ABANDONED BARGE YIELDS FINE COAL
SALVAGERS SPEED TO CHARLESTOWN BEACHWAY BY LAND AND SEA TO SECURE SHARE OF 800 TON CARGO ON ABANDONED SHIP
 (Canadian Press)
 PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 16.—A coal mine drifted up on Charlestown beachway recently and the countryside dwellers for miles along the shore are speeding by land and sea to get their winter's supply for the furnaces. For seventeen years the barge Rita Howard ploughed through the seas, safe and secure at the end of a tow line. But one day her tow line snapped and helplessly and wallowing, she beached hard and fast near Charlestown, never to go to sea again. She was laden with 800 tons hard coal worth $12,000 and now the coal is there for the taking. The barge itself was valued at $5,000.
 For a time the owner, the Howard Line, 1 Broadway, New York, held hopes that the barge, which was en route from Kingston, N. Y., to Providence, could be refloated and the residents in the vicinity held off, hoping that the vessel would be abandoned.
 Finally the company decided that any effort to float the barge would be hopeless, and when the word went round, salvagers sprang into action. They came from Green Hill, Charlestown, Quonochontaug and even as far as Westerly, 12 or more miles distant, and they came by land and sea—in touring cars and trucks and boats.
 Wise to the ways of salvaging, they came prepared, bringing large burlap bags with them. And while the Rita Howard lay broadside on the beach, held by the cargo that they wanted, the waves beating against her, the mast that carried her riding light forlorn against the sky, there was feverish action going on aboard her. The salvagers dug into her well filled holds and they quickly filled their burlap bags. The filled bags were placed in row boats bobbing in the water around the barge and transferred from there to the beach, where men in hip boots carried them on their backs to automobiles and trucks on the sandy road some distance from the beach.
 Many of those who boarded the stranded barge with the burlap bags live in outlying sections and some of them usually burn wood entirely in the winter, but now they will have coal, and plenty of it, just for the taking.

SLEEP ON BOUNDARY
 (Canadian Press)
 KENTVILLE, N. S., Nov. 16.—Where should a man pay his taxes, where the upper part of his body resides or where his weary lower limbs rest at night? A year ago H. J. Norman purchased a property back of the Nova Scotia Sanatorium, formerly owned by Benjamin Jones. Mr. Jones had always paid his taxes to Kentville. Mr. Norman however, unaware of this fact, when he received a tax bill from the municipality of Kings, forwarded payment. Great, therefore, was his surprise to find in his mail another tax bill for the same property from the town of Kentville. Mr. Norman had John Neville, Superintendent of streets, make a survey of the property. As a result it is found that the town line includes one-quarter of the house and two thirds of the entire property, the balance going to the municipality. But Mr. Neville's survey also reveals that the line cuts Norman's bed right in the middle. Therefore he sleeps half in Kentville and half in the municipality. The council finally decided to leave it to the town clerk, the clerk of the municipality and Mr. Norman to find a solution.
 The vast flooded districts along the Yangtze River in China have made nearly 50,000,000 people homeless. The winters in the Yangtze Valley are bitterly cold, and if the undernourished and weakened refugees are not provided with even primitive shelters, the death-toll, it is expected, will be enormous.

Tribute To Late Wm. V. Newson
 The Edmonton papers devoted considerable space to the death and funeral of the late William V. Newson, Deputy Treasurer for the Province of Alberta, who died on Friday, October 30th.
 The Journal states that he was known as an exceedingly capable member of the government staff and stood high among Canadian financial experts, having been closely in touch with the leading brokerage houses in Canada and the United States through a negotiation of provincial bond issues since 1911.
 Then follows a sketch of his career. Mr. Newson being born in Charlottetown on Oct. 17, 1877, a son of John Newson and Elizabeth Ann Hutcheson Newson. He received his early education at West Kent School, graduated from the Prince of Wales College and McGill University, receiving from the latter a B. A. and M. Sc., degrees. He gained a fellowship in the Chicago University in 1901 and then became principal of West Kent School, of Charlottetown, remaining there until 1905 when he came to Edmonton.
 During the first year of his residence in Edmonton he was Science Master at Alberta College and then joined the provincial government service. From 1906 to 1911 he was assistant to the Provincial Auditor and then became deputy provincial Treasurer, holding that position until his death.

He was superintendent of insurance from 1911 until a few years ago.
 Mr. Newson was active in the Canadian Authors' Association and was President of the Edmonton branch in 1929-30. He was the author of two books of poetry, "A Vale in Luxor" and "Wails of the Mind".
 He was a member of the Masonic Order and President of the Charlottetown Teachers' Association in 1903-04. He was a prominent horticulturist and at last flower show in Edmonton took many prizes, principally in gladioli and roses.
 Keen personal regret was expressed by Premier Brownlee, who paid the following tribute: "Mr. Newson's illness had come very suddenly and his death is a great shock to all his friends in the Civil Service, as well as to members of the government. For many years he held the important position of Deputy Treasurer during which he at all times showed himself not only a devoted servant of the public but a man of high ability. All who came in contact with him, whether representing the general public or financial institutions with which he had to deal, testify that Mr. Newson stood in the front rank among financial men. His death, especially coming at a time of such difficulty will be a heavy loss to the province."
 The funeral of Mr. Newson was held on Monday, Nov. 2nd from the Metropolitan United Church, South Side, to the Edmonton Cemetery. Truly representative of the city's varied life was the large congregation that filled the church to pay their last respects to Mr. Newson who in his large sphere as Deputy Provincial Treasurer played a leading role in shaping the final destiny of Alberta, and in his lesser activities as poet, horticulturist and agriculturist, had won a wide circle of friends whose complete affection and esteem he enjoyed.
 The service which was simple in the extreme, was under the direction of Rev. W. Hollingsworth, pastor of the Metropolitan United Church, and Rev. Dr. A. S. Tuttle, principal of St. Stephen College.
 In the congregation were representatives of the government, which Mr. Newson had served faithfully, leading financial houses, civic administrations, and those drawn from practically every other calling. The front of the church was banked with scores of floral pieces.
 Dr. Tuttle in his funeral address pointed out that while Mr. Newson was highly regarded as a financial expert he was not completely absorbed by his business, reserving time for devotion to the higher and better things of life.
 Ivanhoe Lodge A. F. and A. M., of which Mr. Newson was a member, had charge of service. Scores of other city Masons also attended the funeral, and the graveside services were conducted by C. A. Davison, Past Grand Master of the Alberta Masons, who funeral procession was one of the most lengthy in the history of Edmonton.

Tribute to Mr. Newson
 The following beautiful tribute was written by Mrs. Baker, wife of Hon. Perrin Baker, Minister of Education.
 Sir—Edmonton is poorer, much poorer, today, because the gentle spirit of W. V. Newson has faded forth on its last great journey. How I shall miss him and I am only one of the hundreds who will feel his going as a personal loss, a personal grief. A human contact that was beautiful, satisfying, almost inspiring, has been broken.
 It is not often that one finds the aesthetic and the practical combined as it was in him. Efficient, well informed, highly trusted man of business he was, but he was more, much more, than that. Watching him at work among his flowers, I have often felt that only those who knew his philosophy of beauty could know his real nature. He saw beauty and translated its language into words all might read.
 To pass from the street into the garden behind his home was to forget the ills of the world and to know that somewhere, somehow, there is a purpose in nature worked out by Divine Power and Love.
 His gentle spirit, his busy hands, found, and revealed; beauty and the world is truly a better, happier place because he lived and worked in it.
 In one of his poems, "In a Rose Garden," published last year, there is this verse:
 "What march of beauty lumes the past!
 What ancestry and line
 Drives to this perfect form, this last
 One flower that bends its vine
 Beside my garden path. One knows
 God's tenderest mood did make the rose."
 Perhaps so, and I am inclined to think that surely "God in His tenderest mood" created the lovely, gentle spirit of W. V. Newson, and I know, that just as his rose garden was filled with beauty and fragrance, so will memories of him, rich, fragrant memories, linger throughout the years with those who called him friend.—Yours,
 Edna Brown Baker.

ALBERTON
 A great number of people from the town and vicinity partook of the delicious chicken supper which was held in the church hall under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of the United Church on Thursday of last week. The pleasing sum of sixty dollars was realized.
 Mrs. Lynn Leard of Hillsriver returned last week to her home after a pleasant sojourn in the city.
 Mr. Stewart Weir of the C. N. R. at Souris spent the week end with his parents Rev. A. S. and Mrs. Weir of this town.
 Mrs. C. R. Leard and Miss Edith England were motor visitors to O'Leary on Saturday.
 Mr. Jack Purdy son of Dr. A. L. and Mrs. Purdy left Monday for Toronto where he will enter upon a position.
 Mrs. (Dr.) LePurgey spent several days with relatives and friends in Rose Valley last week.—A.
 Because of bad weather and cochylis flies, very little or no champagne will be made in France this year. There is still, however, plenty of wine left from former years in the cellars of Rheims to supply the world without fear of a serious shortage.
 And now—how short a space—he's gone away!
 Perhaps you knew him? Then, you knew a man.
 Nor cold or forward—just a kindly soul
 That people loved—yet him would I extol
 For one big trait that placed him in the van.
 Of Princes of his kind—he slanders none;
 In that great trespass never played a part,
 Nor winged a barb to wound another's heart,
 Nor took his good name despoiled; and thus he won
 Respect and friends, though to the last he strove
 But little for that golden treasure-trove.
 In the foreword to this Ryerson Press Chap Book, Magistrate Emily Murphy has clearly placed the writer among the finest poets in Alberta. She speaks of him as one of the notable exceptions among commercially minded poets, in that, while he has been deputy provincial treasurer for many years, he is also a poet who writes poems that are fraught with musical meaning, delicate pathos and an imagination full and picturesque. "All are marked by a warmth of susceptibility to the beautiful," she says.

CUTTING THE DOLE
 By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer
 LONDON, Nov. 16.—Great Britain is pruning its army of married women who have been receiving the dole. Throughout industrial England thousands of married women who have no prospect of returning to their former or indeed any occupation, have been disqualified by local courts of referees. In Sheffield alone, 2,500 women out of 3,000 have been disqualified.
 Twenty thousand other Sheffield workers will appear shortly before the local public relief committees to prove their absence of any means before being entitled to public assistance.
 Cuts in the dole and other relief already initiated in the Tyne-side district in northern England is expected to represent a saving of $250,000 yearly.

Boy Emperor In Hiding
 By Glen Babb, Associated Press Staff Correspondent
 (Copyright 1931, by the Associated Press)
 MUKDEN, Manchuria, Nov. 16.—Henry Pu-Yi, who as Hsuan Tung once was China's boy emperor, was thought to be hiding in the Mukden home of one of the numerous Manchu Princes tonight, but chances of a rumored monarchist restoration seemed remote.
 Inquiries in Japanese and Chinese quarters alike failed to confirm the rumors that he had returned secretly to the capital of his fathers to be enthroned as monarch of the Manchurian realm, independent of Peiping and Nanking.
 He might be seeking personal safety, instead of a throne, it was suggested by some sources.
 Commenting on the monarchist rumors, Count Yasuya Uchida, president of the South Manchurian railway, said plans of Chinese authorities for reestablishment of peace and order in Manchuria contained no place for the youthful Mr. Pu-Yi.

 The two leaders circled the field on entering the stretch and then staged a great duel for the purse of $22,960. Five lengths back in third place trailed A. C. Schwartz's Clock Tower, the favorite. A. C. Bostwick's Mate, slated to make an at-

Beautiful Epitaph
 The Journal also publishes the following beautiful epitaph written by the late Mr. Newson:
 The passing of the late Mr. W. V. Newson, Deputy Provincial Treasurer, is being keenly felt in literary circles as well as in the government and by hundreds of friends. In his second book of poems, "Wails of the Mind," this fine poet and visionary has written what might well have been his own epitaph.
 A FINE GENTLEMAN PASSES
 I had talked with him but the other day
 With no foreboding as we walked along,
 He was his usual self—so fine and strong
