Trans - Atlantic Airmail Trials Set For June

By EDWIN JOHNSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 19—Inauguration of the experimental trans-Atlantic airmail service, forerunner of regular air communications between the old and new worlds, is definitely on the books for late in June.

The craft that will essay the test, the appropriately named Mercury, is ready for the take-off the last week of next month. The ship, pay-load carrying component of the Mayo "pick-back" craft, has undergone the most rigid tests over a period of months at the Felixtowe Experimental Station and has received a certificate of airworthiness from the air ministry.

First, the mother-ship, called the Maia, roared into the sky with its burden to test the manoeuvreability of the pocked 'plane in flight.

Similar tests were made with varying fuel loads. Then came the more hazardous operation of separating the two units under full throttle in mid-air. The trials were described as a complete success.

Now the composite craft has emerged triumphant from its first official full load separation flights. Carrying a full Atlantic load of 20,000 pounds and 1,200 gallons of gasoline, the Mercury was launched from the Maia from a height of 3,000 feet, and after flying about for a while, jettisoned 1,000 gallons of fuel to make the landing safer.

Under normal flying conditions, plus the usual margin for emergency, the 1,200 gallons would have been sufficient to carry the Mercury about 3,700 miles. On the Atlantic flight sufficient fuel would be consumed to enable the 'plane to land at normal weight.

Of these latest tests, J. Piper, one of the leading pilots of Short Brothers, makers of the machines, was in charge of the Mercury. Captain J. Lancaster Parker was at the controls of the Maia. With him was Captain A. S. Wilcockson, who pioneered the Atlantic survey flights for Imperial Airways last summer.

Captain Donald Bennett, Australian flier, has been selected to pilot the Mercury on its maiden flight to Canada. Its actual destination in the Dominion has not yet been decided.

In Memoriam

MR. PATRICK McGUIRK

Friends and neighbors learned with regret of the passing in Margate on Wednesday morning, May 4th of Patrick McGuirk an old and highly respected resident of that place. He had been in failing health for the past two or three years, and for the last three months had been unable to leave his room, and on the above date he passed away, having reached the age of 77 years. His was a lovely death not too sudden and not too lingering and no severe suffering, he just seemed to gradually fade away peacefully until he drew his last breath, and the spirit returned to God who gave it. He had all comforts that could be desired, having received the last rites of the Church by his pastor Rev. P. McKenna, and being diligently waited on by his devoted wife and family. The late Mr. McGuirk was born in Margate and was a splendid neighbor, always ready to help in trouble or sickness. He leaves to mourn their loss of a kind and loving husband and father his wife formerly Mary C. Young of Coleman, four sons and two daughters— Harlan and Harry of Clinton; John and George, Pearl and Mamie of Margate; also three sisters Mrs. Catherine Croken of Emerald; Mrs. Arthur Shreehan of Kinkora and Mrs. Walter O'Grady Leominster, Mass. His funeral took place Friday morning to St. James Church, Summerfield, where requiem High Mass was sung by his pastor, Rev. P. McKenna who also performed the services at the grave. The pallbearers were Messrs. George Dennis, Louis O'Connor, St. Clair Croken, John L. Sullivan, Stanford Glover and David Sheehan.

Mexico Toils For Place In Economic Sun

(By J. P. MCKNIGHT
Associated Press Staff Writer)

MEXICO CITY, May 19—(AP)—President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico is betting his political future on his belief that men work better, and are happier, on land they can call their own. In three years of power he has done more to put into effect the Mexican revolution's land redistribution ideal than all his predecessors put together.

A shawled Mexican Indian woman, her bare feet tentative on unaccustomed marble floors, carried two scrawny chickens into the Palace of Fine Arts here. That was her contribution toward payment of the debt the Indian President incurred for Mexico with expropriation several weeks earlier of 17 British and American oil companies valued at $400,000,000. That was her contribution, as Mexicans like to put it, for "economic independence."

The incident, and the phrase, point up in sharp relief everything Cardenas has been trying to do for his country since he took office three years ago as Mexico's youngest constitutional president. He has striven consistently to bring to reality the precept of the Mexican revolution "Mexico for Mexicans."

Now Mexicans, alarmed by the fact the country is having to import such staples as corn, wheat and beans for the first time since the troubled years of civil warfare, are beginning to ask themselves if the plan works.

Cardenas himself of humble origin, has stood staunchly for the rights of Mexico's estimated 1,500,000 industrial workers, backing them almost without exception in their frequent conflicts with employers, but closest to his heart, nevertheless are the 11,000,000 men women and children who get their living from agriculture. That they need help is vividly, almost tragically illustrated in recently-released figures showing Mexico's total income last year from crops and livestock averaged four cents a person a day.

In three years under Cardenas 30,500,000 acres of land have been expropriated and distributed to 734,309 persons, compared with the distribution of 25,975,000 acres to 942,335 persons since launching of the agrarian program in 1915.

Try Communal Farms

Government experts put part of the blame for last year's short crops necessitating agricultural imports, on poor weather conditions —and with some reason. Droughts cut the wheat crop of the rich Laguna section in half, winter wheat in Durango and Coahuila froze in unusually severe weather, the fruit and produce area in the southwest suffered in climatic extremes and other regions returned similar discouraging reports.

A fact privately admitted even in government quarters, however, was that the efficiency of the "ejidos"—communal farming groups modelled after communities the Spanish "conquistadores" found four centuries before—were not functioning with the hoped-for efficiency. Furthermore the recent expropriation of the oil properties and consequent depreciation of the peso and decline in government revenue sharply reduces the money Mexico can spend abroad for foodstuffs.

Consensus here is that the "ejido," keystone of the agrarian program designed to break up big land holdings, has yet to prove itself.

KINGSTON W. I.

The May meeting of Kingston W. I. was held at the home of the secretary, Mabel Auld, with an attendance of eleven members and one visitor. The meeting opened by singing the Institute Carol and repeating the Creed in unison. After the roll call, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted. The sick committee reported having sent fruit to one member, who expressed her appreciation and thanks. A discussion took place regarding the report of the School Committee, but was decided to leave this over until the next meeting. The Sick and Program committees were reappointed. New School Committee appointed: Mrs. Tyrus Holmes and Miss Vera Livingstone. The Institute News was passed around. After the new business was dealt with, two contests were put on by Mrs. James Beer and Miss Vera Livingstone; the prizes being won by Mrs. Malcolm MacSwain and Mabel Auld. Collection for the evening amounted to sixty cents. Mrs. Albert Clow invited the members to her home for the next meeting. Roll call to be answered by "Ways by which women can save money." The meeting was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem. Refreshments were served by the hostess and a social time spent.

CROP REPORT

WINNIPEG, Man., May 20 — Weather conditions during the past week have been generally cloudy, cool and showery throughout the entire Western wheat growing areas, with strong winds at many points. Wheat seeding in Manitoba is about 100 per cent completed and in Saskatchewan and Alberta from 35 per cent to 95 per cent completed. The seeding of coarse grains varies from 15 per cent to 95 per cent throughout the Western area, according to the weekly crop report of the Department of Agriculture, Canadian National Railways.

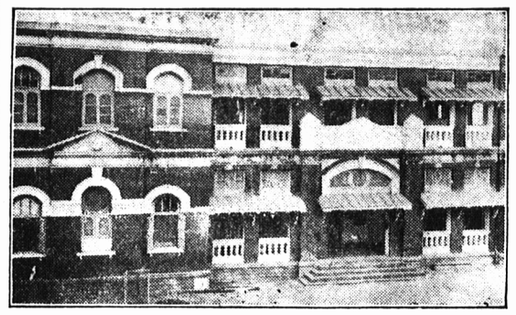
EMPIRE DAY IN INDIA

In every part of the British Empire in the month of May, Empire Day is celebrated by millions of school children. This day set apart for patriotic observances was founded some 40 years ago by a Daughter of the Empire —the late Mrs. Clementina Fessenden. In Canada the Day is observed on the last school day proceding the 24th of May, but in other parts of the Empire where Victoria Day is not regarded as a public holiday, it is held on the 24th.

The Daughters of the Empire some years ago erected a tablet in St. John's Church, Ancaster in memory of Mrs. Fessenden, in which church her husband was the Rector for many years. This tablet bears the simple inscription: "In memory of Clementina Fessenden. Founder of Empire Day, 1879. Erected by the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire."



Canada wing of St. Helen's School erected by the I. O. D. E. as a memory to Susie Sorabji.

Mrs. Fessenden devoted her time and her means to forwarding this Empire idea, and before her death in 1918, she had the satisfaction of knowing that her efforts had succeeded beyond her most sanguine expectations, not only in Canada but throughout the Empire. England and the other Dominions and Colonies owe the development of the Empire Day idea to the last Lord Meath who seven years after it was begun in Canada began a campaign for the purpose. He spent much of his own fortune in travelling, speaking and writing on the subject, with the result that over ten million children attending over 70,000 schools in the Empire take part in this patriotic observance. The idea is to awaken in the children a love of country, to remind them of what they owe to those who gave their lives for King and country, and to stimulate imperial co-operation.

Empire Day is observed each year at St. Helena's school in Poona, India. The Daughters of the Empire have a special interest in this school, to the development of which they have contributed generously for many years. The story of this work, part of which has recently been completed, is set forth in the following article, and particularly emphasises the importance of education of co-operation, of patriotism and of Empire unity.

In the city of Poona, India, there is a school known as 'St. Helena's' which has a strong educational link with Canada because of the practical interest taken in it by the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire through who efforts there has been erected and recently completed a second storey of the school at a cost of about $15,000. This is called the 'Canada' wing.

The building of this wing was commenced during the lifetime of that great British patriot and educationist, Miss Susie Sorabji who founded 'St. Helena's' 35 years ago and was its principal until her death in 1931. The Wing was completed as a Memorial to that very gallant woman.

The school begun by Miss Sorabji in a very small way, has grown miraculously though the years and represent a great experiment in education. It is international and co-educational —a little League of Nations venture. Many races are represented by the children attending the school, which, beginning with the kindergarten, continues to the Senior and Junior Cambridge Examinations, and for the Matriculation Examination of the Bombay University, together with all Presidency Examinations in Arts, Needlework, etc English is the medium of instruction, but each child must also learn to read and write its mother tongue as well an another language. Among the races who attend St Helen's are Parsees. Moslems, all castes of Hindus, Jains, Sikhs, Khojas, Persians and Christian-Indians. In the school are Companies of Girl Guides and Boy Scouts, and in it also are held the meetings of the Kaisir-i-Hind chapter of the Daughters of the Empire, of which Miss Sorabji was the first Regent. The present Regent and the members of this Chapter are all graduates of St. Helen's School.

Miss Sorabji belonged to a remarkable family. Her parents, the Reverend Sorabji-Kharsedji and Mrs. Sorabji were Christian-Parsees, and were noted pioneers of progress and education for women and children in Western India. It is interesting to note that one of the daughters, Miss Cornelia Sorabji, was educated at Oxford and admitted to the English Bar (the first woman to attain that honour), whom were firm friends of Miss Susie Sorabji, and visited her school at various times. Although no longer in India, they still retain their interest in this unusual educational undertaking.

In order that the work of the school should continue to carry forward the educational and patriotic ideals set forth by its Founder, Miss Sorabji entrusted the Missionary Society of the Church of England in London with its continuance and a valued representative of that organization is now its Principal.

Although the pledge of the Daughters of the Empire to complete the Canada Wing of the school has now been fulfilled, the member of the Order seem to have caught the contagion of service so magnificently demonstrated by Miss Sorabji, and are still continuing their interest and contributions to this Empire work, this Memorial to a great woman.

POLISH FOR LUGGAGE MAKES IT BOTH LOOK AND WEAR BETTER

When did you last have a look at your luggage . . . those suitcases and hatboxes that came home from the holidays last summer?

Better get them out and polish them up.

Most people who spring-clean their homes regularly and send their clothes to the cleaners often cheerfully neglect their suitcases. Yet luggage, like other pieces of leather, respond to good treatment.

Hide cases need regular nourishment if they are to give good service, and their appearance demands the same care we give our shoes and pretty hand-bags.

Take out your old suitcases now and have a look at them. Dirt and grease stains can be treated with saddle soap.

Clean the leather thoroughly, and then polish over with a good shoe polish. Brown is good for most hides, but the finer ones should be treated with the white cream used for colored shoes.

White cream, or furniture cream, is best for pig-skin, colored leathers and leather fabrics. But be sure you polish it well and leave no traces of white in the grain and seams.

A highly polished surface not only looks smart, but it preserves the leather against rubbing and dampness.

When you have smartened up all the luggage in the attic, don't put it back among the dust to grow shabby again.

Canvas covers for suitcases are expensive when you buy the tailored kind. But anyone can make a good cover for wear at home.

A suitcase that is kept in a home-made canvas "bag" will always come out smiling and is safe from cobwebs.
