USES BOTH HANDS TO WRITE

Letter From a Man of 90

He asks us to excuse his writing. We do more than that — we congratulate him on being able to write at all at his age, especially as he has been suffering from rheumatism. This is what he says in his letter:—

"Three years ago I was in bed for six weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. Since that time I have been taking Kruschen Salts, and have not had another attack. But the complaint left me with inflamed feet, and it hurt me to walk. My hands were also somewhat stiff. I took Kruschen every morning before breakfast, and shall continue to do so because I am sure they have kept me in good shape for three years. Excuse this writing, as I am ninety years old, and use both hands to write." — J.R.G.

The pain and stiffness of rheumatism are often caused by uric acid in the muscles and joints. Kruschen helps to dissolve and remove excess uric acid in a gentle way through the natural channels. Renewed health and vigor is the result.

machine, since the last election, of $51.

A hoy mower costing $96 in 1935 Mr. Kennedy continued, cost $106.50 in 1936, and by 1938 the price had increased to $116.50, a total increase of $19.50.

Again, he showed, the farmer who paid $179 for a manure spreader in 1936 had to pay $189 for this machine in 1936 and last year the price went up to $205, a total increase under the Liberals of $26.

These increases, Mr. Kennedy said, were equivalent to from 14½ to 23¾ per cent.

To the claim made that material costs more today and that the manufacturers are not profiting, Mr. Kennedy cited from the annual report of one big machinery company, which showed in 1937 net profits of $32,493,000 as against $19,618,000 in 1936. "Each year since the King Government came into power," he declared, "the profits have been greater.

"Is it any wonder," he asked, "that even Liberal members in the Western Province are up in arms against this state of affairs, and demanding action at Ottawa to obtain lower farm implement prices?"

Mr. Roland Beaton, the next speaker, thanked all his supporters and urged them to give the same loyal support to Mr. Kennedy in the election contest.

Hon. Dr. MacMillan

Hon. Dr. MacMillan, who was given a rousing ovation, congratulated the convention on its democratic procedure and on their selection of candidates, to whom he paid a warm personal tribute. He also commended the political record of Mr. Wood and congratulated Mr. Beaton on the respectable vote he obtained on his first appearance in the field. Dr. Farmer's withdrawal from the contest, he said, was necessitated by his large practice and the fact that his health might be endangered by adding further to his duties at this time.

Indorsing Mr. Kennedy's comments on farm machinery prices, Dr. MacMillan recalled that Premier Bennett, when in power, had made an agreement with the manufacturers that in return for tariff protection they must keep down their prices to the farmers. As a result there was no price increase under the Conservatives. The King Government lowered the duties but failed to insure against price increases, with disastrous consequences so far as the purchaser—the farmer—was concerned.

Discussing provincial financing and the broken election pledges of the Campbell Government, Dr. MacMillan predicted that bad as was the showing made last year, the coming session of the Legislature would show a still worse state of affairs. Indeed, it was not unlikely that for last year alone there would be an increase in the public debt of about a million dollars.

Hon. Mr. LePage's "salary grab" of about $1,000 a year for acting as chairman of the Executive Council—work which Premiers had done in other years for nothing—was denounced as an unjustifiable expenditure, as was also the $200 paid him as a member of the Treasury Board. This latter position, the speaker showed, should only be occupied by portfolio holders in the Cabinet, and should be done without extra remuneration.

Dr. MacMillan also denounced the appointment of three Legislative members to the Fishermen's Loan Board. "I believe that if I went outside the Legislature myself I could get three decent Grits to administer that Board," he said. "Why did they have to take these jobs for themselves, and give $500 to the Executive Council President for acting as chairman?"

Another member of the Board, Mr. Acorn, had furnished the plans for fish houses for nothing. "But the question is, who supplied the lumber that went into those houses?" said the speaker amid applause.

The "travelling expenses" of the same member were also referred to.

Dr. MacMillan also dealt with the federal neglect of fishermen's interests, pointing out that a vote of half a million dollars for the Maritime fisheries had been allowed to lie unused in the treasury. Our fishermen should have got at least $50,000 of this amount, if our members in Parliament had shown any initiative in the matter.

The speaker referred to the confession of Agricultural Minister Gardiner in Parliament that the Government's wheat bonusing policy—involving a loss to the taxpayers of some $48,000,000—had been a "mistake", and contrasted this extravagance with the difficulty our farmers in this province have had to obtain federal consideration.

He scored the secrecy enveloping the administration of the Prohibition Act under the present regime, and other dictatorial measures including withholding right of appeal to the courts under the Road Act, and the expropriation measures in connection with the National Park. He charged that Liberal landowners received preferred treatment and that the situation was at variance with every principle of British democracy.

Stressing the need of preparedness on the part of the Conservatives, Dr. MacMillan said he had received information that Premier Campbell was anxious to bring the provincial election on before the King Government went to the country. "He may be overruled by some of his colleagues, but if the Premier himself can have his way, we will have an early election."

Dr. MacMillan concluded, amid applause, by expressing complete confidence as to the outcome at the polls.

Mr. G. S. Sharp

Mr. G. Shelton Sharp, called upon, said he too had been informed that the Premier was desirous of calling an early election, sometime in May, before the road jobs are given out.

Mr. Sharp was very optimistic regarding Conservative prospects. He paid a warm tribute to the leadership shown by Dr. MacMillan and his independence, while in office, in fighting for the rights of the Province.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

INVESTIGATION

ed to one photograph which he said showed a hole in a chimney about 10 feet above the debris left by the fire.

He had examined the point at which furnace pipes entered the chimney by a hole in a concrete block. In the block was "a piece of metal pipe, fitted tightly and in good condition."

The fourth witness, Weaver, told investigators there were no ropes (for use as fire escapes) in the hotel rooms. Earlier, Desmond had been unable to say whether there were ropes in the rooms. He could not say if there were one in his own room.

Blaze Extinguished

Weaver told of extinguishing the fire in the sink closet. A Mr. Putnam, a guest, had called him reporting smoke. He went upstairs and searched for fire. Then he called Desmond from bed. They discovered the blaze and put it out with extinguishers.

Bouffard had gone upstairs in the elevator previous to the early outbreak, the clerk said. The fireman had been running the elevator, and although he knew of his dismissal, Weaver said he did not speak to him because "he feared he (Bouffard) might start a row." After they had extinguished the blaze the clerk said he came downstairs and found Bouffard asleep in the lobby.

Bouffard gave evidence on his actions the day before the fire. He came back to the hotel at 4 p. m. to get his pay. He also received a notice saying he was "through on March 15." He took this to Desmond. He quoted Desmond as saying he had orders to fire him. He told Desmond he would "see Mr. Simon (of the Queen Hotel Company, Limited.)

He had seen Sydney Simon, a member of the Simon family, who had told him he would investigate the matter of his dismissal. Then he had "started to celebrate."

"Drank Firewater"

He had supper but "instead of drinking tea I drank the vendor's fire water." After he had a "date" he had seen Desmond whom he told he would expect to be paid up until March 15.

Desmond had said earlier he had given the fireman two weeks notice but later in the day he had dismissed him summarily.

"What happened then?" Major Roper asked. "That's where the puzzle starts," Bouffard said.

The fireman said he remembered visiting the room of "a certain guest," for whom he had gone out to get a doctor and some medicine.

Bouffard did not remember what time he went to bed in his room near the furnace room. He recalled waking up and feeling "seedy."

A drink of water had disagreed with him so he went up to the lobby for some ginger ale. He was fully dressed, he said.

"Smelled Smoke"

On the way back to his room he had smelled smoke. "I didn't pay much attention because it was an everyday occurrence. But I couldn't see the smoke and it struck me funny."

He heard Charlie Capps, who had replaced him, working in the furnace room. He awakened Arthur Caldwell, another fireman with whom he shared the room, and told him there was "something queer."

Bouffard said he started upstairs but he "couldn't get any further." He had seen smoke and flame through a partition. He had shouted to Capps to ring in an alarm and had then saved a radio and a seabag from his room.

He took them out to a courtyard at the back of the hotel. There he said he saw guests throwing out bags and suitcases to him. He remembered helping persons at the foot of the fire escapes.

He said he believed the fire which he saw was "right in the room above the boiler room."

Questioned by Col Wright, Bouffard replied he could not say what caused the fire. Nor could he remember if he had been in the closet of the second floor.

Weaver, 21-year-old, clerk who had worked in the hotel for two years, said while he was investigating the early outbreak he had found a system tank on the fourth floor had been turned on and water was running out. He had not thought much of it because he was attending to the fire. It had been turned off by Miss Amanda Hubley, the housekeeper, later reported missing.

After the sink closet fire, Weaver went upstrairs to make inspections every half hour. He discovered no further fires.

Called Firement

It was 40 minutes after Bouffard finished his ginger ale and went downstairs that Weaver noticed smoke. He went back to the switchboard and called the fire department.

Then a light on the board flashed, indicating room number 253 was calling. "I plugged in and shouted fire. Then I plugged in a few more but couldn't get any response." He was unable to get upstairs to warn the sleeping guests. (Police records showed room number 253 was occupied by W. H. Lennos of Moncton, N. B.)

"Missed" Inspection Rounds

Bouffard said typewritten instructions were placed in the boiler room, stating firemen had to make the rounds of the hotel every hour. He said he had not always done this. "I know I missed a few visits."

But he said he could swear he went through the house "twice a night."

"That rule was honored more in the breach than in the observance, then," remarked Major Roper.

"I'm sorry to say that it was," replied Bouffard.

The fireman recalled that potatoes had been stored in the basement of the hotel. He said two or three men worked four or five days to cart them in. He remembered that four or five truckloads had been taken out later. Bouffard said some of the bags were wet. There were no windows in one place where the potatoes were stored and the room was heated.

HON, DAVID

portfolio in the Bell Government.

He was defeated in 1923 and re-elected in 1927. He became Minister without portfolio in the Saunders Government in 1927 and resigned from the Cabinet to become Speaker on March 20, 1928.

At subsequent elections he did not nominate as a candidate though he continued to give active support to the Liberal party.

Mr. MacDonald was Census Commissioner for Queens County in 1901 and 1911, and Chairman of the Advisory Committee of the Soldiers' Settlement Board.

He was appointed chairman of the Old Age Pension Commission in 1935 and had held that office at the time of his death.

As representative, as a member of the Government and as Speaker of the House he discharged his responsible duties ably and faithfully. Although he did not speak frequently in the Legislature, his practical knowledge of agriculture, his intelligent and sympathetic understanding of the needs of the people, and his sound judgment proved of great value to the Government.

A man of the highest honour and integrity, a worthy descendant of his Scotch pioneering forbears, he was held in high esteem by people irrespective of their religious or political views, and his geniality and kindliness won for him many warm friends.

He was the last surviving member of his family, which included the late Rev. Father John J. MacDonald, who for many years was beloved parish priest at Kinkora, and subsequently at Summerside.

The late Hon. Mr. MacDonald was twice married, first in 1894 to Mary J. MacIntyre, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh MacIntyre, Clermont, P.E.I.

In 1924 he married Mary MacDorald, who survives him. She is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. J. MacDonald of Vernon.

To the bereaved relatives the Guardian extends its deepest sympathy.

Mr. MacDonald will be laid to rest on Thursday in Fort Augustus cemetery, following the service to be held in St. Patrick's Church there beginning at 9 o'clock a.m.

The capture of the fifth plane and the story of Negrin's escape were disclosed by a Spanish official who reached Toulouse in one of the four planes. He said he could not state who the captured leaders were.

When General Segismundo Casado and his military defence council seized power in Madrid Sunday night, Negrin and his ministers fled from the capital toward Albacete, 140 miles to the southeast, the official related.

had lectured the opposition for holding up government business and was now proposing to shut off discussion on private members' proposals which were more important than the government measures before the House.

Such "futile arguments," he said, led to stirring up of feeling against democracy," to the Leadership League of George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail, and to the "New Demagogism" of Hon. W. D. Herridge, former Canadian Minister to Washington.

Characterizing Mr. MacKenzie King's plea for progress in the session as "clap trap and humbug," the Conservative Leader challenged the Government to introduce some important legislation touching the problems of youth, unemployment, debt and taxation.

Attacks Stand Of N. B. Government On Constitution

FREDERICTON, March 7—(CP)—Expressing himself as strongly opposed to the Provincial Government's constitutional stand, but in accord with its other policies, W. W. V. Foster (Lib., Kings) told the New Brunswick Legislature today there was a pressing need for amendments to the British North America Act.

"We must have national unity in this country if we are going to progress," he declared. "National unity as a nation cannot be achieved under the doctrine of provincial sovereignty. There is only one sovereignty in this nation and not nine. We cannot afford to 'Balkanize' Canada."

In decrying the doctrine of provincial sovereignty he took a stand exactly opposite to that of the Liberal Government when it presented New Brunswick's case to the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations last spring and criticized bluntly this policy of Hon. A. P. Paterson, minister of education, and federal and municipal relations, and Attorney-General McNair.

In this, but not in other respects, he lined himself up with H. F. G. Bridges (Lib. Restigouche) former speaker of the house, who attacked Dr. Paterson for his references to "this thing called Canada."

Develop Defence In Gas Attack

(By The Canadian Press)

LONDON, March 7 — Sir John Anderson, Lord Privy Seal and minister for civilian defence, in an address tonight said British research had developed an almost perfect defence against gas attack.

He declined to enlarge on the statement other than to say "protection against gas has been developed to a point which perhaps means that it is rather unlikely that gas will ever be used."

"We have turned our attention to the problem of incendiary bombs," Sir John said. "We have set about organizing auxiliary fire services throughout the country."

ANSWER TO HEART DISEASE QUEST NEARER

"Abdominal Brain" Operations Offer Hope To Many, Surgeon Declares.

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH
Associated Press Science Writer

ATLANTA, Ga., March 7 — An operation on the "abdominal brain" of the body was declared today by Dr. George Crile, Cleveland, Ohio, to offer hope of saving the lives of thousands of persons suffering from heart trouble.

The abdominal brain is a mass of nerve fibres known as the celiac ganglion lying just below the lower end of the breast bone. It controls the action of the heart, digestion, blood pressure, the glands, lungs, many nerves, and to some extent the activity of the head brain. It also governs the circulation of blood in the 62,000 miles of blood vessels within the human body.

Over-activity of this lower brain is largely the cause of high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, angina pectoris, and other heart ailments because it is the "powerhouse" of the body, Dr. Crile told the Southeastern Surgical Congress.

The operation on it to relieve these conditions is now new. It consists of cutting many of the nerve fibres running to the heart and other organs to break the circuits of electrical stimulus from the celiac ganglion to them, thus slowing down their activity.

However, the Cleveland surgeon said, "I believe that its general application is the answer to the colossal problem of heart disease in the United States.

"The most necessary factor in reducing heart disease mortality is to find these cases in early life, just as we try to catch cancer and appendicitis in their early stages," Dr. Crile said. "When we can do this I feel sure that thousands of lives can be saved by prompt surgical procedure on the celiac ganglion."

Remarking that he "would much prefer to have cancer than heart disease," the Cleveland surgeon added that in most cases the operation has brought about "almost miraculous results" in the relief of heart pains, stopping of chronic headaches, and elimination of the general weakness and exhaustion characteristic of various forms of the disease.

Radio Committee Rejects Motion

(By The Canadian Press)

OTTAWA, March 7— Governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation will not be asked to produce sections of their minutes before the Parliamentary Radio Broadcasting Committee, that committee decided today by a 7-5 vote.

Two hours of intense argument on the point resulted in support of the principle endorsed last year by the committee that the minutes of an autonomous body such as the C.B.C. should not be made public.

In this year's instance, the production motion by Hon. Earl Lawson (Con. York South) was aimed solely at those parts of the Board of Governors' which dealt with the Governors' determination of policy prohibiting use of the C.B.C. networks for the broadcasting of opinion or propaganda, especially as they applied to the denial of network facilities to George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail.

Kensington And Vicinity

Miss Louise Compton is enjoying a pleasant holiday with her mother in St. Eleanors.

The Kensington Girl Guide Troop accompanied by fellow members of troops from Borden, Summerside and Ellersile, enjoyed a hike to Margate on Saturday afternoon. The rosy cheeks and pleasant smiles shown by all on their return, proved the hike was a decided success.

Mr. Edward McDonald was a business visitor to Summerside on Saturday.

The Kensington bantam hockey team minus three of their regulars motored to Summerside on Saturday morning and arrived home on the short end of a 6 to 1 score. The boys, however, were completely satisfied, for on the round score they still held a comfortable margin. They were well pleased with the reception given them by the Summerside boys and hope to make them another visit providing ice conditions are satisfactory, in the near future.

A number of our young men motored to Summerside on Saturday evening where they enjoyed a two-hour session of bowling on the Capitol Alleys. Somewhat out of practice, there were no exceptionally high scores.

The mild weather of the last few days has taken the most of the snow and ice in this vicinity, the pavement from Kensington to Summerside being practically all bare.

As usual on Saturday evening a great many from this vicinity motored to Summerside where they attended and enjoyed the motion picture "Penrod's Double Trouble," which was being shown at the Capitol Theatre.

His many friends are pleased to see Mr. Angus Webber back on the job after his recent illness. H
