathed in clear, cold water, for not only does this make the eyes bright, it also strengthens them while tightening up the muscles around the eyes. Quite an easy lotion to make is a boracic lotion which can be used for bathing the eyes once a day. It seems rather absurd to say so but there are any number of people who, although they have glasses, seldom especially should realize that by refusing to wear the glasses which they need they are adding considerably to those tiny lines and wrinkles which appear round the eyes, and are aggravated greatly by any undue strain.

The reason why many women object to glasses is the fact that they are considered unbecoming with practically any hat. This may be a fact, yet personally I have found that by wearing glasses continually while at work I can dispense with them outside, and instead use a tortoise! These, by the way, are becoming very fashionable since the Duchess of York has been seen using them on several occasions.

Physiologists are necessary for the eyes as well as the rest of us, for many grownups do not use their eye muscles sufficiently, and these are apt to become very fixed, and stiff. Just as an experiment try a few eye exercises every night and morning, rolling your eyes round and round and quickly from side to side.

After a few weeks of this you will be pleasantly surprised to find that your sight is improving a good deal; this is due to the fact that each muscle which has been brought into play by the exercises is taking up its fair share of the work of the eye, instead of, as previously happened, leaving it all to the main muscles.

If residing in bed is one of the luxuries you appreciate, it will hurt you so long as you have a light which enables you to read comfortably without having to look crossways at your book, thereby causing undue strain on one eye. A bed light fixed just above the bed behind you will give the best light for this purpose.

A Morning Smile

The musical comedy was not doing particularly good business, and the temper of the company suffered accordingly. Relations became somewhat strained between the "star," no longer youthful, and certain members of the chorus.

"There came a knock at the "star's" door.

"Who is it, and what do you want?" she demanded sharply.

"There's a lady in front who would very much like to see you. She says she was a chum of yours when you were at school. Shall I show her in?"

From the corridor came the voice of a chorus girl, "Wheel her in!"

HAVE Digestive Troubles?

IF you're troubled with stomach distress, gas, and your blood needs enriching there's nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Mr. W. J. Fisher, 398 Hunter St. W., Hamilton, Ont., said: "I suffered from catarrh of the stomach, could eat but very little and that would cause distress. I grew weaker daily and had headache almost constantly. I became very much discouraged. After taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I was soon able to eat naturally, gain weight and strength and was able to resume my work."

THE COOK'S CORNER

FRUIT ROLL

1/2 cup chopped dates
1/2 cup chopped walnut meats
1 cup crushed pineapple
1/4 cup maraschino cherries, chopped

2 level tablespoons cornstarch.
Rich baking powder biscuit dough.
Drain enough pineapple juice from crushed fruit to add to cornstarch to make a smooth paste. Combine ingredients and cook slowly until thickened and clear, stirring frequently.

Roll rich baking powder biscuit dough to 6 inches width, by about 12 inches in length and 1/4 inch thickness. Spread with the cooled fruit mixture, and roll as for cinnamon rolls. Place on baking sheet and bake in a moderately hot oven (400 deg. F.) for 25 minutes. To serve, cut in slices, while hot, and serve a good pudding sauce with it.

If desired, this may be cut in slices, before baking, then baked in well-buttered muffin tins—to make appetizing little cakes.

Any stewed or fresh fruit pulp may be used in place of pineapple.

FILLED GINGERBREAD

1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup molasses
2 1/2 cups sifted cake or pastry flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking soda
1 1/2 teaspoons ground cloves
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 cup hot water
2 three-ounce packages cream cheese

1/4 cup top milk
1 cup pitted dates, cut fine
1/2 cup chopped walnut meats

Cream the shortening, add the sugar gradually while blending. Add the egg and molasses. Then add the dry ingredients, sifted together and the hot water alternately, and mix well. Bake in two greased and floured eight-inch layer-cake pans in a moderate oven or 375 deg. F. for 30 to 36 minutes, or until done. Mix the cream cheese, milk, dates and nutmeats, and spread between the layers.

Itching, Burning Pimples All Over Face and Neck. Cuticura Healed.

"I had little pimples that were itching and burning all over my face and neck. Some of the pimples scaled over, while others festered and were scattered all over my face. My skin was red and tender in spots as big as a twenty-five cent piece, and the pimples hurt terribly. I did not go anywhere.

"This lasted over nine months and then I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using, there was an improvement so I bought more, and in fifteen days I was free of the horrible suffering." (Signed) Andrew Skolny, Birds Hill, Manitoba, Feb. 22, 1935.

Sample each Soap, Ointment and Talcum free. Address Canadian Dept. Lyman Agencies, Limited, 286 St. Paul Street, W., Montreal.

Has Life Gipped You? Suggests New Way Of Looking At It

Dorothy Dix

Why Rail at Fate Because It Has Not Brought You Everything You Desire?—All of Us Know Sorrow and Disappointment, But We All Know Joy, Too, And We Are Happy or Discontented According to Our Own Reactions

An elderly woman who had experienced all the ups and downs of fortune said to me not long ago that she was glad not to have missed anything in life. She had known riches and poverty, good health and sickness, love and the betrayal of love. She had enjoyed over the babe on her breast and agonized over her dead, and out of all the turmoil, out of all the laughing and the weeping she had got some knowledge, some thrill that she had made it worthwhile.

It seems to me that this woman is very wise and I wish that she could pass her philosophy on to the multitude of discontented and peevish people who are railing at fate because it has not given them every good thing they desire, and so are missing all the fun of the great adventure through which they are passing.

For life is how we take it. We get out of it just what we put into it and it is drab or gay, dull or exciting, interesting or boring, sweet or bitter, as we make it. The outward circumstances have almost nothing to do with our happiness in life, since no one can be born so high as to be above the reach of sorrow. No palace walls can be built so thick that they shut out misfortune. No money can buy the things that every heart craves most, love and sympathy and understanding. Nor can all the wealth of the Indies bribe disease and death to keep away from our doors.

When you come down to the essentials, life gives us all pretty much the same materials to work with and it is up to us to make out of it what we will. The average human being is born, gets married, begets children, works, and out of this common experience some get tragedy and others bliss.

Take marriage, for instance, which either makes or mars the happiness of all who enter into it. The husband and wife who love each other, who find their highest delight in being together and who make a peaceful home, live in the nearest approach to Paradise that each gives, while the disgruntled husband and wife who hate each other and whose home is a place of quarrelling and strife live in an earthly hell. Yet marriage imposes the same burdens and restrictions and calls for the same sacrifices on both.

It was just the way they took it. One couple took marriage on the chin, so to speak. They put their hearts and their backs and their brains into making marriage succeed. They adjusted themselves to each other. For the privilege of being together they sacrificed the excitement of outside affairs. They deliberately set themselves to find contentment in their home.

The other couple expected a miracle to happen that would make their marriage a success without any effort on their part. The man resented having to spend his money on household bills instead of his own pleasure. The woman wasn't willing to be tied down to a house and make a comfortable home. The man thought he had a right to indulge in little flirtations on the side. The wife wanted to step out with other men. And when selfishness clashed with selfishness the marriage went into the discard.

And there are children, who are little angels or brats according to the way you take them. All children are just the same—noisy, troublesome. Other millions of men pity themselves for being slaves to their jobs. Fathers and mothers who live their lives over in their children and who are far prouder of their sons' and daughters' successes than they ever are of their own.

There are parents to whom they are nothing but a nuisance. You hear fathers and mothers who are always complaining about their cost and about how they upset things and how they are tied down at home by the babies, and who never get anything but worry out of their youngsters.

But there are other parents to whom their children make the whole meaning of life. There are mothers who get more of a kick out of their babies' arms around their necks than they do out of a string of matched pearls. Fathers who would rather be met, of an evening by a toddling child than by a brass band. Fathers and mothers who think that nothing else in the world is so interesting as watching a little child's mind unfold. Fathers and mothers who live their lives over in their children and who are far prouder of their sons' and daughters' successes than they ever are of their own.

And there is work, which is either a curse or a blessing, according to the way you take it. Millions of women rail at the monotony of housework. Millions of men pity themselves for being slaves to their jobs. Other millions of women think that making a home is the finest career on earth and their daily labor is a labor of love. Other millions of men find excitement, adventure, romance, everything that makes life worth living in their work.

So life is just how you take it. You write your own price tag.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Use a large safety pin when running tape, ribbon or elastic through a hem, as this will not unthread, as a draw needle has a habit of doing.

If you want the baked ham to have a glazed appearance, baste it with some left-over sweetened fruit juice. This will also improve the flavor.

If you dip the corners of sheets, pillow cases, towels, napkins, etc. into a strong solution of salt and water they will not freeze to the washline.

Men who work around their cars are apt to get grease on their shirtsleeves and sometimes this shrinks the table linen. Rub butter on the stains and let them soak in old water fifteen minutes, wash out with soap and the stains will disappear.

If the hot-water radiator is cool even when the furnace is burning hard, there is more than likely some air in it. Turn the valve with a radiator key and hold a cup over the valve. Let it stay on until water comes through, then turn off. The radiator must be full of water and contain no air to do its full duty.

TOUCHES OF TULLE FOR THE EVENING

It happens occasionally that by the time the new spring suiting or frocking has been acquired with all its essential accessories, there is little or nothing over for new evening effects. This is the moment for transformation scenes, and this year's fashions contain many details which can be adapted in order to turn an old frock into a new one.

Sleeves, for instance, can either match or make contrast with the dress. They may be airy and frilly if they are in tulle, or long and draped and graceful if they are in lame or blistered crepe.

A cape or a coat or a combination of the two in tulle or, in some cases, in chiffon can create an utterly new appearance, so can a complete tulle over-dress flung over a simply cut frock of taffeta or satin, moire or crepe.

Black tulle lined with white tulle is lovely for women to whom black and white is the kindest of combinations; cornflower blue and lettuce green are both very good colors in tulle.

Tulle scarves are pleasant things to play with, too—very long ones, with rows and rows of frills, so that you can fling them across the front of your neck and let them hang down the back like two trains.

Keeping Point

If a can of paint has been partly used, and it is not wished to cover the can securely, stir the paint thoroughly, then fill to the top with water. When needed pour off the water very carefully.

:- FASHIONS FOR SPRING :-

A posture gives emphasis to the cool caped shoulders, so utterly feminine and smart. You'll like the square cut of the neckline.

This dainty sheer cotton lawn dress is very effective in new looking print, that combine red, grey and white. Finish the edge of the sleeve frills with picot (done professionally) or roll the edges, if you prefer.

Other fascinating mediums are children finished voile prints, striped or tiny checked handkerchief linen, tub pastel silks, etc.

Nature Builds Your Body—

but you supply the materials.

Health suffers if you run short of iron

Your food and drink are the only materials Nature gets to maintain your bodily strength and well-being. But the tragedy of modern foods is their shortage of iron. Sooner or later this has an effect upon the health. It causes, at first, a run-down condition and simple anemia; then develops into serious ailments, if not checked.

40 out of 45 people in a recent test were short of iron

One month's treatment helped them back to health and vigour

A tiny drop of blood from each individual in the above group was examined under a powerful microscope. In every instance the blood was thinner and paler than it should have been, due to the shortage of iron. The authority who conducted the tests recorded the exact amount of the shortage for each person, then put every one of them on a 30-day treatment. The preparation he gave them was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills (called pink because they have a pink sugar coating). Then in one month they returned and their blood was examined again.

like to eat well, sleep soundly, take a keen interest in life around you? ... Then put yourself on a 30-day treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Directly you begin taking this reliable old preparation, the reconstructive process will start. The blood will grow richer ... will carry more vitality ... and your own feelings will react pleasantly. Old aches and old days will give way to new vigor and brighter outlook an life. You will know once again the joy of possessing that priceless treasure ... health! Full size box 50c.
