ONE of the prettiest weddings solemnized here for some time, took place in the Argyle House, Kent St., on November 29th. Mr. Neil McDonald of New Haven and Miss Emma Wheeler of Murray River, were made man and wife by the ceremony performed by Rev. D. McLean. Mr. Malcolm McKinnon of Strathgortnay supported the groom, while Miss Florrie Darrach of West River, acted as bridesmaid. A dinner served in the Argyle's best style, was partaken of by the few present, after which the wedding party drove to their new home at New Haven, where they were met by a large party of invited guests and an evening of perfect enjoyment was spent, continuing into the young hours of the morning.—Com.

The Christmas number of The New Brunswick Magazine is of double size, containing 96 pages of reading matter and several illustrations. There is a fine table of contents, and the articles are of value to every person interested in the history of this country. Prof. Ganong's paper on the Asaburton treaty shows that New Brunswick was not a loser but a gainer by the negotiation. James Hannay tells the story of the 104th regiment and its career, while Mr. Raymond continues his valuable series of sketches of the early settlement of St. John. The question of the meaning of the word "Aboideau," which has been a matter of much contention for years, seems to be finally and definitely settled by a masterly paper on this subject by W. P. Dole. Clarence Ward describes an old time Christmas, giving a bright and graphic picture of how the day was spent in the house of Major Wards. Judge Savary, of Annapolis Royal, has a short paper on the Acadian Melansons and their origin. In this number is given the first part of a famous Christmas tragedy in Halifax, when Ensign Cross, of the 96th was charged with murder. The writer is Harry Piers, of the Legislative Library, and the story is illustrated by a sketch of the old North Barracks. W. K. Reynolds tells the story of the wreck of the ship England, near St. John in 1846. As it is just half a century since the electric telegraph was put in operation Roslynde gives a brief sketch of its beginning, to be followed by another telling of the early days of its use. The notes and queries, marriages and deaths of past years and other departments, notes on provincial books and other features of the departments will all repay perusal and must be of good value for future reference. The Christmas number of the magazine sells for 25 cents, and may be had by addressing W. K. Reynolds, St. John. N.B.

He is now at his parents home in Brudenell.—Mr. Norman McDonald, who has for this last month been confined to the house by sciatica, is now able to move around.—Mrs. Horatio Nelson was taken seriously ill with Epilepsy on Sunday night, and immediately several Drs. were summoned.
