CHINESE ADMIRAL TO BOMBARD REBEL CAMP

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Fear that the Chinese Admiral will bombard the rebel camp at Wu Chang has disrupted missionary circles in London. Han Yang and the native city of Hankow which are opposite rebel camps are also in the hand of the revolutionists. Imperial gunboats will be precluded from taking up a position in the river between the two fires. In this case American University and American, Swedish, Wesleyan and London mission hospitals and schools will be all in the direct line of firing.

OBITUARY

After a somewhat lingering illness death came on Sunday, the first inst., to Aeneas McCloskey, son of Patrick McCloskey, Mills, Bonwell, in the 23rd year of his age. About six months ago he complained of a lame leg at which time he went to the City Hospital, Charlottetown, for treatment. Here he remained, suffering intensely though very patiently, for three months, when he removed to his sister's, Mrs. Amos Monaghan, North Wiltshire. He was doing nicely for a time, but unexpected complications set in and he died as a result. The deceased, up to six months ago, was a very strong, hard-working and industrious young man. Of a kindly disposition he was always ready to assist a neighbor when it came within his power and consequently all who knew him esteemed and admired him in life and now deeply deplore his death. He had many amiable qualities and was a faithful attendant at his parish church, St. Anne's, the pastor of which administered to him the last sad rites. His funeral took place from his father's residence on Tuesday, the third inst., to St. Anne's Church, Lot 65, and was largely attended. Rev. Dr. Curran sung the Mass of Requiem for the repose of his soul. He is survived by a father, two brothers and four sisters who have the sympathy of all in their sad bereavement. The pall-bearers were: Aeneas Clarkin, Michael McCaffrey, Wm. Keegan, Wilfrid Bradley, James E. Coady, and Michael Clarkin. May he rest in peace.

"Not dead, but gone before, How long before us, who can tell, May we, like thee, in thought adore In every action serve him well, For we hath not seen, nor mortal known, The peace God giveth to his own."

"It is time to see to warm wearables for the winter months. We are showing a full new stock now of underwear, hosiery, hats, caps, coat sweaters, gloves, mufflers, vests and overcoats. THE WORLD FIFTY YEARS HENCE

"Never prophesy unless you know" is a very wise aphorism, and certainly in the present brief paper the writer does not propose to talk in prophetic accents. But though human eyes with their limited vision can only see the ripples on the great ocean of time, yet a ripple may be an index to the Gulf Stream. The trend and direction of the great tides—which themselves are in rhythm with the planets—may be guessed from the ripples.

THE OPTIMISTIC NOTE

It is very noteworthy that not a divine but a layman strikes the most courageously optimistic note at the present moment. The rector's desk at St. Andrew's rings with more cheerful accents than most Christian pulpits. "Momentary shadows," said Lord Rosebery, "are born of a too limited view of things. A wise man may find the clouds lying about him for a moment, but he will raise his eyes to the hills and remember the eternities."

If we assess the centuries we shall find the world is better and happier at the end of each than it was at the beginning. There is visible in the history of the world to Lord Rosebery looks back upon it "a constant movement for the better." All this is perfectly true. Time refutes the pessimists.

WORDSWORTH'S MISTAKE

Everyone remembers Wordsworth's sonnet. "Milton, thou shouldst be living with us at this hour; England hath need of thee, she is a fen Of stagnant waters." Wordsworth was one of the sanest of poets, and yet how time has wrecked this particular bit of his poetry. "A fen of stagnant waters"; could anything be more absurd as a description of England today? Strange new ferments, no doubt, are stirring in the national blood; but there are ferments making for health, not disease.

Farm for Sale

—AT— Tryon I am offering for sale my farm, consisting of 160 acres, 120 clear and the balance covered with a good growth of hard and soft wood. On the premises are excellent buildings containing dwelling and outbuildings as well as a farmer's house, all in good repair. This property is facing Tryon River and the farm runs to the shore. There is running water on the farm. This property is admitted one of the best in this section, and intending purchasers are invited to inspect it. JOHN H. LEE, Tryon. 7-14mwdrt.

Christian ideas are establishing over human life.

SCIENCE AND RELIGION

Science, again, in a degree—and in forms which are not adequately recognized—is coming into rhythm with religion. Not Tyndale resolving all the phenomena of life into terms of matter, but Huxley declaring that "the one certainty of science is the existence of a mental world," is the true interpreter of the wiser thought of the schools. The proof of the new friendship between science and religion is not to be found simply in such personal incidents as Lord Kelvin's emphatic declaration of the belief in God, or in the spectacle of Sir Oliver Lodge writing a religious catechism for the instruction of parents and teachers. It is revealed in the fact that the new science makes any materialistic reading of the universe impossible. Matter itself is resolved into terms of force.

THE PLEIADES IN THE ATOM

A generation ago science was busy amongst the immensities; it was pushing back the horizons of the universe; and, as it deciphered the mathematics of the heavens, beneath the height, the splendour, the ordered and illimitable magnificence thus revealed, man seemed to shrink, and Christianity—which has shrunk, and which is its central greatness of man as its central truth—threatened to become incredible. How remote God seemed, sitting behind His stars! But the new science today finds greatness not —Andrew Noonan of Bedouque who left for Western Canada recently is now working with his grand father in Souris, Manitoba. His friends wish him every success. —Look out for the big auction sale of the balance of goods of the late firm of McGougan & Wright in James A. McNeil's warehouse, Water Street, Summerside, on Saturday night 21st., at 7 o'clock. Come and get a bargain as there is no reserve. —Leonard Pickering, Sherbrooke met with a very painful accident recently. Mr. Pickering was cleaning out a well which was about 30 feet deep, he being at the bottom and his assistant above taking up buckets as they were filled, just as one of the buckets reached the top of the well, the rope gave way and the heavy weight, dropped to the bottom striking Mr. Pickering on the head inflicting a severe cut over three inches long. The doctor was immediately summoned and the wound dressed. Mr. Pickering's back, was also severely hurt. The accident occurred Wednesday but it is understood that Mr. Pickering is recovering rapidly and expects to be out in a short time.—S.

RAVOLT AGAINST ARMED PEACE

If we may judge the tide from the ripples, some things become reasonably certain. There will, in the near future, be a revolt, both of the reason and the conscience of the civilized world, from the state of armed peace which at present prevails, with its ever-multiplying fleets of Dreadnoughts and its universal training for war. The appliances for war have grown to such a scale that war itself will be recognised as impossible, and the arbitrament of reason will take the place of the clash of fleets and armies.

There must be, next, a steady ascent in the conditions of life for the working class of every type. Two forces join to make this certain. One is the visible growth of class-consciousness among the workers themselves. The sense of a community of inter-

VICTORY OF CHRISTIAN IDEAS

A second force working in the same direction, and profoundly influencing every class of the community, is what may be called the new Christianity is touching with his strange yet gracious forces the moral sense of the world. It is making cruelty, injustice, and oppression intolerable. The spectacle of the inequalities of human life disquiets it; the mere existence of suffering is felt to be a resistance challenge; and the new Christian conscience stirring in the nation as to these things is a guarantee of the social advance in every form.

The average Christian pulpit, curiously enough, is apparently unconscious of the amazing victory which Christian ideas have won, and are winning, in this realm. Some forces at the present moment seem to arrest advance in the organised Churches. The Churches themselves lack the leaders of striking personality; the higher criticism has not reached any certain conclusion of its own, but it has helped to smite with a note of uncertainty—and, therefore, of weakness—the average pulpit. But any pessimism as to the future of Christianity is contradicted by the whole trend of civilisation, and by the silent and universal authority which

Died at Burlington on the 13th Oct. 1911, Mrs. McIntosh, relict of the late Angus McIntosh in the 77th year of her age. The deceased was a member of the Hartsville Presbyterian Church. She was a pious, intelligent, useful woman and much respected in the community. Her husband predeceased her about eight years ago. She left three daughters married in the Western States also three or four sons in the West and one son Daniel on the homestead. Her funeral took place on the evening of the 15th and was very largely attended.
