Bag Robbery

(Special to The Guardian) NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Mail sacks containing $100,000 cash consigned to a firm in Havana, Cuba, were ransacked in the Post Office of that city several weeks ago and as yet the money has not been recovered, it was learned today.

Worms cause fretfulness and rob the infant of sleep, the great nourisher. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator will clear the stomach and intestines and restore healthfulness.

Egg Laying Contest Notes

The Charlottetown Egg Laying Contest made excellent gains during the 8th week ending December 26th there were 92 more eggs laid than during the 7th week, or a total of 307 eggs. The Experimental Farm pen of Barred Rocks No. 25, led for the week with 33 eggs. The pen of White Leghorns of William Neale, of Bear River, and the pen of Barred Rocks of H. L. Machon of Murray Harbour tied for second place with 31 eggs each. The pen of Barred Rocks of Mrs. R. G. McLaren of New Perth was third, with 27 eggs, and the pen of Barred Rocks of Mr. J. B. Millman of Kensington came fourth with 24 eggs. The Experimental Station pen of Barred Rocks No. 25 also led the contest with a total of 114 eggs; the pen of White Leghorns of William Neale of Bear River was 2nd, with 103 eggs; the pen of White Leghorns of Mr. Edwin Reid of Rollo Bay, which had been first up to the present, had to take third place with a total of 10 eggs. The grand total to date is 967. The pen of White Leghorns owned by Mrs. R. W. Bullpitt of Cardigan started laying. Three hens laid a possible of 7 eggs during the week. 11 hens laid 6 eggs, and 17 laid 5 eggs each during the week. Solid partitions were put in between each pen, so as to eliminate any possibility of pens of birds contracting colds from one another. This would also stop any draft in the houses when the cotton screens are open. Mr. Morgan, the Inspector, went carefully over the contest, and stated that the birds are all in very much better condition than last year.

SPRING BROOK SCHOOL

The semi-annual examination of Spring Brook school was held Friday, December 24 inst., and was attended by a large number of parents and visitors. The school room was very tastefully decorated for the occasion with spruce, garlands and roses. The pupils were examined in the several subjects by their teacher Miss Carrie Woodside, and by their alert and ready response showed that during the past half year, they had been carefully trained and taught. After the examination a well rendered program was listened to with pleasure by all:—Opening chorus, pupils; opening address, Everett Jollymore; Doll Drill, seven girls; Recitation Theresa Meek; Dialogue entitled "Selling Books"; Hazel Hicks, Glennie Bernard, Stella Jost, and Everett Jollymore; Recitation, Oliver Bernard, Quartette, Theresa Meek, Glennie Bernard, Florrie Meek, and Hazel Hicks; Christmas exercises, nine pupils; Recitation Cassie McLeod; Dialogue entitled "Taking the Census"; Theresa Meek, Stirling MacGregor, Ralph Bernard, Hillard Meek, and George McLeod; Recitation Glennie Bernard. Just then Santa Claus appeared on the scene, went to the well laden tree, and distributed candy and cards among the pupils. The teacher was not forgotten by her pupils, and was presented with a beautiful fountain pen, and a kindly worded address, which goes to show that they appreciate the arduous labours which she performed for their benefit. Complimentary remarks were also made by several visitors present, expressive of their satisfaction at the progress which the school was making under Miss Woodside's management. The singing of the National Anthem brought the examination to a close.

THE WOMAN HE MARRIED

BY JANE PHELPS

MOTHER WILLIAMS RETURNS HOME

Chapter 44.

Mother Williams had gone. I breathed a sigh of relief when I saw the train to which I had taken her, steam out of the station. I now realize that had I been doing right, living according to my means, with nothing to conceal, so there was no need for deceit, I would have felt far differently toward her.

She had been kindness itself in many ways; had been loving and thoughtful with Junior. She had offered to stay with him and let Dick and me go out, had insisted once or twice. She had knitted and sewed for him all the time she was with us, and had done all my darning. But because I had a guilty conscience I resented her suggestions and became angry if I thought she was finding fault.

Clara was to meet me after the train left and we were going to lunch together. "I feel perfectly reckless," I told her when we met. "I can breathe freely again."

"Blessed be no relatives," she responded laughingly. "Oh, she's all right. Only—well, we don't think alike about a lot of things. And because she is Dick's mother I can say nothing."

We had luncheon at a lovely tea room, then went shopping. Clara had a few things to buy, and I also wanted some material to make rompers for Junior. We spent a delightful hour rummaging through the stores, and both of us bought more than we had planned.

"I couldn't resist that lunch cloth," she said, while I told her: "I needed gloves, and they were such a bargain." I had bought two pairs of white kid gloves at $3.50 a pair. Down in our hearts we both knew we had been foolishly extravagant, for we could have done without both those articles.

The day after Mother Williams left I busied myself about the house all day. Clara came up and had a pick-up luncheon with me. She was a great favorite with Junior, and played with and fussed over him while I worked.

"Oh Nan, you remember about Nick Crawford and his wife, don't you? How he advertised that he would not pay her debts?"

"Yes. What about them?" "What do you think?" "Has she left him? I thought she would!"

"My, no I saw them at the movies last night and they were acting as if they were just married. Turtle doves doesn't express it." "You don't mean she has forgiven him, and goes out in public with him after that insult?" I asked perfectly horrified.

"Sure she does! Don't be so scandalized. He's a pretty good meal ticket, you know." "How do you use slang, Clara. But I don't see how she can do it. I never could show my face in public if such a thing happened to me."

WELCOME RELIEF FROM ECZEMA

Complete Treatment That Gives Gratifying Results

WASHINGTON, Ont. "I had an attack of Weeping Eczema so bad that my clothes would be wet through at times.

For four months, I suffered terribly, I could get no relief until I tried "Fruit-a-tives" and "Sootha-Salva."

Altogether, I have used three boxes of "Sootha-Salva" and two of "Fruit-a-tives", and am entirely well." G. W. HALL.

Both these favorite remedies are sold by dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.00, or sent on receipt of price by "Fruit-a-tives" Limited, Ottawa.

"Fruit-a-tives" is also put up in a trial size which sells for 25c.

"I suppose she feels guilty—that she really was extravagant—so takes her medicine." Then "I am sorry for her though. She was such a wonderful hostess."

"Do you know, Clara, Mr. Gray said he felt just as Dick said he did—that Crawford or any man was justified in advertising his wife if she deliberately lived beyond her means and ran him into debt—that a man had a right to insist his wife live within his income."

"He's an old fogie! Men are all alike, they want to boss."

After Clara left I kept thinking of Mrs. Crawford. I wondered how she could bear to go out with her husband after he had so insulted her, and how she could bring herself to face their friends.

"I depressed me. I couldn't avoid thinking of what I should have done in her place. I was glad when Mildred Stowell called.

Among other things she said: "I suppose Dick told you that George has opened an account with Blake and Ogden? He did, I imagine, because he likes Dick. I know he has accounts with several other firms."

"No, he hasn't told me. His mother has been here, you know, and we talk no business before her."

"Wise children." "Now Dick MUST borrow enough to make some money! I said to myself after Mildred left. "I know he can."

Sage and Sulphur Darkens Gray Hair

IT'S GRANDMOTHER'S RECIPE TO RESTORE COLOR, GLOSS AND ATTRACTIVENESS

Almost everyone knows that Sage and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Hints for the Motorist

BY ALBERT L. CLOUGH

FOR CARS THAT "HIBERNATE"

Water is Dangerous and Fresh Oil Beneficial in Stored Cars

THE PISTONS OF AN ENGINE that has lain idle for a long time, especially in the cold, are likely to be found stuck in their bores, unless precautions are taken. The oil left in the engine should be freshly supplied, so there may be no water in it. A tablespoonful of engine oil may be sucked in through the carburetor air-intake, by running the engine, so that all parts will be left thoroughly coated or a little engine oil can be put into each cylinder through the plug opening. The main thing is to leave the pistons heavily oiled. If the engine is occasionally turned over by the hand-crank, it will probably not become "set". If there is no likelihood that the car will be required on short notice, the storage battery should be taken out and left on storage, at an electrical service station, or put in a fairly warm place, kept filled with water and put on charge if its gravity falls much below 1280. If the car is stored accessibly and may be occasionally required the battery should be left fully filled and fully charged, with its cable disconnected, tested at intervals and recharged if its gravity falls much below 1280. A discharged battery is likely to freeze and be ruined, but a fully charged one is proof against cold, all grease cups should be turned down and all joints in brake and other operating linkages should be turned down and all joints in brake and other operating linkages should be heavily squirted with light oil, so that they may not become stuck. Painting the edges of the spring leaves with oil, tends to prevent their rusting. It is worth while to have a canvas cover, which can be draped over the entire car down to the floor, in order to exclude dust and shield the tires from intense light.

It is one of fate's decrees that lovers must fall in love before they can fall out becoming King of the Hellenes, I don't know. But I don't think that an objection to a crown would be taken as a reason for a divorce.

Her son's engagement with ex-Princess Helene, the Queen characterized as "a perfect match in every sense."

The first time she saw ex-Princess Helene, she said she was completely charmed with her sweet disposition and did not rest until she had "brought them together."

"It was a case of love at first sight," declared the Queen, "and now, to-day, my much-in-love son is the happiest man on earth."

When that much-in-love son was in New York last August he was finishing a world tour on which he had been sent by his family to heal his broken heart, for he had made a love match with Miss Zizi Lambino, daughter of a Roumanian General, but the Roumanian courts had dissolved the marriage, and Prince Charles was disconsolate.

Prince Charles is twenty-seven. Ex-Princess Helene is twenty-four. The Duke of Sparta is thirty. Princess Elizabeth a beautiful woman of twenty-six is Queen Alexandra's great-niece.
